Growth demands new source

Village trying to get Lake Michigan water

by JOHN MAES

Buffalo Grove officials "have the feelers out" for finding a possible method of supplying Lake Michigan water to the village within the next several years, William Balling, village administrative assistant, said Wednesday.

The village is looking to provide lake water for general use as a means of supplementing a five-well system, which is the source of village water.

Officials estimate Buffalo Grove may be using Lake Michigan water within the next six years.

Balling said expectations that the village will continue to grow make it necessary to find some supplementary water source, although the well system will continue to be the major supplier.

HE SAID THE water table has been dropping at a rate of several feet per year due in part to other villages "mining" water in the area.

Obtaining Lake Michigan water would call for the village to buy water from another system that extracts water from the lake.

Although figures were unavailable,

Balling said officials are waiting for cost estimates telling how much the village would pay to include itself in each system and how much water could be supplied to Buffalo Grove.

Cost and amounts of water available are major factors in determining which way the village will go, he said. Buffalo Grove consumes an average of 1.9 million gallons of water daily. That total will increase by four times in the next several years, according to village estimates.

BUFFALO GROVE already has asked the Lake County Water District to include the village in preliminary plans to extend a main that would serve Libertyville, Gurnee and Mundelein.

The system already serves Zion and the Illinois Beach Park near Waukegan from a plant at Zion that extracts lake water.

That plan would be costly, Balling said, because extension of the main would entail construction costs and overhauls to the Zion pumping and filtration facility to meet the new needs.

"That's the kicker," he said. "Taking Lake Michigan water is not cheap — it's an expensive undertaking. Just the logistics of the thing would indicate cost."

Buffalo Grove also would have to pay a higher share of allocated costs because it is farther away from the water source than the other connecting towns and relies more heavily on its operation.

DAMP, A GROUP of representatives from Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine is investigating methods of obtaining water from Lake Michigan on a regional basis.

Under consideration also are possible plans with the Lake County Public Works Dept. Balling says the department is trying to devise a new system for supplying Lake Michigan water to area communities. That plan has been only roughly examined, he said.

Another method that has been considered would be arranging with Northbrook officials for a hookup with their water system. Balling said Northbrook has its own water plant, system and treatment facility.

He even mentioned the possibility the village could join in such a venture with Wheeling as a means of cutting costs.

THE PLAN PROBABLY would be the cheapest, he said but a problem might arise when obtaining adequate amounts of water for village use.

No matter which route the village takes Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said large amounts of red tape will have to be straightened out before any project geared at tapping on Lake Michigan water can get under way.

Agreements exist regulating the amount of water that can be diverted from the lake for general use and the state will not permit more than 3,200 cubic feet of water to be pumped from the lake per second.

State drops charges against Heights man

The state dropped two criminal charges against a Prospect Heights man Tuesday in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

The charges of battery and criminal trespass against Lee A. Vivirito, 25, of 417 Willow Rd., Prospect Heights, may be reinstated, however. The charges stemmed from an Oct. 13 incident at 575 Fairway View Dr., Wheeling. Police said Vivirito allegedly grabbed and slapped Kay Wroblewski of that address and refused to leave her apartment.

Last roundtable session Monday at village hall

The Buffalo Grove Village Board will forego its regular board session Monday to conduct the year's final president's roundtable at 8 p.m. in the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

The roundtable idea was started by Village Pres. Gary Armstrong to give residents and community leaders a chance to meet with the village board on an informal basis and discuss ideas and opinions concerning the village.

Former village trustee Edward Fabish is chairman of the session, held four times each year.

The session will follow an agenda, but residents are invited to bring up ideas and opinions during an open discussion period at the end of the meeting.

AMONG THE TOPICS to be discussed is the proposed Buffalo Grove post office. Village officials have been delayed in their efforts to establish a branch station because postal officials believe the village is not yet large enough to have its own facility.

All Buffalo Grove mail is handled through the Wheeling post office but village residents can transact most types of postal business at two contract substations in the village.

One is located in the Mark Walgreen Pharmacy in the Ranch Mart Shopping Center and the other is in the Toad Stool Gift Shop in the Buffalo Grove Mall.

Also to be talked about is the idea for a Buffalo Grove weather station, a plan the village has been unable to finance.

PUBLIC RELATIONS committee members believe the station would be good publicity for the village because Chicago-area media weathermen have indicated they would broadcast Buffalo Grove weather conditions.

The committee is currently looking for another means of funding the project.

Village officials and residents will also discuss:

A proposal by the Buffalo Grove Jaycees and Rotary Club that signs identifying the village be placed on Buffalo Grove borders.

No cheers, little applause for forensics competitors

by JUDY JOBBITT

Two chairs and a table set the stage.

Brushing off the nervous jitters, two freshmen take their stance in front of the table and explain the setting. And a humorous duet skit begins before an audience of 10 forensics competitors and a judge.

This scene is typical of many in forensics. Last weekend more than 400 students competed in 11 forensics events in a meet sponsored by Buffalo Grove and Wheeling high schools.

STUDENTS WHO enter forensics don't get the applause, tribute or recognition awarded fellow artists in dramatics.

Forensics participants perform as individuals and respond to critiques from judges rather than applause from audiences. They participate in forensics meets Saturday mornings and perform only before their competitors and a handful of interested friends.

Training for forensics comes from participating in meets, coaching from experienced forensics members and adults and from observing other forensics competitors.

'74 turkey supplies up, prices down

Butchers, stores may sell at a loss to keep customers interested

GOBBLER GROWER Elving Sennabond of Butterfield, Minn., stands among several thousand turkeys readied for Thanksgiving season sale.

The cost of turkeys will gobble up a smaller chunk of the family's Thanksgiving food budget this year compared to 1973 prices. A glut of frozen gobblers and an ample supply of fresh birds are reported by area butcher shops and food store chains.

"Prices of turkeys are somewhat lower than they were last year," said Joe Burkhardt of the Dominick's Finer Foods chain. "I've seen them featured from 29 cents (a pound) and up." Turkey prices are a competitive tool for the food stores during the holiday season, Burkhardt said. He said stores may sell the birds at cost or below to attract customers.

The Herald reported Nov. 15, 1973 that the average retail price for turkeys was 61 cents a pound.

"Last year's turkey prices were abnormally high," a Jewel Food stores spokesman said. Prices this year dropped to a range of 39 cents to 69 cents a pound. Heavy sales of frozen turkeys will begin today and continue through next week, she said, adding that the stores may break even or take a loss on turkey sales.

"RIGHT NOW, turkey supplies are pretty heavy," said a spokesman for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's poultry division office in Chicago. He said government figures indicate 558 million pounds of turkey in storage compared to 450 million pounds a year ago.

WHY THE BIG increase in frozen turkeys? The USDA spokesman said increased production, less promotion of turkey sales and competition from heavy supplies of beef and chicken account for the buildup of frozen turkey inventories.

The glut of gobblers in the market will mean lower prices paid to producers and the possibility of an upward swing in prices by 1976, said John Big, a poultry buyer for A&P Food Stores in Chicago. "A great deal of money was made last year by growers," he said. "Consequently they thought every year would be the same." Increased production in 1974 led to great financial loss for the producers as feed, labor and transportation costs soared, Big said. Some producers are dropping out of the market, pointing to fewer turkeys and higher prices next year.

Fresh turkey prices are higher than the cost of frozen birds. Jim Howland, owner of Howland's Meat market in Arlington Heights, explains, "It all depends on what you want to put in your stomach." There is a definite taste difference between the fresh and frozen turkeys, Howland said. He charges 99 cents a pound for fresh hens or toms.

"There is no such thing as deals," echoes Tom Aszewski, owner of the John's Coach & Carriage Butcher Shop in Elk Grove Village. "You get more with the fresh turkeys, because they're not dehydrated." He sells the fresh-killed turkeys from the Howard Kaufman farm in Waterman, Ill. at 98 cents a pound for hens and 89 cents a pound for toms. The price last year was $1.09 a pound.

CONSUMER RESISTANCE to rising

prices has cut back on meat sales at some food stores this year, said John Sobut, assistant director of the Illinois Food Retailers Assn. "But somebody's going to buy those turkeys, by God, at 49 cents a pound — that's a bargain," he said.

When the heavy turkey sales promotions get under way, some retailers will sell frozen turkeys at a loss of $1 to $2 a bird, Sobut said. The stores hope to make up for the loss through sales of other holiday foods, he said. Sweet potatoes, cranberry sauce and nuts are among foods that will be featured at sale prices for the Thanksgiving season.

Sobut reported wholesale prices for turkeys ranging from a low of $1 1/4 cents a pound for 18-to 20-pound birds to 63 1/2 cents a pound for 6- to 10-pound birds on store brands. Butterball turkeys ranged from 57 1/2 cents to 63 1/2 cents a pound at the wholesale level this week. Ducks were priced wholesale at 78 1/2 cents a pound and 22-ounce Cornish hens at 90 1/2 cents a pound.

Pikarsky for RTA chief, urges Ogilvie

Former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie suggested Wednesday that Republican members of the Regional Transit Authority vote Milton Pikarsky into the RTA's chairmanship. Pikarsky, chairman of the Chicago Transit Authority, has been opposed by Republicans because they feel he is too close to Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley and will put the city's interest above that of outlying counties which are part of the RTA. Joseph Tesson, temporary RTA chairman, said Ogilvie suggested Republicans support Pikarsky during a phone call in which the former governor withdrew his own name from contention. Ogilvie cited obligations to his family and law practice as reasons for withdrawing his name from consideration.

Public ownership for airport?

The possibility of public acquisition of Palwaukee Airport to ensure its continued use as a public airfield is being explored by the Chicago Area Transportation Study (CATS), a regional planning agency. CATS representatives presented details to members of the Northwest Municipal Conference Wednesday night in an attempt to stimulate interest in an acquisition study for nearby municipalities. CATS representative David Newmyer said retention of Palwaukee is one of the key goals of the 1985 Transportation Plan as it relates to airports. Chicago's O'Hare Airport near Lincolnshire is another of 10 airports CATS has designated for public acquisition.

Ex-mayor pleads guilty

Former Village Pres. Richard H. Baker of Hanover Park pleaded guilty Wednesday to a total of 12 federal charges of extortion and income tax fraud. Baker, 40, village president and liquor commissioner from 1969 to 1973, faces a maximum penalty of 46 years in prison and $30,000 in fines on seven counts of extortion and five counts of income tax fraud. He was accused of extorting $10,000 from four liquor license applicants and $12,500 from two major builders.

Pollution charge probed

Complaints from Wheeling residents that Rock Road Construction Co. is causing pollution from its material yard has sparked an investigation by Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's office. The action comes despite statements by Wheeling village officials that Rock Road took steps to clean up the yard after village action was threatened against the firm last summer.

Boycott bus firm: teachers

The teachers' union in Des Plaines School Dist. 62 called Wednesday for a boycott against using United Motor Coach Co. buses for field trips. A parent group earlier complained that the buses are not safe for elementary school children to ride.

Post office bids due Jan. 30

Bids on Des Plaines' new $2.6 million post office will be opened Jan. 30, Postmaster John Kouleentes said Wednesday. Construction is expected to begin shortly after bid openings, he added. Operations in three local post offices and a Rosemont substation will be consolidated in the new 57,000-square-foot facility.

Centex gets permits, warning

Centex Homes Corp. was granted 53 building permits Wednesday that had been withheld because Elk Grove Village officials felt the firm was underestimating construction costs, which determine the amount of the permit fees. Bldg. Comm. Thomas Rettenbacher released the permits with a warning that future construction cost estimates must be realistic. Estimates on which the permits were released Wednesday still were not in line with true construction costs, he added.

Tenant out on bond

Patricia Bunnar, 40, of Des Plaines, was released from custody late Tuesday after posting $1,000 bond on a criminal trespass charge. She was arrested earlier Tuesday while trying to retrieve some belongings at the apartment from which she and her four children had been evicted. Mrs. Bunnar is to appear in Des Plaines branch of Circuit Court on Jan. 8.

Glass quits race for Senate post

Two suburban contenders for the top Illinois Senate leadership post withdrew from consideration Wednesday, leaving State Sen. Harris Fawell R-Naperville, as one of the leading candidates for the spot.

In a joint news conference Wednesday in Springfield, State Sen. Bradley Glass, R-Northfield, and State Sen. Terrel E. Clarke, R-Western Springs, both announced they would support Fawell for the Republican senate leadership post. Glass, whose district includes all of Buffalo Grove and Wheeling and a portion of Arlington Heights, also is village attorney for Palatine.

Clarke is a long-time Republican power in the western suburbs.

Fawell, a 12-year Senate veteran, is regarded as a relatively independent Republican. He serves as chairman of the Senate Education Committee.

His name previously had not been mentioned as a candidate for the minority's leadership job. To get the post, however, Fawell must wrest the GOP's top senate post from Sen. William Harris, R-Pontiac.

Harris, now president of the Senate, is a candidate for minority leader for the General Assembly session starting in January.

Motorola job cut won't affect Schaumburg plant

Motorola Communications Division discontinued 200 jobs last week in what was termed "belt-tightening" in light of current economic conditions.

The move is not expected to significantly affect the approximately 6,000 employees at Motorola's Schaumburg corporate headquarters, a company spokesman said Tuesday.

"Things are stable at our Schaumburg operation and we will hopefully not have any significant layoffs," said John Feeley, a Motorola public relations representative.

Although slightly more than half the communications division employees work in the Chicago area, Feeley said that others are employed elsewhere in the United States as well as 13 foreign countries in which Motorola has interests. The job cutback was spread throughout the worldwide operation.

The "belt tightening," he said, reflects the economic picture "both domestically and internationally" and involves manufacturing as well as clerical and professional jobs associated with production and distribution operations.

Coverup 'involves... king of mountain'

In a conversation taped in 1973 and replayed in court Wednesday, Richard M. Nixon said the crumbling Watergate cover-up "involves, uh, the highest... the king of the mountain." That same day, the president had pledged in a press statement to condemn any attempt to cover up Watergate, and he later commented in another tape replayed Wednesday, "Well, we got in deep."

Panel's vote on Rocky 'will be favorable'

State committee approval of Nelson Rockefeller's vice presidential nomination became virtually certain Wednesday, but he faced more hostile questioning before a House committee Thursday. Chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev., of the Senate Rules Committee said when his panel votes on the nomination Friday it "will be favorable." Cannon added a full Senate vote on Rockefeller would not come until after Thanksgiving because senators must be given time to read the final report.

Senate denies all but $200,000 for Nixon

The Senate voted Wednesday to deny all but $200,000 of the $850,000 recommended by President Ford to help Richard M. Nixon return to private life. The transition funds were contained in an $8.3 billion catch-all supplemental appropriations bill which was adopted. Many of the provisions in the bill will have to be reconciled between Senate and House allocations.

House votes to restore state pay hikes

The Illinois House voted Wednesday to restore state employee pay raises to the original $100-per-month level, rejecting Gov. Daniel Walker's claim the boost could help force a tax increase. If the Senate follows suit, some 50,000 state workers will get wage hikes of $100 a month retroactive to Sept. 1 instead of the $50-a-month increase Walker allowed.

Candoli views job as schools chief

Carl Candoli, one of two remaining candidates for the job of Illinois school chief said he does not see the job as "one that tells people what to do." He sees the job as one of support and liaison. The other person still in the running is Joseph Grenin of Massachusetts. A final choice will be made by the board at a meeting in Chicago this weekend.

Chicago

Drop conspiracy charges against Fletcher

A criminal court judge dismissed conspiracy charges Wednesday against Silas Fletcher, the defendant in the murder trial of policeman Anthony Raymond. The judge, however, refused to dismiss charges of murder and kidnapping against him. Raymond disappeared Oct. 1, 1972, after stopping a car on a ramp to the Eisenhower Expressway. His body was found on a farm near Rhinelander, Wis., on Aug. 18, 1973.

Report Arab-Israeli crisis 'very bad'

Israel said Wednesday the Arab-Israeli crisis is "very bad, very difficult" and unless the United States and the Soviet Union include the Middle East in their detente any superpower accord will be "strategically and politically meaningless." In the Suez Canal, meanwhile, four Egyptian vessels completed the first commercial navigation since it was closed by Arab-Israeli fighting seven and a half years ago.

Hint Ford's host, Tanaka, will resign

As President Ford prepared to leave Japan for South Korea for the second leg of his Far Eastern visit, indications grew that his co-host, Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, would be forced from office by scandal. Reports claim Tanaka has already decided to resign as soon as Ford leaves.

From Herald news services

American Telephone & Telegraph, the largest privately owned corporation in the world, was the subject Wednesday of the biggest anti-trust suit ever filed. The suit, filed by the Justice Department, demands that AT&T break up its giant communications network and divest itself of its manufacturing arm, Western Electric.

The suit names AT&T, Western Electric and Bell Telephone Laboratories, Inc., charges the three with monopoly and accuses the firms of conspiring to control the telecommunications and equipment market.

The suit will take at least three years to reach court and probably many more years after that before judgment.

In New York a spokesman for AT&T expressed astonishment at the anti-trust suit and said favorable disposition could lead to "fragmentation of responsibility of the nation's telephone network." The spokesman said if that happens "telephone service would deteriorate and cost much, much, more."

News of the suit stunned Wall Street and trading on the AT&T stock was suspended on the New York Stock Exchange. The ban on AT&T stock trading will continue until 11 a.m. Thursday, Chicago time at the direction of the Securities and Exchange Commission. Trading was halted about one hour before the suit was filed and SEC officials directed all inquiries about the ban to the Justice Dept.

Justice officials declined to predict that telephone rates will drop if their suit is successful, but they said telephone users would benefit in other ways, such as allowing freer access to various kinds of telephone equipment by consumers.

The suit takes aim at three giant entities of American corporate structure.

• AT&T has assets of more than $67 billion and with its subsidiaries supplies the nation with 80 per cent of its telephones. Through its long lines division, AT&T handles more than 90 per cent of all interstate telephone calls in the United States.

• Western Electric has 150,000 employees, assets of some $5 billion and profits of $300 million. It made a separate corporation from AT&T, Western Electric would be the 10th largest corporation in the nation. In the Northwest suburbs, Western Electric employs some 2,000 workers at its Rolling Meadows plant in engineering, technical and professional occupations.

• Bell Laboratories, Inc. is the country's largest industrial research organization and conducts design and development projects for the Bell system.

In its anti-trust announcement the Justice department stressed it is not challenging the practice that gives local telephone companies exclusive franchises for services in specific areas. But the suit does ask that Bell break up its long lines department and separate long distance operations from the various operating companies of the Bell system.

The 23 local Bell Telephone operating companies — including Illinois Bell — were named as co-conspirators in the complaint but not co-defendants.

At a glance

- In the biggest antitrust action in history, the Justice Department charges AT&T with monopolistic practices aimed at "controlling the telecommunications" industry.
- AT&T is to break up its long distance system and divest itself of Western Electric and Bell Laboratories.
- AT&T now supplies more than 80 per cent of the nation's telephones and handles 90 per cent of all long distance calls.
- Western Electric, with 150,000 employees, assets of $5 billion and profits of $300 million, would be the 10th largest corporation in America if a separate company.
- The antitrust suit will take three years to go to court and several years more for appeals.
- The suit does not challenge the practice of exclusive Bell telephone service to specific areas.

Lufthansa jet crashes — 59 killed

NAIROBI (UPI) — A Lufthansa Boeing 747 with 157 persons aboard faltered while trying to gain altitude moments after takeoff Wednesday and plunged tail first into a muddy field, killing 59 persons in the first fatal crash of the world's biggest commercial jetliner.

Lufthansa said 98 persons on Flight 340 bound for Johannesburg survived the crash and the explosion and fire that followed, including 12 Americans. Twenty-two of the survivors were hospitalized, some in serious condition, while others escaped with only minor cuts and bruises.

Survivors credited skilful emergency maneuvering by the captain for saving their lives.

Most of the 139 passengers and 18 crew members were West Germans. Besides the 12 Americans, Lufthansa said survivors included 65 Germans, 10 Britons, four Canadians, two South Africans, two Norwegians, one Belgian and one Austrian. One was not identified.

The 230-foot jetliner had just lifted off the runway for the flight to South Africa when it dropped abruptly and impacted tail down in the field about one mile from the end of the runway. It broke into pieces and burst into flames.

Survivors said Capt. Christian Krack, 54, saved their lives by his skilful attempt at an emergency belly landing that sent the 747 skidding through the mud, leaving a 200-yard swath of debris but keeping the midsection of the fuselage intact.

Ten of the surviving Americans were members of a tour which left Los Angeles last Sunday for a 32-day tour of Africa. Two others of the touring group were unaccounted for, and the tour conductor was killed. The Club Universe members were en route to Johannesburg.

IN ROLLING MEADOWS, some 2,000 employees of Western Electric go to work daily. The suburban office of the mammoth technical equipment company is part of AT&T's worldwide operations.

Higher gasoline prices predicted

Banking to bicycles... layoffs spread

From United Press International

Pre-Christmas layoffs spread through the economy Wednesday, and higher prices were posted on some automobiles and predicted for gasoline.

Workers in industries ranging from banking to bicycles and chemicals to appliances lost their jobs. Corporations blamed the cutbacks on the economic slowdown.

The coal strike took a higher toll of railroad jobs and threatened a complete shutdown of the steel industry if the miners do not return to work by Dec. 10.

In Washington, Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said the nation's economy was "worsening" every day and introduced a bill giving President Ford authority to impose controls on wages, prices, rents, profits, dividends and interest.

The President has ruled out such controls in his economic program, and Mansfield's bill was given little chance of passage this year.

The price of Ford Motor's 1975 cars is going up about 2 per cent or about $75. A Ford spokesman said the "price adjustment" imposed Monday but not acknowledged publicly until Wednesday, applied to equipment — including $9 for antifreeze that used to be free — and not the base price of cars. There were no increases on the lowest-priced cars.

General Motors and Chrysler said they had not imposed similar increases, but dealer sources said GM has indicated boosts as high as $200 after Jan. 1.

The American Petroleum Institute said elimination of the oil depletion allowance, which was included in a bill approved by the House Ways and Means Committee, would "siphon off billions of dollars" from funds used to develop domestic oil and gas supplies.

In Tulsa, Okla., Fred H. Ramseur, president of Cities Service Oil Co., said consumers would have to pay higher gasoline prices to make up for the loss of "millions of dollars" in profits if the depletion allowance is eliminated.

More layoffs were announced by auto suppliers, including Libby-Owens-Ford which discharged 1,220 persons indefinitely in its glass division because of cutbacks in auto production.

Allis Chalmers said it is closing its Pittsburgh transformer plant for three weeks starting Dec. 13, idling 500 hourly workers. Frigidaire, a division of General Motors, said it is discharging 800 workers at an appliance plant in Dayton, O.

Hercules Inc., a chemical and fiber manufacturer, gave pink slips to 625 workers at three plants in New Jersey, Georgia and Virginia. AMF's bicycle division in Little Rock, Ark., announced suspension of operations Thursday until early in January, idling 1,000 of the plant's 1,500 workers.

Even the banking industry is feeling the pinch. Empire National Bank, which operates 41 offices in Southeastern New York, said it is cutting its staff by 5 per cent.

Meanwhile, the United Mine Workers bargaining council, in a move certain to extend the nine-day-old coal strike into December, Wednesday instructed union negotiators to seek minor adjustments in the new contract agreement.

Ford handed defeat; 2 major bills vetoed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Wednesday handed President Ford his most serious legislative defeat yet, voting by wide margins to override his veto of two major bills.

The House voted 371 to 31 to override the veto of the Freedom of Information bill, and 398 to 7 to override Ford's rejection of a vocational rehabilitation bill.

The House did vote, however, to sustain Ford's veto of a minor private bill providing compensation for the wounding of two Miami, Fla., Herald newspaper reporters by U.S. Marines while they covered the Dominican Republic uprising in 1965. The vote was 236 to 163, 30 votes short of the needed two-thirds.

The Senate must still vote by a two-thirds margin on the information and rehabilitation vetoes before the override is final.

The information bill would authorize federal judges, if they choose, to determine the authenticity of a government agency's claim of national security interest in denying public access to documents.

The rehabilitation bill would authorize $851.5 million to continue programs of job training for the mentally and physically handicapped through June 30, 1976. In other congressional action Wednesday:

• The House Rules Committee cleared

a $11.8 billion mass transit aid bill for floor action, but a jurisdictional squabble continued to threaten its final passage. The six-year proposal would grant both federal construction funds and operating subsidies to "hard-pressed mass transit systems around the country. The Senate passed the bill, strongly supported by President Ford, on Tuesday.

• The Senate Finance Committee sent to the floor by unanimous vote a broad trade bill giving the President unprecedented authority to negotiate reductions in trade barriers and give Russia more favorable trade treatment. The bill would extend to Moscow the same terms enjoyed by America's other foreign trading partners.

Family marks 50th birthday of RFK

• The late Robert F. Kennedy would have been 50 years old Wednesday. To mark the anniversary, his widow, Ethel, and four of their children joined other members of the Kennedy family at a brief mass said for him at his grave in Arlington National Cemetery. After the services, family members walked a short distance to John F. Kennedy's grave and placed a white flower on the headstone.

• Ever since he became president of Amtrak shortly after its formation in 1971, Roger Lewis, 63, has been under steady criticism. Citing "personal reasons," Lewis announced Wednesday he will resign as president of the national passenger train network as soon as a new president can be found. He will remain as a member of the board of directors.

• President Ford has sent the nomination of former Connecticut Gov. Thomas J. Meskill to be a federal Appends Court judge to the current lame duck Congress for a second try at confirmation.

• Ransom Notes: Businessman Jack J. Teich, 34, kidnapped and held for $750,000 ransom while his family negotiated in secret to pay his abductors, was returned unharmed Wednesday to his Kings Point, N. Y., home... Giuseppe Lucchini, 22-year-old son of one of Italy's richest men, was released by kidnapers Wednesday after being paid what some sources said may have been a record ransom of more than $10 million.

• Around-the-World: Chief surgeon Ganner Hey of Central Hospital in Roenne, Denmark, has refused to allow expectant fathers to watch births in his ward because "we haven't got enough staff to take care of fainting fathers."

• City fathers of Rotterdam, Holland, want police officers "to be able to see what they are supposed to fight." So the 1975 budget includes an item for "the fight against pornography" — $53 to purchase sex magazines... An appeals court in Seoul Wednesday upheld the death sentence handed down by a lower court to Moon Sekwang, the convicted assassin of South Korean President Park Chung hee's wife.

• Ex-actor Ronald Reagan, who will be the ex-governor of California in less than six weeks, says he plans to devote his time to speaking and writing on behalf of his two longstanding political themes: free enterprise and less government. He remains noncommittal about a possible 1976 bid for the White House.

• Film producer Harold Hecht, 64, whose movies include "Birdman of Alcatraz" and "Marty," and his wife, Martine, 33, separated in September after 12 years of marriage and three children. Hecht yesterday was ordered to pay his estranged wife $4,000 a month in temporary support pending division of an estimated $2 million in community property.

• In Portland, Mrs. Antonette Hatfield, wife of Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., has been hospitalized for tests for an undisclosed ailment.

• Nothing-Sacred-Dept.: John Mahoney, assistant managing editor of U. S. Catholic, charges in the December issue that Santa Claus, the kindly dispenser of Christmas cheer, is really a slick hustler who has taught greed, not love to millions of children. He charged that the movement to put Christ back into Christmas has failed because "we failed to take Santa Claus out of Christmas." In the same issue, the magazine noted a recent survey revealed 80 per cent of its readers do not agree with Mahoney's assessment of old St. Nick.

A HUMOROUS DUET of "Dennis the Menace" is performed by Joyce Allendorf and John Bauman in a forensics meet Saturday at Buffalo Grove and Wheeling high schools. Duet dramatic skits and other events let students present short scenes and speeches. Rewards come from judges' critiques and rankings toward a team victory.

large role in preparing a team for competition. Their support is also needed to host a forensics meet where they can oversee extemporaneous speech preparation, act as guides and do much of the clerical work.

Students show the wear and tear of the preparation and anticipation towards a meet when they complete each performance. Sighs of relief, giggles and smiles come from competitors after their event when they sit down to watch others perform.

Forensics often is misconstrued as debate or drama, but it is a field of its own. Also known as Individual Events, it covers a variety of speech forms including drama, original comedy, interpretation, radio broadcast and extemporaneous speech.

Whereas debate teams receive one topic per year to research and debate in various meets, forensics performers select their own work, can change it through the year and wind up with material as different as the number of competitors.

PARTICIPANTS in extemporaneous events are most closely aligned with debate because they produce speeches within an hour on a current topic. Extemporaneous students keep files with clips from periodicals to use at forensics meets. They draw three questions, select one question to write a speech on and present the speech an hour later.

Students participating in radio must present a five-minute broadcast with news items no more than 24 hours old. The presentation must be within 10 seconds of the five-minute limit or the participant is disqualified.

Dramatics and interpretation competitors can prepare their presentation in advance and present the same work at later meets.

Students go through three rounds at a meet. Each round pairs them against different students in front of a different judge. They must stay to hear all their competitors and once an event begins, no one can enter or leave.

The judge ranks the participants in order of excellence. The ranks are tallied and the school with the most over-all points wins the meet.

Students at Buffalo Grove High School said many on the forensics team are drawn into the activity through the oral communications class required for freshmen.

Mary Beth Lee, Buffalo Grove forensics president, said she entered forensics because she wanted to get over her shyness. Through forensics she learned self-confidence and how to present herself to others, she said.

TO HELP NEW forensics members, separate meets are offered for varsity and novices. A novice is anyone who has participated in less than three contests.

Forensics members also change the events they participate in as they learn their abilities and limitations in presenting speeches.

Larry Doyle started in radio broadcast but has changed to original comedy where he writes and presents a comic sketch.

"At the beginning of the year I was really shaky," he said, looking back on his first tries with forensics last year. "By the end of the year I was OK."

JEAN CASEY, Buffalo Grove head forensics coach, said students must learn to strive for personal achievement rather than judge's rankings.

"If you aim to please the judges, you please everybody but yourself," she said.

"There's the point where you forget about the audience and judge and concentrate on what you're doing," Larry said.

And as they concentrate on what they're doing, they learn self-composure and a mature presentation of themselves to others.

State probing pollution at area construction firm

by JOE FRANZ

Investigators from Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's office are following up on a complaint by Wheeling residents that the Rock Road Construction Co. is causing pollution from its materials yard.

Last summer, after several complaints from residents, the village board said it would seek an injunction against Rock Road and the Meyer Material Co. unless the firm cleaned up its operations. Since then village officials said both companies have taken steps to comply with village ordinances.

David Rosenbaum, chief investigator for the attorney general's Environmental Control section, said Wednesday, however, that residents complained about a week ago that the Rock Road plant still is causing pollution.

"We sent some investigators out there, but the matter still is under investigation," he said. "We have received a complaint, but are not sure if any violations exist."

Rosenbaum said if Rock Road should close its operation for the winter, his office may not be able to complete the investigation until spring.

LAST SUMMER, residents from the Dunhurst area complained that materials from the open stockpiles were blown into their yards, coating their homes and swimming pools with a gritty oil film. Residents said the problem has existed for several years.

The gritty oil film apparently reacted chemically with the paint on houses and damaged the wood. Village officials said the problem was most apparent in the Dunhurst area when there was a strong east wind.

They said Rock Road was exceeding the allowed height of stockpiles and was in violation of an ordinance that prohibits materials from being deposited on a lot in such a manner "that they may be transferred off the lot by natural causes or forces."

Village Mgr. George Passolt said Wednesday, however, that Rock Road, 231 McHenry Rd., has reduced the size of its stockpiles and taken steps to prevent the blowing of materials. The firm, he said, also has housed its conveyor belt and is attempting to reduce its noise output.

"There's more to be done, but I think by and large they have done everything they said they were going to do," Passolt said. "I feel they have acted in good faith and am satisfied."

The manager said that planting of trees and shrubbery on the Rock Road property is all that remains unfinished. He said the firm has said it will do the planting in the spring.

PASSOLT SAID the village has received no complaints from residents since Rock Road has cleaned up its operation.

A spokesman for Rock Road said Wednesday he was unaware of the investigation by the Atty. General's office and said the firm has received no complaints since taking the corrective action.

Hanover's ex-president pleads guilty to fraud

Former Village Pres. Richard H. Baker of Hanover Park pleaded guilty Wednesday to a total of 12 federal charges of extortion and income tax fraud.

Baker, 40, village president and liquor commissioner from 1969 to 1973, faces a maximum penalty of up to 46 years in federal prison and $30,000 in fines on seven counts of extortion and five counts of income tax fraud.

He will appear for sentencing Jan. 29 before U.S. District Court Judge Bernard M. Decker.

BAKER WAS INDICTED Aug. 15 by a federal grand jury on charges of extorting $10,000 from four liquor license applicants and $12,500 from Hanover Builders, Inc. and 3-H Homes, two major builders in Hanover Park.

Baker has been a controversial figure since he was elected to the Hanover Government Assn. investigation of Hanover Park in 1972. The BGA charged Baker "played a questionable role" in development of the MSD plant and acted without village board approval.

The BGA report said citizens charged Baker was consistently acting against the best interests of residents and to the advantage of land developers and other special interests.

Citizen complaints included sinking homes, mud-filled driveways, poor roads, inadequate drainage and other construction problems.

'Wait Until Dark' at high school Dec. 4-5

An innocent young blind woman is terrorized by gangsters searching for a shipment of heroin in Wheeling High School's production of "Wait Until Dark" Dec. 4-5 at the school, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd.

The suspense-filled murder mystery by Frederick Knott pits the blind woman, Susy (Cory Niessner), against the deceptively calm psychotic murderer, Roat (Lee Jacobs). John Peters portrays Susy's husband, Sam.

Other cast members are Mat Knapp as Mike, Scott Lark as Carlino and Karen Shatz as Gloria. Jack Mongan directs, assisted by student director Marianne Schell. Leslie Vanderhoof is stage manager.

Tickets for both 8 p.m. performances are $1.50, available at the door.

The play is not frequently done in high schools, perhaps because of technical problems, said Joel Mattson, technical director. The script requires several operating kitchen appliances plus a working faucet and sink, he said.

Through a few cabinet additions to a sink donated by a student's family and a long length of garden hose the problem was solved, said Mattson.

The set was designed by a student, Barry Taylor.

Richard H. Baker

Park village board in 1967 and resigned one year later for "business reasons."

Within five months of his resignation, Baker formed the People's Own Party and headed its slate in the April 1969 election defeating incumbent Village Pres. Eugene Domingue.

Baker's 1969 ticket backed an increased village water rate, supported a village master building plan and opposed a proposed 2,400 acre Metropolitan Sanitary District sludge farm in Hanover and Schaumburg townships.

Boasts an 85% accuracy rate

Clairvoyant says he's world's best

by LUISA GINETTI

Milton, Kramer says he is not bragging when he insists he is the world's best clairvoyant. One thing is for sure — he has managed to predict a good living for himself by looking into the future for others.

Kramer, a 59-year-old resident of Des Plaines, said he first realized his visionary powers in 1945. Since then he has learned to control his knowledge and declares confidently that he is the best predictor in the business with an 85-to 90-per cent accuracy rate.

"I don't pull anybody's leg and I expect to be wrong sometimes, but I have many people come to me from across the country for predictions and many of them are steady customers," he said.

PREDICTING THE future has been a full-time job for Kramer for the last 2½ years. Advertising in publications such as the National Tattler, Kramer offers three predictions for 1975 and his clients have responded from as far as Alaska.

People seeking his services meet with him in person, call him on the phone or send him questions by mail. Kramer says no physical contact with a client is necessary for him to come up with answers.

"I put myself into a trance through spiritual meditation because that's the only way you can see the other side," Kramer says. "I visualize spiritually and predict and it works. There's no question about it."

Kramer says he can put himself into a trance or self-hypnosis by concentrating on an object. In most cases he uses the aid of three clear, crystal balls, each of which is about twice the size of a golf ball.

WHILE IN A trance Kramer says he can see the unknown and analyze it to make his predictions. "By experience and practice you get to control the power and by making errors you learn to use it and improve it," he says.

Most people ask Kramer to foresee answers to their personal problems. He says the most frequently asked questions are about matrimony, business affairs, relations with other people, surgery and children. Some people ask Kramer how long they will live, he says.

Kramer says when he sees something bad in a person's future he can change it by using clear thinking and meditation. Everyone's life is pre-ordained, Kramer says, but certain things can be changed through changing a person's attitude, which Kramer says is what he tries to do.

KRAMER SAYS some of his more famous accurate predictions, which appear in books and magazines, have included the foretelling of a hurricane in Miami in 1970 three weeks before it happened and the fact that the late Egyptian President Gamal Nasser would be out of power in 1970.

However, Kramer admits that some of his predictions have fallen short of the mark, most notably his prediction at the beginning of this year that former President Richard Nixon was innocent of involvement in the Watergate scandal and would serve his full term with integrity.

Kramer says his support for Nixon probably affected his vision regarding that prediction.

SOME OF Kramer's predictions for the coming year include:

- Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago will not seek reelection in 1975.
- Sec. of State Michael Howlett is destined to become governor.
- President Ford will not be re-elected in 1976.
- Tornadoes will strike northern and southern Illinois April 14.
- Gov. Daniel Walker never will become President.

• War will break out in the Middle East by early spring.
• Russia and Red China will go to war in 1977.

Kramer says he is not interested in becoming a millionaire through the use of his powers. "I want to make people happy and earn enough to travel and make that possible."

Village to honor special sticker number requests

Village vehicle stickers for 1975 are on sale until Dec. 1, and requests for specially numbered stickers will be honored, Village Clerk Verna Clayton said.

Some numbers already are taken, she said, adding that the village will try to comply with requests for numbers as often as possible.

Forms have been sent out for residents to obtain the stickers by mail or they can be picked up at the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

The fee is $10 and the 1975 sticker must be displayed by Feb. 15. Otherwise owners face a $15 fine and will still have to purchase a sticker, said Mrs. Clayton.

She said residents can purchase the stickers by mail as a convenience to avoid long lines at the village hall.

ALTHOUGH motorists can apply for the stickers now, village ordinance states that they cannot be displayed until Dec. 1, she said.

Earlier this year, the village board directed village staff members not to sell any more vehicle stickers to Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing Inc., until the leasing division is located in Buffalo Grove.

Grand Spaulding owns property at Arlington Heights and Dundee roads where its Buffalo Grove facility will be located. The building is currently under construction.

Dog owners also will be able to buy village dog licenses by mail. The form for the $3 license will be enclosed with the vehicle sticker application. Both can be mailed back to the village hall.

She said dog owners must send proof of rabies vaccination with the application. The village had to send "quite a few" dog license applications back last year because certification was not received with the form, she said.

CHRYSLER CORP. officials are laying off 70,500 employees, or 64 per cent of the company's 110,000 hourly wage earners. A drop in sales and projected car orders prompted executives to wield a heavy ax. The No. 3 automaker has been criticized for its actions and one union official called top management "incompetent." Meanwhile, new cars remain in company parking lots.

64% out of work by December

Chrysler first to panic

by EDWARD S. LECITZIN

DETROIT (UPI) — Whether it's sloppy management, as the United Auto Workers union charges, or just bad luck, Chrysler Corp. executives have pushed the panic button harder than any of their competitors in the beleaguered auto industry.

Chrysler Chairman Lynn A. Townsend says it will be business as usual in December with no companywide shutdown. But nearly 64 per cent of the men and women who build Chrysler's cars won't be on the job the month before Christmas.

Faced with an early November sales report that showed a 34 per cent drop from last year's already depressed levels and a stock of unsold cars that could last four months, Chrysler executives began wielding a heavy ax Tuesday.

COMPARED TO General Motors' layoffs just before Christmas last year when 137,000 workers were idled in one short shutdown, Chrysler's numbers aren't that large — another 43,900 workers added to 26,600 already idled.

For a company with 110,000 hourly workers, idling 64 per cent of the work force the month before Christmas is dramatic.

Chrysler won't say how many of its 39,800 salaried workers have been trimmed or will be let go in the bolt-tightening.

Chrysler is the No. 3 automaker and, with just under 14 per cent of the new car market so far this year, it has no room for bad guesses.

Top management apparently didn't read the signals right and built too many small cars at a time when the swing was back to the larger models.

Chrysler has 365,000 cars, part of an industry backlog of 1.65 million cars, or an 80-day supply. But the Chrysler stockpile is overweighted in small cars, with enough Valiants on hand to last more than 130 days.

AT THIS TIME last year, the automakers were pushing their small car plants to capacity and making plans to convert large car plants to building small models.

Then the market turned around in the summer, and small cars are a drag on the market.

During the depths of the energy crisis-induced sales slump last winter, when 112,000 auto workers were on indefinite layoffs and a like number on shorter periods of idleness, Chrysler management was criticized

Increase unemployment benefits to idled workers, UAW urges

The Illinois General Assembly should immediately increase state unemployment benefits by 30 per cent because of the shutdown of Chrysler's Belvidere assembly plant, United Auto Workers regional director Robert Johnston says.

Johnston said the Belvidere shutdown, to begin Wednesday and continue to Jan. 6, also will affect thousands of workers who supply automotive parts to Chrysler.

"The way to start equalizing the hardship of a recession is to help its victims," Johnston said in a statement.

A bill increasing unemployment benefits already has been passed by the Illinois House, but legislative leaders have said they don't plan to take final action on the measure until January.

THE LEGISLATURE reconvenes today and Johnston urged Senate Pres. William Harris and Senate Minority Leader Cecil Parson to call the House bill up as soon as possible during the session and amend it so benefits would be increased by 30 per cent.

"Since the legislature last increased unemployment compensation payments in 1972, the cost of living has increased over 20 per cent while the average compensation payments for a married worker with a family of four remains at $90 a week," Johnston said.

He said that was slightly more than one-third the average weekly wage of persons who work for "Big Three" auto companies.

Although most auto workers with one year's seniority are guaranteed 90 per cent of their pay through a combination of unemployment benefits and company payments, those who work for smaller firms don't have such guarantees, Johnston said. He said mass layoffs in the auto industry probably will lead to an ultimate reduction in benefits.

Johnston said all 5,200 workers at the Belvidere Chrysler plant will be off for the duration of the shutdown, and 600 will be on indefinite layoff. (UPI) for not having a subcompact to rival the Vega or Pinto.

One executive wryly admitted: "No matter what we do, sometimes you just can't seem to win."

ALTHOUGH HE'S an adversary, UAW Vice Pres. Douglas A. Fraser usually restrains his comments on the business acumen of Chrysler management. But within minutes of Chrysler's announcement of new layoffs Tuesday, Fraser called top management incompetent.

Fraser says Chrysler has been producing sales at 136 per cent of sales, resulting in a huge stockpile, while Ford has produced only 102 per cent of sales.

"That is really sloppy management," Fraser said. "It's irresponsible. It's picking the workers' pockets."

Fraser said he asked Chrysler executives why they hadn't scheduled layoffs one or two weeks at a time like the other auto companies. The question went unanswered, he said.

WITH THE NEW MODEL year off to the poorest start in a decade, top Chrysler and UAW executives have banded together to demand action from Washington.

The union has taken up the automaker's pleas for relief from future safety and emission standards.

to Washington Tuesday, calling for Chrysler Pres. John Riccardo went government to help restore consumer confidence so people will buy cars, and easing of credit so they can afford the higher prices.

UAW Pres. Leonard Woodcock warns that the plight of the auto industry may spread quicker than some economists believe.

"Unless something is quickly done to turn around the basic industry, the accumulating effect of what is happening in autos will drag this country not simply to a recession but down to the reaches of a depression," Woodcock said.

THE VIEW from the tollway. Chrysler Corp. plant in Belvidere is visible from the Northwest Tollway but work on new cars will not be as 5,500 workers are being laid off Wednesday. Only about 1,000 persons may be rehired in 1975.

At homes with faulty furnaces

Village waits for Centex testing

Elk Grove Village officials are still awaiting Centex Homes Corp.'s announcement on how and when a massive testing and correction program will start in an estimated 1,700 Centex-built homes with defective furnaces.

Centex vice president Will Liebow said Tuesday, "We are still negotiating with furnace experts who have designed a test for us and plan to begin house to house inspections as soon as possible."

Liebow said the firm will notify village officials of the start of the testing program and ask the village for help in notifying residents when inspection crews are in the area.

The Herald disclosed last June that defective furnaces that may be leaking deadly fumes are installed in Centex homes built in 1965 and 1967.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS were alerted to the situation in the spring of 1972 by local heating contractors who noticed an alarmingly high incidence of hazardous leaks in furnace heat exchangers.

Since The Herald disclosure of the furnace problem Centex and village officials have been arguing responsibility. The village first expressed confidence that the builder would find a solution to the problem and later demanded its cooperation.

Liebow announced Oct. 3 that the firm will start testing and corrections immediately.

Liebow later postponed the inspections. The firm is still attempting to iron out details of the program, he said.

Centex has pledged to share furnace repair costs and is asking residents who have their furnaces repaired before the testing or correction program begins to save defective parts.

Liebow said Wednesday "We are asking residents to be patient. We are working as fast as we can to get things fixed."

Ogilvie discussed '73 track dates before OK

Former Illinois Racing Board chairman Alexander MacArthur testified Wednesday that former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie discussed the 1973 racing schedule with him just before the board adopted it.

MacArthur's testimony before the present racing board conflicts with previous testimony by Ogilvie, who said he never discussed details of the 1973 racing schedule with any board member.

MacArthur, of Barrington Hills, also testified that he came close to resigning several times because of interference in racing matters from some of Ogilvie's top aides.

The board is investigating whether $110,000 in contributions from racing associations influenced the awarding of 1973 racing dates. The board says racing associations connected with Sportsman's Park gave the money in 1971 and 1972 for the campaigns of Ogilvie and Edmund Kucharski, unsuccessful candidate for secretary of state in 1972.

Board chairman Anthony Sciarano said Wednesday he would try to get Ogilvie to appear at the hearing to explain the difference in testimony. MacArthur told the board he had breakfast with Ogilvie shortly before the governor was to leave office, and Ogilvie asked for a compromise racing schedule that wouldn't make any waves.

MacArthur said he rejected a suggestion that the board adopt a similar schedule to the one approved when William S. Miller was chairman of the racing board. The board later adopted a controversial 1973 schedule that MacArthur opposed. He later resigned.

Repair firms face suit

Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott has filed suit against officials of 12 home-repair construction firms in the Chicago area, charging them with failure to perform work after accepting payment.

Scott is asking that the firms be prohibited from doing business until they answer subpoenas. He said the firms received subpoenas several months ago but have not taken records in for inspection, as ordered.

The firms are United Enterprises, Tinley Park; Edward Bukala & Sons, Palos Park; A.R.R. Exterior Designs, Lombard; Revere Boller Service and Supply, Chicago; Robert Houghton Interiors, Chicago; Classic Builders, Chicago; Kels Installation, Chicago; Riteway Construction, Chicago; Style-Rite Kitchens, Chicago; Wayne McGill & Sons, Chicago; Suburban Home Interiors, Hinsdale, and Design It Yourself, Burbank.

State employee raises asked

Lobbyists prodded the Illinois General Assembly Wednesday for new legislation or veto overrides that would increase pay for state employees and raise state unemployment benefits, particularly to aid victims of the Chrysler Corp. layoffs.

A spokesman for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees urged legislators to restore the $100 pay raises for state employees, which Gov. Daniel Walker cut in half.

The United Auto Workers asked for legislation now, during the legislature's veto session, to raise unemployment benefits 30 per cent.

Quadruplegic sues hospital

A 19-year-old quadruplegic who charged that he suffered permanent damage after being dropped on the floor of Chicago's Holy Cross Hospital is seeking $3 million in a suit filed in Cook County Tuesday.

The suit charges that John T. Kleink, who was hospitalized in 1971 for a paralyzing football injury, might have regained some movement of the upper part of his body if the hospital accident had not occurred. Kleink's attorney said the youth was under routine treatment for a broken cervical vertebra when he was turned improperly, allowing him to fall to the floor. The suit contains several other detailed charges that Kleink's treatment was "negligent." Doctors named in the suit are Jonas G. Byla and Frank Devincenzo.

State Fair spending cut

All State Fair spending has been shut off this week pending a decision on the legality of up to $3 million in vouchers for fair-related expenses.

Comptroller George Lindberg closed off spending because fair manager Paul King may have illegally authorized the expenditures, a spokesman for Lindberg said. Atty. Gen. William J. Scott has been asked to issue an opinion on King's authority.

Jim Williams, Lindberg's press secretary, said the issue arose because King has not been confirmed as fair manager by the Illinois Senate. King has been acting manager since January.

Phone strike ends

Employees of the General Telephone Co. in West Frankfort and Springfield will return to their jobs Monday after a one-month strike that involved 2,900 workers. The statewide strike by two locals of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers affected 430,000 customers, although management kept operator stations functioning. Details of the two-year pact were to be released later, officials said.

Strike at Caterpillar?

Union and company officials of the Caterpillar Tractor Co. in Peoria are meeting to head off a strike approved by members of United Auto Workers Local 974.

A strike could occur before Thanksgiving if grievances including pay rates for new job classifications aren't resolved.

Illinois is honoring the 50th anniversary of the worldwide firm this year with black and yellow auto license plates

Elderly tax relief due?

Pay raises and old-age tax relief vetoed by Gov. Daniel Walker are scheduled to receive special attention this week by the Illinois General Assembly.

State Rep. James Washburn, R-Morris, chairman of the appropriations committee, said he intends to seek an override of Walker's cut in the state employe raise, which was trimmed from $100 to $50. Other representatives also will seek to override cuts in salary hikes for employees of the University of Illinois and Board of Regents universities.

The Senate will consider Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan's sales tax relief plan, which involves spending $30 million in old-age state grants to offset sales tax on food, clothing, medicine and fuel. The bill has passed the House.

The Senate also has pay raise bills pending for judges, high-level state officials and legislators. The legislative pay hike would boost salaries from $17,500 to $22,500 a year.

Gunmen invade convent

Three gunmen injured one nun and stole $70 after forcing their way into St. Clotilde Convent in Chicago Tuesday.

Police said three men forced their way in after the nuns answered the door. One of the men drew a gun and demanded all the money in the convent. Sister Mary Hannon gave them the money from the community purse, but the gunman hit her on the wrist with his pistol. She was released from Roseland Community Hospital after treatment.

Vodka now No. 1 hard alcoholic drink in U.S.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Belly up to the bar, boys, and have a belt — of vodka and orange juice. Vodka and orange juice?

'Fraid so. Vodka has just replaced bourbon as the nation's favorite hard alcoholic drink.

Apparently even twofisted drinkers who once dismissed vodka as a drink for silly girls and sissies are swilling it. In shot and beer towns such as Detroit, taverns in tough factory neighborhoods report selling a lot more vodka than bourbon or whiskey the past four or five months.

An executive for a New York bourbon distiller said, "The trend is toward lighter liquors. A lot of young people are using vodka, which has very little flavor, with sweet mixes. All they taste is 7-Up."

Even in Atlanta, where a wholesaler said: "This is a bourbon area — probably the strongest bourbon area of the whole country" — the single best-selling liquor is Smirnoff vodka.

J. Richard Grieb, president of Smirnoff division of Heublein, thinks the reason vodka has had such a dramatic growth in the last 10 years is because it mixes "with whole lots of flavors people like. Vodka doesn't interfere with the flavor."

Smirnoff, which takes credit for the Screwdriver, the Moscow Mule and the Bloody Mary, introduces a "new lifestyle drink" every 60 days. Today, it's the Hot Adam's Apple — vodka, what else, and hot apple cider.

Too much caution might be too bad

Picture this: An 8-year-old child, angry at his teachers or fellow students, runs out of his classroom, down the hall and out the door.

His teacher and the school principal don't follow. Instead, they call the child's parents to say he has left.

The picture seems like something out of one of those movies like "Up the Down Staircase," which show the impersonality of big city schools where school officials spend more time shuffling red tape than working with children.

The scary part of the picture, however, is that it is made possible, if not probable, by a legal opinion recently given to the staff of Dwyer School for emotionally disturbed children, Arlington Heights, discussing the duty of teachers to restrain students.

Basically, the legal opinion says, a teacher or administrator doesn't have the duty to physically restrain a child who wants to leave, and doesn't have to follow him if he does. Instead, the legal advice is that staff members in the school should call a child's parent or, if he may be a danger to others while running around loose, call the police.

Education today

by Wandalyn Rice

YOU REMEMBER DWYER SCHOOL.

Dwyer was the center of all those charges of child abuse against psychologist John Whipple. One specific charge was that Whipple once grabbed a child and held him against the wall when the child was running down the hall. Whipple's accusers characterized his actions as "child abuse."

The State Teacher Certification Board, while ruling against Whipple on some counts, found there was no evidence of child abuse at Dwyer. It apparently accepted Whipple's explanation that he grabbed that boy because he had a history of running away from school and was on his way out the door.

Seen in context, Whipple's action seems sensible. When you add the fact that the child was emotionally disturbed and had run away before, the action seems even more justifiable.

Would it have been reasonable for Whipple to let the boy leave, calmly walk into the office and call the child's parents? Well, it would have been sensible for one reason — no one could have interpreted that as "child abuse" and later told wild stories about cruelty.

A LAWYER'S JOB is play it safe and that explains the legal opinion. A school official who is going to play it safe will take all actions with the motive of protecting himself or herself from ever being misunderstood or blamed legally for anything that happens.

Carried to extremes, this means no teacher would hug a child to show affection (someone might charge child molestation), grab a child to stop him from hitting someone (that might be child abuse) or do anything that might be misinterpreted.

Somehow, from being around schools in the Northwest suburbs, I can't quite picture schools in which teachers would be so careful and so fearful. And having met many of the staff members at Dwyer who put a lot of time and effort into helping children from whom some other people would shy away, I particularly cannot see them letting a child run away without stopping him.

THIS ENTIRE discussion gets back to something I talked about last month when Whipple's accusers presented a witness who said that in working with disturbed children she preferred to "err on the side of caution."

At that time, I said we would have to decide how "cautious" we want to be as a community — especially in deciding whether to serve "difficult" children like those at Dwyer School.

I should have added that each teacher also will have to decide how cautious he or she is going to be.

This is, after all, a dangerous and difficult world — and educators over the years have become increasingly prone to charges relating to their actions. Some have been unreasonable and have acted in ways that have hurt students. There is little doubt about that.

But caution can be dangerous too. And it is important, in this kind of world, to remember that.

Diet cuts cholesterol

You mentioned in your column that fatty accumulations in the arteries are reversible. Could you please tell me how this is possible?

The fatty particles in the bloodstream with cholesterol literally move through the artery wall. They stick in the wall and cause the deposits. Part or all of the deposits will be removed, in many cases, if the amount of fatty particles and cholesterol in the bloodstream is sufficiently low.

To lower the fatty cholesterol particles in the blood you need to be on a diet that does not contain excess calories and either prevents or eliminates obesity. The diet should be low in fat, low in saturated fat, and low in cholesterol.

The reversibility of fatty deposits in the arteries has been demonstrated in animals under strict experimental control. The monkey was used for one of the best experiments because he is more like the human. The monkeys developed fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries when they were on a rich diet, and the fatty deposits were not present after monkeys were put back on a less rich monkey diet.

The same thing has been demonstrated in people. The problems associated with fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries, specifically heart disease, decreased or almost disappeared from European populations of World War II. There are innumerable studies showing this relationship.

I've had this problem for a while, so I'm telling you about it.

Since school started in 1973 I've been chewing more than a pack of gum a day and each time I chew a piece I'm lucky if it lasts more than 10 minutes.

My problem is I have this habit of swallowing my gum sometimes bit by bit and sometimes the whole piece at once. It isn't accidental — it's just a habit.

Some of my friends told me it takes seven years to digest. My mom thinks it might be an unhealthy thing to do, and now it's got me worried. Any advice or help would be much appreciated.

If swallowing gum is the worst thing you ever swallow, you will be lucky indeed.

No, it will not take seven years to digest. It will not harm you — even though I must admit that I don't really think it is a good idea.

All undigested material passes through the digestive system and is usually eliminated in 48 hours.

I'm more concerned about the effects of constant gum chewing on your teeth. You might ask your dentist what he thinks about it.

PEP offers opposition to nuclear power

by LEA TONKIN

Several hundred signatures have been obtained in the Northwest suburbs on petitions calling for a moratorium on nuclear-power development. The petitions are part of the national effort conducted by the Task Force Against Nuclear Pollution, said Jane Murphy of the Palatine-based Pollution and Environmental Emergency Organization.

"We're planning to continue with this," Mrs. Murphy said of the petition signature campaign. "We figure that we will let our senators and congressmen know that there are more than just a few people... who oppose the use of nuclear energy."

Among the objections to nuclear power plant construction: the problem of disposal of radioactive wastes that are a byproduct of the plant operations.

Mrs. Murphy said PEP will consider whether it will sponsor a seminar on an alternative source of power, solar energy, at its next meeting. The group will meet Dec. 4 at the Palatine Village Hall at 8 p.m.

Progress theme of talks

Progress in achieving environmental quality: that is the theme of the Nov. 21 annual conference planned by the Illinois Institute for Environmental Quality. The meeting will be held at the Hyatt Regency Chicago. Gov. Daniel Walker and Russell W. Peterson, chairman of the Council on Environmental Quality in Washington, D.C., will participate in the program.

Among the speakers are Samuel Booras, director of the Illinois Institute for Environmental Quality; Richard Briceland, director of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency; and Jacob Dumelle, chairman of the Illinois Pollution Control Board. Environmental economics and education are among the discussion topics.

Hearings slated by IPCB

Toxic substances handling regulations proposals will be considered at a series of hearings slated by the Illinois Pollution Control Board. The hearings are scheduled Nov. 25-26 at the Field Museum in Chicago, Dec. 2 at the Municipal Building in Springfield and Dec. 12 at Blackhawk College, Moline. All hearings begin at 10 a.m.

The proposed regulations call for registration of all toxic and hazardous substances along with plans for emergency action if a discharge occurs. The proposed standard is opposed by the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce.

Victor Denslow, chamber environmental affairs committee representative, said the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency failed to use the best available sources of information on identification of toxic substances and response mechanisms already available to industry, when it drew up the proposals. Denslow, a coordinator of environmental affairs for Amoco Chemical Corp. in Chicago, said the proposed registration could cause delay in the response to emergency situations.

Gardens 'like' wildlife

Picture a suburban garden, ringed with asters, marigolds, lilacs, hollyhocks, praying mantises, mockingbirds and raccoons. Wildlife — including birds, small mammals, and even nonpoisonous reptiles — can become the most colorful part of next year's garden if you plan it right. The garden receptive to wildlife, says the National Wildlife Federation's new publication, "Gardening With Wildlife," will let you "claim your kinship with the creatures awaiting you outside your backdoor, for your sake as well as theirs." The book offers information on plants, food, water and nesting places that will attract wildlife. For additional information write National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Checks on RTA needed

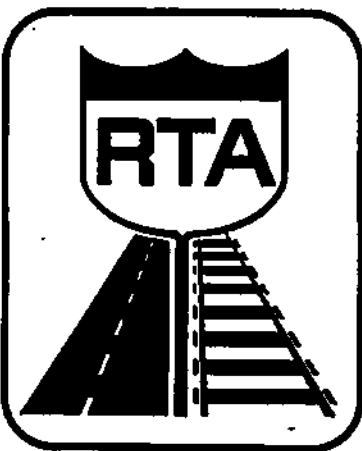

A new proposal by State Rep. Donald E. Deuster, R-Mundelein, that the governor be empowered to name the chairman of the Regional Transportation Authority makes good sense.

Deuster will introduce legislation in the 1975 session of the legislature which would authorize the governor to nominate the RTA chairman, who would then need approval by a three-fifths vote of the state Senate.

The Lake County legislator maintains that the people of the entire state are entitled to accountability from the RTA board because of vast amounts of state money that will be funneled to the Chicago-area transportation authority. We agree that Downstate residents should have a means of holding the governor responsible for the actions of an agency funded in part by them.

The inability of the eight-man RTA board to select a chairman, after nearly five months of political maneuvering, is further reason for the legislature to assure that further deadlocks do not cripple the board.

While being paid at the rate of $200 per working day, the RTA board has thus far been almost totally ineffective.

In addition to failing to hire a chairman — without whom they cannot exercise their full duties — the board members failed until now to exercise any of their limited powers.

Although the board has the power to grant emergency funds to financially troubled transportation agencies, the board allowed four suburban bus companies to slide to the brink of bankruptcy before taking any action.

The board has even refused to grant acting chairman Joseph Tecson of Riverside funds for secretarial help.

The RTA's paralysis is clearly attributable to the four-man Chicago contingent on the board, whose primary purpose, as forecast, appears to be the benefit of the Chicago Transit Authority, and appointment of its director, Milton Pikarsky, as chairman of the RTA.

Those appointees of Mayor Daley appear determined to use every lever they can to force suburban representatives on the board to accede to their demands, and the public, as usual, be damned.

We urge support for Deuster's legislation and we encourage the legislature to consider further checks on the RTA.

Should GOP become more liberal?

by ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Anyone who thinks the argument between the Republican left and right that started after the 1974 elections is just a family spat at the funeral ought to take another look at the corpse. "Talk dead."

What happened to the Republican party Nov. 5 did not require the services of an undertaker. While the loss of 40-plus House seats may have justified calling the Democratic victory a landslide, the Republicans came out of the elections with fewer losses in the Senate and statehouses than many independent observers and many Republicans expected.

By winning some new governorships, especially Ohio, and by holding statehouses and Senate seats where they were said to be in deep trouble — Michigan, Kansas, New York, for three — the GOP showed it remains a vital force in American politics.

But overlooking the mid-term election results is the fact that the Republican party holds the presidency. In terms of survival, occupancy of the White House can be the factor that wipes out all the bitter losses of 1974 and provides the opportunity to rebuild toward victory in 1978.

The key is Gerald R. Ford's conduct of the presidency, and that is what Republican conservatives and liberals have been arguing about since the dawn of Nov. 6.

Despite a congressional record that placed him to the right of center in the GOP, Ford has not positioned himself firmly in either ideological camp as President, and now both sides are interpreting the election returns in a way that they hope will give him a shove in their direction.

The liberal self-described "moderate" Republican Ripon Society issued an analysis of the election returns that concluded the GOP "will continue to thrive if its members insist upon nominating candidates whose appeal does not extend beyond the hard-core rank and file" of the party.

"It has long been manifest that Republicans have to nominate moderates or progressives if they want to win statewide office in the more populous states," a Ripon statement said.

As backup for its conclusion, the group said "30 of the 70 members of the arch-conservative Republican House 'Steering Committee' lost Nov. 5, while 'only one of the 32 members of the moderate Republican 'Wednesday Group' failed in reelection bids."

Ripon adds: "To blame the large losses of the GOP on Watergate alone obscures the fact that the victims of Watergate tended to be those congressmen who made no effort to broaden the base of their constituency."

The conservative response to the election is to deny that it was a liberal victory. Patrick J. Buchanan, former speechwriter in the Nixon White House and a staunch conservative, wrote that successful Democrats like Sen. George S. McGovern and Gary Hart campaigned in 1974 on conservative themes and that "the national trend remains to the right."

To Buchanan, the election Ford and other Republican leaders ought to be looking at is 1972, when he said the GOP gave voters "clear and compelling reasons" for supporting it.

And, he says, if the Republican party is "ever to forge a new coalition" of Americans opposed to liberal policies and programs "it must set aside the politics of 'conciliation, compromise, cooperation and consensus.'"

Ripon and Buchanan were making public statements. But the ear they were trying to catch was in the White House.

Bob Lahey's column

Mikva's slim victory boosts '76 challengers

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

Illinois' 10th Congressional District, scene of probably the nation's most expensive and closest congressional contests in the past two elections, could become the scene of a wild and woolly Republican primary election in little more than a year.

The Republican loss of the district — barring reversal of the Nov. 5 election by a recount — by freshman Rep. Samuel H. Young of Glenview presents a tempting opportunity for a number of hungry Republicans.

The 10th District, like the others in Illinois, is barely four years old, having been created by the state redistricting of 1970 (which actually wasn't completed until early 1972). It has yet to establish its character as a "safe district" for either of the major parties.

Won by Young in 1972 by a slim 52 per cent of the vote, it was claimed this year by Democrat Abner Mikva by an even slimmer 51 per cent.

That narrow margin is enough to bring water to the lips of aspiring congressional candidates of either party. But Mikva, being the man holding the office, probably will not face any serious primary challenge.

There is, of course, the possibility that Young will try for a second rematch with Mikva, and Mikva himself said privately before the election that if he won a narrow victory he expected to be running against Young again in 1976.

Just after the election, however, Young declared that if Mikva's thin victory margin stood up he would not run again.

There are probably some hard political realities behind that statement. No one who has witnessed the fervor with which Sam Young sought to win, execute and retain his position in Congress would presume that he would not wish fervently to regain it.

But the unavoidable fact is that he was the Republican who held the seat that now belongs to the Democrats. Apart from his own sweat and blood, something like a half a million dollars and the political ambitions of a number of other Republicans went out the window in the two congressional campaigns centered on Sam Young.

It will be difficult for him to either garner the necessary financial support, or to quell the cry of other Republican candidates that they deserve a shot at Congress now.

Financial support for Republicans in the 10th District, second richest in the nation, is with the exception of this past year usually not difficult to come by. For starters, it is the home district of insurance mogul W. Clement Stone and Daniel Terra, chairman of the United Republican Fund, both of whom have been heavy contributors to Young, though their largesse was curtailed in this year of Watergate.

Neither is the district short of Republican candidates. In fact, the North Shore fairly teems with political big names. Citing the district bordering Lake Michigan's shore as home have been such as former Gov. Richard Ogilvie, Attorney General William J. Scott, Sen. Charles Percy, Donald Rumsfeld, 12th District Rep. Philip M. Crane (not to mention Democratic Gov. Daniel Walker) and a host of others.

As there are a number of established political standouts in the district, so are there a plethora of Republicans anxious to add their names to the 10th District GOP "hall of fame."

With Sam Young's defeat hardly two weeks old, there is already talk of nearly a dozen possible candidates to attempt to unseat Mikva in 1976.

Just for starters: state Sen. Bradley M. Glass of Northfield; state representatives Brinn Duff of Wilmette and John Porter of Evanston; state Sen. John Nimrod of Skokie; and Wayne Andersen of Des Plaines, a recently defeated but politically impressive candidate for Cook County treasurer.

There will be more.

SAMUEL YOUNG

Village spending ripped

An open letter to the citizens of Moneyville (formerly Mount Prospect):

Why are we sitting back and letting our village officials under the new home rule commit an atrocity of gross capital expenditure without referendum. Inflation, deflation, depression and recession — with the high cost of land, building materials, and construction costs, it's a crime to destroy a building of such quality construction as the Central School building.

How much longer are we going to stand idly by and let our elected village officials wantonly spend our tax dollars to further their own ambitions? Maybe the question should be, 'how much can we afford to get ripped off?'

The elected village officials want to purchase the present Mount Prospect State Bank building and related properties so that they can have plush spacious offices to the tune of $800,000 of your money. The Mount Prospect library board, also elected, want to build a new library, an edifice of such grandeur that it will be the envy of all suburbia for the low, low figure of only $3.2 million of your tax dollars. How much more tax money will it require to furnish and stock this magnificent blunder? We are led to believe that an addition to the present library is impractical, that the present village hall is too small for our elected village officials to move about in; well, maybe so, but we believe that land acquisitions contemplated such as the Mount Prospect State Bank building, the bank data center at Busse and Main, the Central School property, the residential block east of Central School, is too much land to move about on. What happens to the present village hall and the building owned by the village next to the village hall?

Let's put some of this prime property back on the tax rolls so that the taxpayers can have some tax relief.

A few years ago, an elected school board for Dist. 57 went against the results of two referendums and the Central School was abandoned making all these pipe dreams possible. The taxpayers' voice was again trampled into the ground by political power. Don't let this happen again, speak out and be loud enough so that your voice will be heard — or pay.

This village has a total bonding power of $11 million. $2 million already spent for flood control; $4 million to be spent for a library and village offices, that's $6 million. What's left? — That's right, the price of Rob Roy Country Club. This quiet, sleepy bedroom community is still in the bedroom — wake up.

Field sought

As a concerned parent I would like to add my opinion to Jim Kelly's article, which appeared in this column on Oct. 23. I'd like to thank Mr. Kelly for his concern with the activities of our youth.

I am a parent of one of the senior football players and I have been to every game for the past two seasons. I have seen these boys play on a beautiful football field; but this year they are not only playing on a baseball diamond, but on their old football field now stands an outdoor tennis court that probably won't be in use until spring. I would like to ask the park district board why the tennis courts could not have been 1) placed elsewhere in the park; and 2) why a new football field wasn't created before the tennis courts were started.

I thank the park district for offering an active and reasonably safe sport, and keeping about 350 third thru eighth grade boys off the streets, and letting them play the sport they love. The problem I am most concerned with is the boys' lack of a competitive sport. While the park district offers this sport, they don't bother to make up rules for all to follow. The boys were not weighed and distributed on teams evenly, leaving some power packed teams to play against some very undersized teams, thus eliminating a chance for every boy to compete fairly.

I hope the park district in the future will improve this great sport and from the many disgusted parents I have talked with, I am sure the parents will offer their help in setting up a better program. In closing I would like to express my sincere thanks to the fathers who gave up their free evenings and weekends to coach our boys.

College recommendation letters a headache

Finding pupil records can be mystery

by WANDALYN RICE

Colleges that get letters of recommendation for students before admitting them to school are finding those letters one of the biggest headaches in complying with a new federal law allowing students access to all their files.

Officials at several colleges and universities said Wednesday they have taken a variety of steps to keep the letters of recommendations private, from simply refusing students access to them to destroying them.

Officials at Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, for example, have said confidential student files compiled before this week will remain confidential, but pledge their desire to "have an open campus with regard to records."

THE LAW, WHICH went into effect this week, guarantees students access to all files and prohibits schools from releasing information on students without their permission. The law requires that a school respond within 45 days to any student request to inspect files.

On the sticky problem of the letters of recommendation, which almost always include a guarantee to the writer of anonymity, officials at the University of Illinois in Urbana have taken a different approach from that at NIU.

At Urbana, officials there said, letters of recommendation have been temporarily removed from files and will be kept separate from individual files until the university officials decide whether to ask the writers for permission to show them to students or to destroy them.

OFFICIALS AT Northwestern University in Evanston disposed of the problem of recommendation letters written about students before they were admitted to the school very simply, said Roger Campbell, director of the admissions office. "We decided that the file we develop before a student is admitted is not important once he is admitted, so we destroyed all our preadmission files within the last two weeks," he said.

Campbell said disposing of the files "was a massive relief" and added that a student's files compiled once he is in school can be requested from the registrar's office.

"Those files aren't very exciting because the students generally know what's in there," he said.

A student at the University of Illinois may end up waiting the full 45 days allowed by law before seeing his records because of the problem of finding files, said university spokesman Fred Mohr. "We have no central student file," he said, "Each student may have up to 12 files on the campus. We have told students to go to an initial office, identify what he wants and we'll help him get access to it."

LOCAL COMMUNITY college officials said they anticipate no problem in complying with the law, but will refer their present policies to their attorneys for review. John Donahue, vice president of Oakton Community College in Morton Grove, said, "Students have always had the right to inspect their files and we've always had a policy of keeping student records confidential unless we get student permission."

On the East Coast, both Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology have said they will not let students see their confidential files until the law is clarified by the U. S. Office of Education or Congress. In both those cases, the problem cited was also the question of letters of recommendation written with a guarantee of confidentiality.

FINALISTS WILL BE judged on physical fitness, poise, appearance and talent. Flute, organ, piano and accordion solos will be staged in separate presentations along with several dance routines, art demonstrations and singing acts.

...How you dress is important

If you oversee the Big 10...

Who'll win the Ohio State-Michigan game Saturday?

Ask a dozen football fans and you just might get a split decision. The Big Ten's annual blockbuster game is too close to call.

There's one prediction that can be made — Wayne Duke won't be mistaken for a graduate of either institution.

Earlier this week in the Big Ten Conference's new suite of offices in Schaumburg, Commissioner Duke recalled one of the problems his position presents. When he was heading up the Big Eight, he once went to Missouri for a game with Nebraska.

Now Nebraska's known as the "Big Red" — the predominant school color. Every loyal Cornhusker fan wears something red to the games.

Well, you can imagine what was going through Wayne's mind when a Nebraska fan said to his daughter, then only seven, "What part of Nebraska are you from, little girl?"

Sarah, quite innocently, had worn a red dress to the game.

Since sensitive fans know no conference boundaries, you'll never see Wayne Duke wearing Ohio scarlet and grey or Michigan blue and gold this weekend in Columbus.

Something in a nice neutral tweed should get Wayne past the battle lines without offending anyone. However, hidden under his left sleeve he'll probably be wearing something that has a color of both schools — red and gold. It's his Rose Bowl watch. He proudly showed off this treasured timepiece while telling how he got it.

You might say the gift was another way of welcoming Wayne to the Big Ten. Back in September of 1971, he became only the fourth commissioner in the league's proud history.

Several months later while with the Michigan football team at the Rose Bowl, the team presented the wristwatch to him. Duke said they did it so he'd stop wearing the Orange Bowl watch that he received while he was with the rival conference.

Wayne, who lives in Barrington, was born and raised in Burlington, Iowa. As a youngster, he had hopes of being a coach someday. A leg injury in a pickup football game helped change his mind.

Although his stocky build might indicate that he played tackle for the University of Iowa, the closest he came to sports while there was as a writer.

Several sports information director jobs and an 11-year position with the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) helped prepare him for his big move in 1963. He became the Big Eight's second commissioner of athletics.

Soon after coming to the Big Ten, a rarely occurred in the national football polls — Nebraska, Oklahoma and Colorado were ranked 1-2-3! Still, despite the many close ties he has with that conference, he's very happy in his present job.

Even after the difficult week he put through earlier this month, Wayne hasn't longed for the Big Eight. You might say it began on a happy note as he celebrated his 40th birthday on Nov. 9. But that same Saturday, the incidents in two games led to reprimands for two football coaches.

Wayne was attending the Michigan State game when the Spartans upset the No. 1 ranked Ohio Staters in a wild finish. Woody Hayes, Ohio's tempestuous head coach, blamed the officials for "blowing the game." The replay proved otherwise.

Duke had to impose the league's new sportsmanship code against Woody. Several days later, he had to do the same to Bob Blackman of Illinois. Blackman claimed the game films showed an official cost the Illini a touchdown and a chance to tie Michigan.

The commissioner couldn't comment on the reprimands. He was just following one of the 10 major duties of his office.

Wayne Duke has shown to have plenty of strength in dealing with several tough situations during his tenure. He describes his personality as being "very mild mannered." He adds that he's slow to anger, "but my kids probably don't think that!"

Duke's goal — past, present and future — has revolved around what he likes to refer to as the "conference concept."

"The greatest satisfaction one experiences as a conference commissioner is emphasized when individuals and institutions work together for a common goal," says Duke, "shedding individual or institutional desires and substituting a conference objective as a goal."

"There have been situations in the past three years where, quite possibly, this was not the case."

Although he didn't cite examples, the furor that came about after the Ohio-Michigan 10-10 tie just about a year ago might qualify. Since both teams were undefeated, the Big Ten athletic directors had to vote to determine which one would go to the Rose Bowl. Ohio got the nod, six votes to four.

Schembechler, Michigan's volatile head coach, erupted, claiming Duke "engineered" the vote. Only this week, according to a Detroit paper, was it revealed that Bo was given a two-year probation by the Big Ten for his outburst.

Wayne's hoping that this Saturday's title fight won't have such a traumatic outcome.

Prior to the game, he'll go through a ritual he's been following for years. When the band takes the field, he'll be on top the press box roof by himself, enjoying the music.

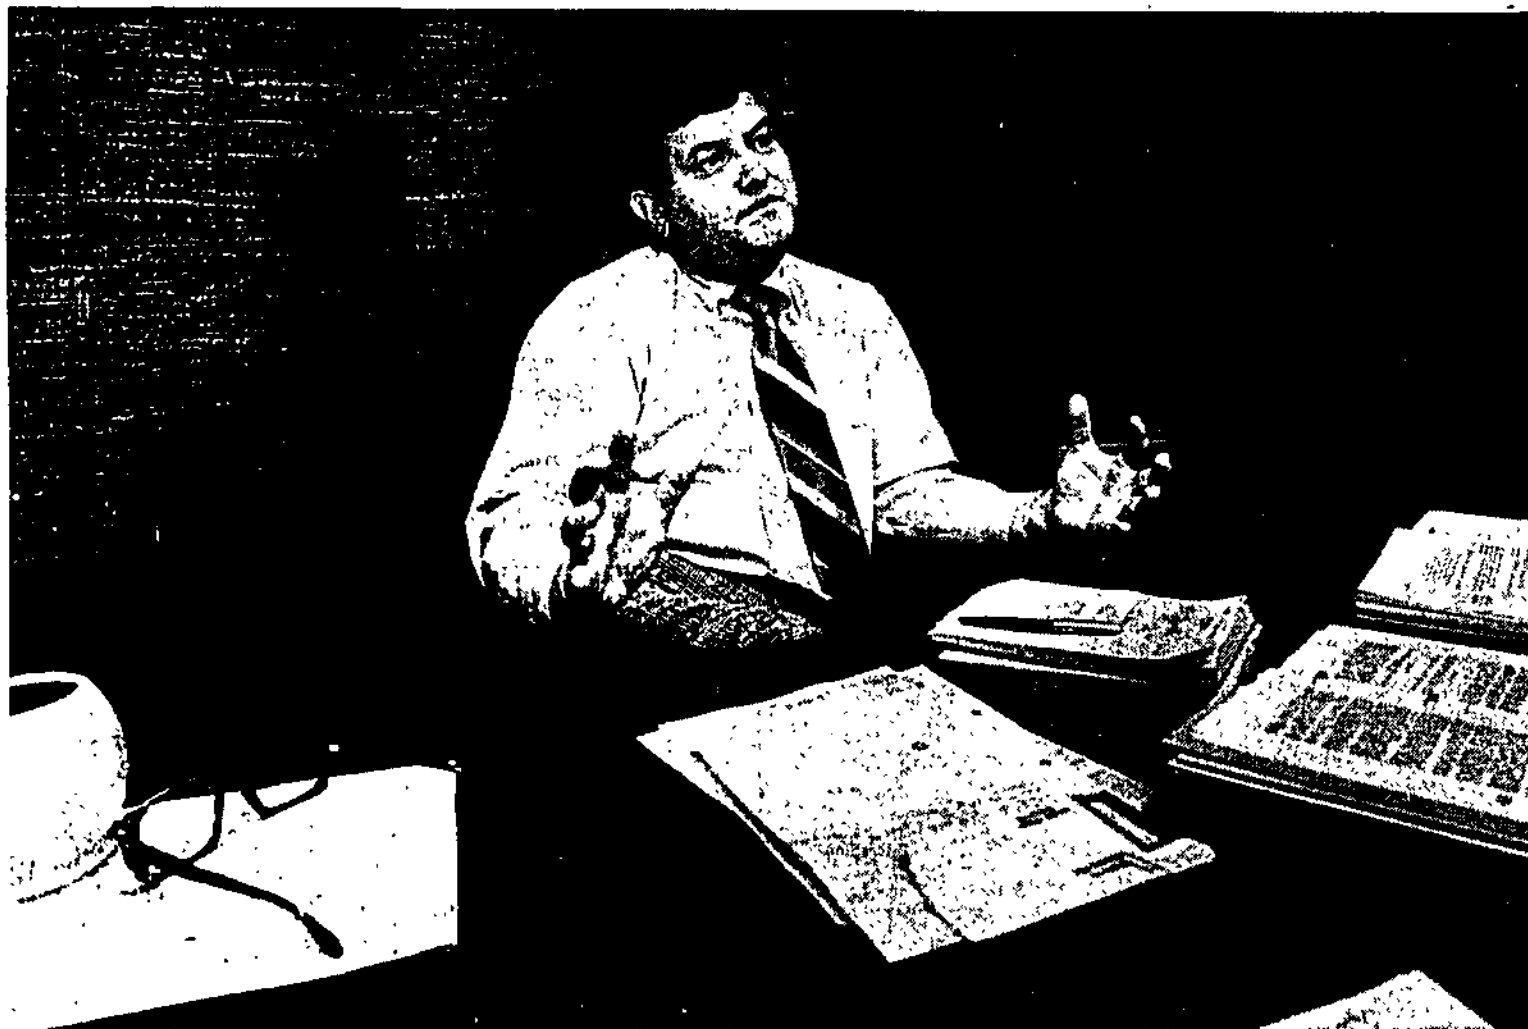

"I never fail to get a thrill," he says of his pre-game rite. "If I ever lose it, I won't be in this business anymore."

With that kind of refreshing attitude, the Woody Hayes and Bo Schembechlers of the Big Ten are in good hands... despite what they might say to the contrary.

EVENTS DURING the past month involving football coaches Woody Hayes and Bob Blackman have given Wayne Duke, the Big 10's commissioner, pause for reflection. Despite such problems, this Barrington resident loves his job. The Big 10 headquarters is now in Schaumburg next to Woodfield Shopping Center.

WAYNE DUKE, commissioner of the Big 10, is just getting used to his spacious office. The league headquarters was moved to Schaumburg (next to Woodfield) recently from downtown Chicago. Duke and his staff are very happy to be a part of this fast-growing suburban community.

Tipoff time arrives for preps; busy weekend in basketball play a Herald Staff Report

Athletic action in the Herald area will move indoors this weekend when a lucky number of 13 high school basketball teams get the ball rolling for the 1974-75 season.

Fueled by Hersey's appearance at Champaign last year in the state tournament, hopes are running high for a repeat performance by a local team again this year.

Here's how coaches from Hersey, Wheeling, Rolling Meadows, Buffalo Grove and Maine East view the upcoming campaign.

Teams from Prospect, Schaumburg, Palatine, Elk Grove, Maine West, Hoffman Estates, St. Victor and Arlington will be previewed in Friday's Herald sports section.

HERSEY AT CRYSTAL LAKE

Hersey's last basketball game was played at Champaign's Assembly Hall in March and their next game will be Friday in Crystal Lake. A lot has happened in those eight months.

To begin with, last year's Elite Eight Huskies lost 6-foot-11 senior center Dave Corrine, the driving force behind Hersey's regional, sectional, and super-sectional victories.

Also graduated from that group of championship athletes were Mark Krause, Tom Vetta, and Bill Sellar. To make matters worse, hot-shooting guard Tim Conard moved with his family to New Orleans. The valuable senior is Louisiana's gain and Hersey's loss.

Now the Huskies must start practically from scratch. Last year's Cinderella team in the state tourney will go into the new season with three starters who are untested at the varsity level.

"This will be the first year we've played without the big man," said Hersey head man Roger Steingraber, who coached 6-6 Andy Pancratz for four varsity seasons before Corrine.

"Our team speed is slow — we have no one who can get out and move," Steingraber added. "And we've lost our good shooter. Those three factors combined will hurt us."

Steingraber pins his hopes on a pair of returning starters and a traditional Huskie attitude of work and more work.

Clyde Glass, a 6-5 junior, was a key factor on last year's team. He will start at forward along with 6-5 pivotman Rich Madison, who comes back with two years of varsity experience.

"We've put in a lot of work this year," said the coach. "We've stressed rebounding and defense and the kids know that if they play good, sound fundamentals, we'll be in a lot of ball games."

Other starters in Friday's opener will be junior Steve Spaccarelli, a 6-1 forward, and guards Mark Knutiel (5-10) and John Wozniak (6-3).

"A lot of people expect us to get our knicks this year," Steingraber concluded, "but I think we'll surprise some people, too."

BARRINGTON AT WHEELING

Inexperienced.

That, in a word, sums up Wheeling's plight as they prepare to launch their basketball season by hosting Barrington tomorrow evening.

It may turn out to be the only woe — and a short-lived one at that — for coach Ted Ecker, however. What the Wildcats lack in varsity exposure appears to be more than compensated for by size, strength and scoring potential.

"Our lack of experience will be a determining factor early in the season but I'm optimistic about our chances over the long haul," Ecker pointed out. "The potential is here to develop into a good ball club."

Wheeling graduated the entire starting lineup that forged a 19-7 record last winter and advanced to sectional play. There are, in fact, only two returnees with any playing time under their belts at all and they saw only limited action in 73-74.

'Valid reasons' for changes in bowl structure

by PAUL LOGAN

If recent tradition holds up, the home team — this time Ohio State — will win Saturday in the Big Ten matchup with Michigan.

Depending on the vote of the athletic directors, either Ohio or Michigan will go to the Rose Bowl. In any case, one of these fine teams (both would have 10-1 records if Ohio wins) would have to stay at home and watch the post-season bowl games on television.

This happened last year when Michigan went nowhere with a 10-0-1 record and the year before when the Wolverines were 10-1-0.

"There's more sentiment at this time than at any other," said Wayne Duke — the Big Ten's commissioner — in regard to relaxing the rules prohibiting the league from sending more than one team to a bowl. "And there are very valid reasons for doing so."

Duke listed a handful of reasons that are pushed by the proponents of change:

- There's no question a Big 10 team would be invited to another bowl (Duke said the Orange and Sugar bowls along with two others expressed interest.)

- Playing elsewhere would enhance league prestige.

- It would help recruiting (the Big Eight and Southeast Conference capture top players by reminding them that they've only got one chance in 10 of making it to a bowl game with the Big 10, but with them there are several chances).

- Teams would be much more competitive if they had this as an incentive.

- It would provide a rallying point for students, faculty and alumni.

- Regular season attendance would stay high because people want to see a bowl contender, thus helping a school financially.

- Revenue from a bowl appearance would also be gained.

Opponents give these reasons for keeping just one bowl game:

- The Rose Bowl is the most envied of the post-season affairs because of its prestige and its lucrativeness. In 1971, five Big Eight teams went to bowls, but the Rose Bowl surpassed the fiveosome's money total by a half million dollars.

- Allowing the runner-ups in both the Big 10 and the Pacific Coast Conference to go to other bowls could mean a loss of revenue, according to the Rose Bowl committee. Duke cited an example: If Washington State won the Pac-8 title with Southern California finishing second, the latter might go to the Orange Bowl. This would hurt the Rose Bowl's attendance (it's located in the southern part of the state) and also publicity (the Los Angeles media would be forced to attend both games, cutting the coverage in half).

- The Rose Bowl committee fears a dilution of the large television contract. NBC knows each year it will have guaranteed corner on the market in the Midwest and west coast each year. That's a huge viewing area which it wouldn't want to share with other networks.

- Finally, opponents contend that additional revenue for the conference wouldn't be much if another school went to a bowl. Duke estimated that it costs approximately $250,000 to send a team (to train in a warmer climate prior to the game), its band and the official party.

The most lucrative bowl other than the Rose is the Orange — around $600,000. That would bring about $30,000 to each school (the Big 10 office receives one share, too.) Each of the teams realized $100,000 from last year's Rose Bowl.

In a Big 10 meeting next month, the bowl subject will be brought up again. Maybe something can be worked about among the two conferences and the Rose Bowl Committee that will make everybody a little happier, according to Duke.

MSC girls debut in volleyball tonight

Twelve volleyball teams will be in action tonight as the Mid-Suburban Conference debuts. All meets begin at 5:30.

Defending champion Schaumburg will host a highly touted Arlington team in the league headliner. Also meeting will be Wheeling at Hoffman Estates, Conant at Fremd, Buffalo Grove at Forest View and Rolling Meadows at Hersey. Elk Grove has a bye.

Besides the annual conference showdown between the North and the South champs, the girls will have something else to shoot for — a state championship in January.

New faces fill coaching ranks in area wrestling

It used to be you couldn't tell your players without a scorecard.

Along the local wrestling circuits this season the situation could be even more troublesome over the first couple of weeks. It would be a case of not knowing exactly who the coaches are.

Through transition, there will be five new head grappling mentors on the area scene and yet another will be moving up to the varsity ranks as his school matures. That amounts to a half dozen coaches taking over mat helms this winter, including one who is coming back for a second try.

Down the line, the sentiments of the new coaches reflect the challenges that await them... along with a lot of hard work in most cases. There is also a common ring of enthusiasm, which is a sign that the reputation the Northwest suburbs has earned for excellence in wrestling will be maintained.

At Harper, veteran coach Norm Lovelace assumes the reins held for a number of years by Ron Bessemer. Bessemer has taken over another junior college head wrestling post in Michigan.

The new St. Viator pilot will be John Wendell, replacing John Zid, who has moved to Missouri. Elk Grove's wrestling program is to be directed by Bob Straub, taking over for John Moore who has gone to Florida.

Retirement is elevating two more young men to the head coaching ranks. Rich Pietrini has moved up to Palatine, replacing Bob Sonnenman, and Jim Cartwright steps in for Merv Miller at Conant.

And with Hoffman Estates achieving varsity status in wrestling for the first time this winter, Hawk head man Angelo Testone is also welcomed to list. The school will only be three classes strong this year but will wrestle a full four-level slate including conference combat down the line in the Mid-Suburban League.

Here are thumbnail sketches on each of the new faces among the head coaching lineup:

• No stranger to the area, Lovelace has been coaching football at Elk Grove the past six years and was the head Grenadier mat coach for three seasons prior to Moore. A native of Pekin where he was a wrestling and football standout in high school, Norm went on to Western Illinois for his degree, captained the mat team there, was a conference MVP and earned national honors. He was then a frosh football and assistant wrestling mentor for one year at Indiana State before coming to Elk Grove.

Even while departing from coaching for several years, he never really left wrestling, working with summer programs during that period. Married, with two daughters, Lovelace makes his home now in Bloomington.

• Wendell is also a Western Illinois grad and he stayed on there as an assistant for a year before coming to St. Viator two seasons ago to assume assistant grid and mat duties.

John prepped at St. Viator too, excelling in football and wrestling programs there for four years. Single, he now lives in Rolling Meadows.

• Now in his fifth year at Elk Grove, Straub previously headed up Jayvees and frosh mat teams. He prepped at Fenton, played football and wrestled and earned a Tri-County conference grappling title there but a pinched nerve cut short his playing career before he went on to college at Northern Illinois.

Bob still lives in Wood Dale, is now married and has one daughter.

• For Pietrini, the road started at East Leyden, where he was one of the countless fine products turned out by veteran mat helmsman Chuck Farina. Rich moved on to Wright Junior College and then graduated from Illinois State.

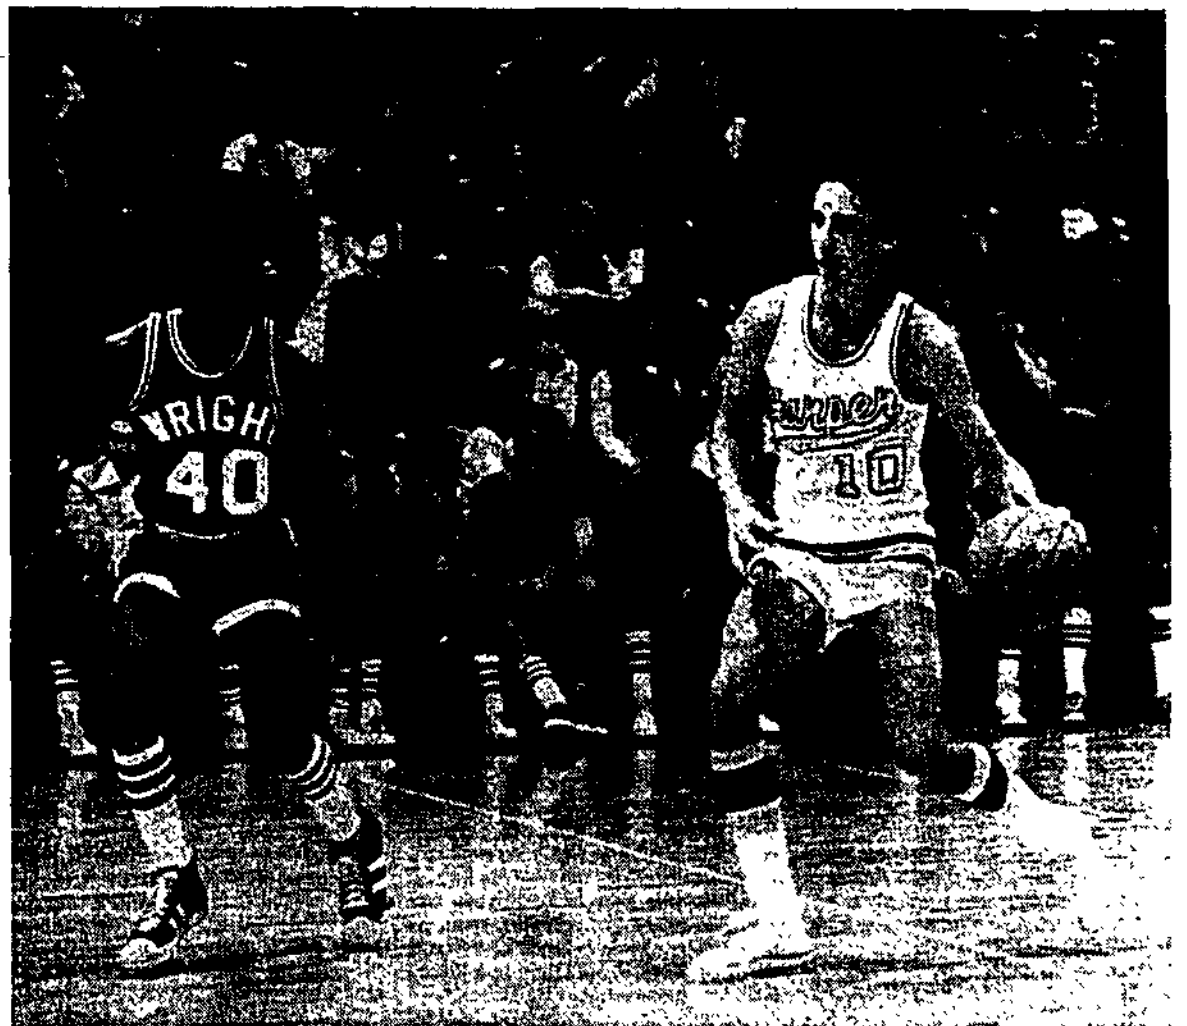

He was introduced to coaching while teaching elementary school in Sycamore, helping out the high school team there. He then went to Palatine for one season, directing the JV's to an 8-3 mark, moved over to Fremd and guided their JV unit to a 10-5 record. He returned to head up the Pirate soph last winter where the unit finished with an impressive 20-0 slate. Married, Pietrini now lives in Des Plaines.

• Cartwright is also an East Leyden alumni. From Franklin Park, where he also quarterbacked the Eagle football team, he pursued his wrestling career at Illinois State and came to Conant directly after graduation two years ago.

Jim's Cougar soph team last year annexed their division title. He is married and lives in Hoffman Estates.

• The new coach whose travels have taken him the farthest is Testone, a native of Brindisi, Italy. His big sport was soccer until his teenage years.

Angie only came to America in 1961 but took little time catching up with the natives. After prepping and starring in wrestling at East Aurora, he went to Western Illinois and stayed on as a grad assistant there while earning his Masters Degree. He coached one year at Schaumburg before earning the top mat job at the new Hoffman school and last season directed the Hawks on the soph level. He and his wife and one daughter also reside in Hoffman Estates.

JIMMY HOUSE (40) of Wright shot Harper out of their zone defense during the Rams' 79-60 opening win Tuesday night at St. Viator. Here he pressures Hawk guard Mike Miller, who added eight points to the Hawk totals.

Buffalo Grove boys football

BUFFALO GROVE BOYS FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION

The Buffalo Grove Wiganet Americans ended their successful 1974 season Sunday with a 26-7 victory over Wiganet Division South League power Glenide Hawks. It was also announced Sunday that Buffalo Grove High School head coach Grant Blaney will be the guest speaker at the upcoming football awards dinner to be held Saturday night, Nov. 23rd at Buffalo Bill's. The four association teams will be honored at the awards dinner. The Bills and Steelers finished first and second respectively in the Senior League. The Americans won first place honors in the Wiganet League. And the Pee-Wee Falcons topped a field of six teams to capture the championship of the Pee-Wee League.

Americans 21, Glenide Hawks 7
The Buffalo Grove Americans made believers out of the Glenide Hawks Sunday proving to the South Division power just how good the champion Americans were in the North. The Americans, behind the three TD efforts of running back Dom Tufano, overwhelmed the Hawks, 26-7, at the lower field. Linebacker Mike Chulick, playing his first game of the year, led the Americans defensive unit with 18 tackles. As a unit, BG held the Hawks to a combined offensive total of 67 yards. The game also enabled American center Mark Kiraly to score his first career TD.

On a third and seven from the Hawk 11, halfback Bob Maro was hit by three Glenide defenders at the two and lost the ball. Kiraly fell on the platoon which had rolled into the end zone and thus produced the American first points. Halfback sensation Dom Tufano added three more TD's to his amazing season total of 37 and closed out his junior football career with a record shattering 40 TD's. Tufano scored on runs of 18, 26, and 45 yards. Linebacker Jimmy Burnett set-up Tufano's third TD when he recovered a Hawk fumble at his own 42. BG was devastating offensively. The Americans ran up 224 yards rushing on the strength of 16 first downs.

Busy weekend ahead for high school basketball teams

Mike Brzuszkiewicz is one of those lettermen back on the scene. The sixth man in the Wildcat attack last year, this 6-4 1/2 football standout will see a great deal more combat this season at one of the starting forward posts.

The other vet is 6-1 Mike Halkstrom, a backup guard a year ago who will now be possibly stepping in to run the 'Cat offense.

For size, Ecker can build his front line around Steve Criss, a 6-10 senior who only began playing basketball in earnest last season with the Jayvee squad and has been improving rapidly ever since. Also figuring strong in the mentor's plan are Keith Schlick, a 6-6 junior, 6-4 1/2 Ed Kruk and 5-9 Steve Rymer, who is currently battling Hallstrom for the playmaker role.

Other names to watch for on the 'Cat squad are forward Alan Lyne, guard Dave Peterson and Karl Krueger, a 6-3 junior.

The Broncos will be looking for vengeance after last season's 78-38 spanking by Wheeling but haven't had an awful lot of time to regroup from football season, which ended only last weekend with their state playoff loss to Rockford East.

STEVENSON AT ROLLING MEADOWS
For the first time in a long time, Rolling Meadows head coach Ken Arneson is being dwarfed in basketball practice and he doesn't mind it a bit.

"For the first time since 1966, I'm working with a kid that's bigger than 6-foot-3," Arneson rejoiced. "Believe me, it's been a long time coming."

Breaking the size barrier at Meadows is versatile 6-8, 220-pound junior Bill Kiley who appeared in one game last year on the varsity and promptly dumped in 16 points in two and one-half quarters.

"Kiley had knee surgery performed in the off-season, so he's a little slow getting started," Arneson explained, "but just his presence on the court makes us a better team."

Arneson also has experience in his lineup in two-year lettermen co-captains Steve Breitbell (6-4) and John Hogan (6-0) plus 6-5 Tom Holl and 6-3 Scott Green — all of whom started at one time or another last year.

Providing valuable depth will be 6-0 Dick Block, 6-4 1/2 Jerry McGill, 5-9 Noe Nunez, 6-2 Dave Bell and Mike Sidor.

"I think we have the talent to look forward to our first winning season here," Arneson said. "We're going to be very much improved."

Breitbell will enter the season opener with a string of 31 consecutive free throws Friday when the Mustangs host Stevenson at 8 p.m.

PALATINE AT MAINE EAST
Increased rebounding with a stronger big man who leaps higher than a scared cat. Four players entering at least their second varsity season. Returnees at both guards and one forward. Plus the addition of a smooth shooting junior.

All of that casts an optimistic spell over Maine East basketball and finds coach Paul McClelland (Fifth year, 45-54) saying East will threaten for the Central Suburban North title.

"New Trier West rates the early favorite because they've got strong personnel at all positions, but Maine East will be a contender," insisted McClelland whose Demons host Palatine at 8 p.m., Friday.

The big center is 6-foot-5, 205-pounder Derrick Brown, a three-year varsity starter at Maine North. He transferred to East midway during last season and played enough to letter.

"An important part of our team will be having a player like Derrick inside to provide control on the boards and clog up the lane defensively," McClelland said.

"We haven't had superior rebounding ability since Mark Bondeson (1972 Special mention All-Stater) and that group left. Derrick's just as good a jumper and Bondeson could really leap."

Brown's 16 rebounds and 12 points led East's White to a 46-30 intrasquad victory over the reserve-laden Blue in last week's public preview. The game lasted just three periods.

"That's the best I've ever seen him play," McClelland said. "If he goes like that against everybody else, then we're in business."

There's a much improved supporting cast to fit around Brown. Four senior starters already have six years experience, Brown leading with three.

Lettermen from last year's 9-15 campaign include forward Mark Berns and shooting guard Mark Mahoney. Charlie Sellergren emerged as East's playmaker at the midway point and reassumes those duties now.

Lone newcomer among the first five is junior forward Len Fakke who spreads 160 pounds over a 6-4 frame. "He's got a very quick release, but we've got to teach Len how to move without the ball and play more aggressive defense," said McClelland.

The Demons ought to be more versatile this season. They have more ability to attack and defend. Which has McClelland hoping for his first winning season.

CARY GROVE AT BUFFALO GROVE

Growing pains.

That's what Buffalo Grove's basketball squad suffered through last season and coach Paul Grady expects more of the same (although not as severe) as his team moves closer to maturity in 1974-75.

The Bison launch their second year of varsity cage action by entertaining Cary Grove tomorrow night. They'll follow it up with a contest at Stevenson Saturday and then collide with Carmel, Mundelein and Warren in that order next Wednesday, Friday and Saturday in a Thanksgiving tourney hosted by the Mustangs.

"Those five games over a nine-day span should give us a little better idea of our capabilities," Grady pointed out. "Right now I'd have to say we're vastly improved over last season but it's difficult evaluating with regard to other teams."

The difficulty arises from the fact that his seniorless squad posted a 3-19 mark last winter, taking a lot of heavy beatings along the way.

Additionally, while the Grove is a year older, their roster will still probably stand as the most youthful in the area. Led by 6-7 sophomore forward Brian Allsmiller, the probable starting lineup Friday will also feature 5-8 sophomore guard Mike Ledna, 6-5 junior pivotman Tim Stonerook and 6-3 senior forward Tom Stonerook, fresh from an outstanding football campaign.

The fifth slot is up for grabs with 5-11 soph Bob Butts possibly owning the inside edge. His appearance at the opening jump would make it a team of three sophs, one junior and only one four-year player.

Others shooting for that second guard berth are 5-10 soph Scott Groot, 5-11 senior Jim McGowan and 6-1 junior Jeff Schuster. Rounding out the team are seniors Jeff Rosensweig (6-3), Ted Steffens (6-5) and junior George Bastable (5-11).

All except Butts, Groot and Steffens were with the varsity last year. "We're going to be better this season, no question about it, but how much better remains to be seen," Grady summarized.

St. Viator holds off Arlington for swim win

by MIKE KLEIN
Swimming Editor

Five races were tight necked at six-tenths of one second or less, including the 400 freestyle relay final event, as St. Viator overcame Arlington's late charge to win, 89-80, in non-league varsity swimming Tuesday at Olympic pool.

Closest of all found Viator's Mark Nelles edging Cardinal Rob Carstens in the 100 backstroke. Nelles swam 1:00.22 and Carstens 1:00.28.

In late action, the victorious Lions held an uncatchable 85-70 margin before the 400 free relay. Had Arlington swept first and second place points, the Lions would have won anyhow, 87-82.

But the Cards and Lions made the last relay a thriller, not decided until Arlington's Joe Nitch pulled ahead of Jon Newcomer on the final turn.

Through 300 yards, Card swimmers Dan Stubing, Tony Hahn and Carl Nowack were dead even with Viator's Mark Markwell, Paul Langlois and Doug Peonaki.

Here's when Nitch and Newcomer took over. Even for 50 yards, Newcomer swam into the lane divider on his third lap and lost precious time to Nitch on the final turn.

The Cardinals won in 3:37.2. Viator just behind at 3:37.8 to receive four runner-up points. The winning relay team earned eight. Doxon O'Brien, Steve Nitch, Jeff Zawadzki and Bob Buechner added two third place points for Arlington. They swam 3:49.3.

Earlier, Viator's Nelles gained his first individual win with 2:13.2 in 200 individual medley, nudging teammate Steve Rogers' 2:13.6. Lion swimmers also claimed one-two in 100 butterfly, Dan Peonaki the winner in 58.7 as Newcomer touched the side two-tenths behind.

Those were important combinations for the Lions because they forfeited all 13 diving points to Arlington, Glen Seaman the winner.

Arlington's Kiernan Mack bested Viator's Mark Rusche by six-tenths to win 100 breaststroke. Mack swam 1:07.8.

Joe Nitch won twice for the Cardinals, taking the 500 freestyle in 5:00.5 and 200 free in 1:52.0. Nitch was unbeatable in the longer distance with a 20-second victory. But Viator's Newcomer gave him a battle in 200, losing by five seconds.

Sophomore Mark Rohl won both shorter freestyles for Viator, taking the 50 in 23.5 seconds and 100 in 51.8.

Rusche and Rohl plus Peonaki brothers Doug and Dan swam a winning 1:47.8 in 200 medley relay to establish a new sophomore school record for the Lions.

Arlington won junior-varsity competition, 103-65.

Basketball tips

by WALT FRAZIER & IRA BERKOW
Fifth in a series

Head up. You should not have to look at the ball. The feel should be comfortable. It should be sure, like scratching your nose in the dark.

Use fingertips, not your palm. Dribblers that kids should watch are Oscar Robertson and Jerry West. But kids don't like their dribbling style too much because it's fundamental. Kids prefer to copy someone who is tricky with the ball. Like we used to say in high school, this guy can really tap the ball.

Now, a Robertson never goes behind his back, but he's a complete player, with straight fundamentals. He does everything like it should be done. But kids want to pattern after a Monroe with a spin or Clark with a crossover dribble, or even myself with a behind-the-back dribble.

This is what kids like. They'll be trying to go between their legs before they can go forward.

The reason Oscar is so great is that he's dependable. He always has control of the ball in a key situation. He won't lose the ball, whereas with some others it's a gamble because their dribbling is shaky. They make fantastic plays but they might kick the ball away or throw it away.

Learn to dribble with either hand. Most kids can dribble right if they're righty and left if they're lefty, but they don't try to develop their weaker hand. Like making layups right-handed and left-handed. They hate to use the other hand. If you only go one way, you'll be dead if the guy guarding you is not blind and doesn't have three feet. But the only way to acquire that skill is to practice.

When the man is guarding you, you should protect the ball with your body while dribbling. Keep your body between him and the ball.

At Fair Lanes Bowl

Neptune again took both team game and singles in Thor's Thunderbushers league at Fair Lanes bowl in Rolling Meadows, with scores of 182 and 201 respectively. High games were thrown by Carol Sheahan 174, Lois Graham 172-161, Fran Drabent 161, Nancy Luardo 163, and Connie DeBock 162. Eleanor Hanneman picked up the 4-10 split.

At Elk Grove Bowl

Don Kay's sparkling 645 series led his Charlie Brown's All-Stars into third place in the Sunday Night Mixed Wholly Bowlers League. . . . Sue Kaiser rolled a 573 series and helped her team keep pace with the Over-the-Hill Gang, setting up their head-on clash for first place in the next meeting. . . . Lou Lavan rolled a 336 series, 80 pins over her average, including the pickup of the "impossible" 4-6 split. . . . Lou's series helped her Fighting Irish team move up in the standings.

Group gives Harper $1,000 memorial gift

A gift of $1,000 has been presented to the Harper College Educational Foundation by the Chicago Chapter 14 of the American Production and Inventory Control Society.

The grant is a memorial to the late William J. Deevy, past chairman of education and research for the chapter, and is to be used to purchase publications in the field of production and inventory control.

Deevy was one of two men from the Chicago chapter who began meeting with Harper administrators in 1972 to encourage and assist in the development of a material management career program. The program began this fall.

THE COLLECTION OF publications purchased by the grant will include current books and periodicals, and will be located in the college library. A label in the books and periodicals noting the donor organization will include the statement: "In memory of the late William J. Deevy, past chairman of Education and Research, whose efforts and contributions to establish educational opportunities in the fields of production and inventory control were deeply appreciated."

Deevy was an Arlington Heights resident. Since 1967 he had been director of systems and procedures at Motorola Communications Division in Schaumburg. Prior to employment at Motorola, he had worked as a general management consultant.

Harper's Educational Foundation, a not-for-profit corporation, was formed in 1973. Gifts and grants received from individuals and corporations are used for educational purposes of the college.

Lafayette dollar helped build Paris monument

In 1900 a monument to General Lafayette was erected in Paris as a gift of the people of the United States to the People of France. More than $50,000 of the cost was contributed by the pennies of the school children of America.

Sculptured by Paul Bartlett, the mounted figure of the famous Revolutionary general was planned, financed and erected under the supervision of the Lafayette Memorial Commission.

In early 1899 the commission asked Congress to make its monument appropriation available in the form of 100,000 souvenir half-dollars. The request was eventually changed to 50,000 silver dollars to be sold to collectors at $2 apiece.

THE ACTUAL COIN, dated 1900 but struck on Dec. 14, 1899, was coined in one day on an old minting press capable of striking 80 coins per minute.

Designed by C. E. Barber of the U.S. Mint, the obverse bore the conjoined busts of George Washington and the Marquis de Lafayette. The head of Washington was taken from the famous Houdon bust created in 1785. The head of Lafayette was from the "Defender of American and French Liberty" medal by the French artist Caumont in 1824.

The mounted statue on the reverse differs in many respects with the actual statue as it now stands in Paris.

This particular coin is extremely interesting in that for the first time in the history of United States coinage a recognizable portrait of a president is used as an official device, a precedent eventually used on other commemoratives and regular issue coinage of the United States.

Collecting coins
by Mort Reed

The Lafayette Dollar is a very desirable coin. In 1892 it was valued at $15 to $20. Ten years later it jumped to $37, and in 1972 it brought from $225 to $310 for a copy in Extremely Fine to Uncirculated condition.

Today the same piece in Extremely Fine to Uncirculated is valued at $250 and $585.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Two types of swindles

Remember the visitor to New York who, when a native offered to sell him the Brooklyn bridge, remarked, "You must take me for an idiot. The real owner has already contacted me." You can still find him in almost any bridge game.

East won the club lead with his king and tried to cash the ace. South ruffed; entered dummy with the king of trumps; led the jack of clubs and carefully discarded his eight of hearts after East played low.

West was in with the queen and couldn't wait to plank down his seven of hearts. South took his ace; cashed the ace of trumps; overtook his queen of hearts with dummy's king and got rid of his two diamonds on the jack of hearts and 10 of clubs.

Why was West trying to buy the Brooklyn Bridge?

It was all a matter of looking at that jack of hearts in dummy. Give South the ace of diamonds and small hearts, South would surely have planned to play West for the heart queen rather than try that club play. Hence West should have realized that East held the diamond ace and that South was trying a swindle.

NBC wins week's ratings thanks to 'The Godfather'

NEW YORK — TV sets in more than 25 million homes tuned into NBC Saturday night for "The Godfather" Part 1, according to this week's A. C. Nielsen survey.

The apparent interest of Mafia chic made the first half of the film the top-rated show for week ending Sunday. And NBC's use of blockbuster tactics against CBS' big Saturday-night lineup swept the ratings for that evening and helped the network win last week's ratings. In the over-all ratings for the 1974-75 season, NBC now is within two-tenths of a point of first place.

CBS has won the annual ratings' championship for the last 18 years. So far this season, CBS has dominated the ratings, but NBC has kept the race closer than it has been in years. ABC has been the doormat this season.

ALTHOUGH "The Godfather" Part 1 was the top show, it did not fare as well as the telecasts of other big films. It fell behind "Airport," "Love Story" and "The Poseidon Adventure" in the number of homes watching. "Airport" had 28 million homes while "The Godfather" had 25.3 million.

However, NBC is not crying about the statistics. "We had the No. 1 show, we won the week, and we are two-tenths of a point from CBS," said an NBC spokesman.

Television in review

by Frank S. Sverdlow

Much of NBC's strength this year stems from the successes of its new shows while the new shows on other networks have not fared as well.

NBC also has been bolstered by the highly rated World Series and the use of "The Godfather" on two nights — Saturday and Monday — both of which CBS usually dominates.

YOU CAN EXPECT to find NBC winning next week's ratings and possibly taking over the top spot because of "The Godfather" Part 2, which was aired Monday.

The top 10 shows for last week were:

1. "The Godfather," NBC.
2. "All in the Family," CBS.
3. "Sanford and Son," NBC.
4. "Chico and the Man," NBC.
5. M*A*S*H, CBS.
6. "The Waltons," CBS.
7. "World of Disney," NBC.
8. "Good Times," CBS.
9. "Hawaii Five-O," CBS.
10. "Little House on the Prairie," NBC.

Turnabout in housing industry needed

1975 homes at 1945 prices

by LEA TONKIN

Shades of 1943! Remember when the American dream of a home in the suburbs meant a three bedroom, one bath house on a 50-foot lot?

In an effort to square rising costs with a price home buyers can afford to pay, builders may do a turnabout from the type of development that home buyers and renters have come to expect, says Ed Havlik, president of the Home Data Corp., Hinsdale.

Havlik was among participants in the recent Chicago seminar on the future of housing sponsored by Chicago Assn. of Commerce and Industry.

Buyers priced out of the market is only one of many problems confronting the growing. We're all in a great deal more trouble than we realize," he said. "To develop a viable shelter industry we need to come to grips with some problems."

FIVE MAJOR problems singled out by Havlik are:

- inflation and interest rates,
- the need to develop a consistent mortgage market;
- restrictive building and zoning codes,
- ecological overreaction and fragmentation of the industry.

Housing prices have increased 50 per cent faster than personal income in the past few years, Havlik said. This means many families lumped into high income classifications by President Ford can no longer afford to buy a home in the major metropolitan areas of the U.S.

"While the cost of money and financing is the single largest component of building a home, the cost and increasing scarcity of some building materials added to that figure have outdistanced the ability of the average American to buy," he said.

Havlik also cited outdated building codes and zoning practices. "In the final analysis, I believe that communities should learn through experience or the courts that the quality of life should not dictate housing size, because this means high cost," Havlik said. "More than any other factor it excludes buyers."

A SHIFT to less restrictive zoning policies and performance building codes together with legislative provision for a stable mortgage market are among solutions to the housing industry depression, Havlik said.

The backlog of existing, unoccupied condominium units in the Chicago area indicates a decline in the value of speculative land zoned for high density development and a shift to moderate density development, Havlik continued. He projects a 30 to 50 per cent rebound in new housing starts by the end of 1975, barring a deep recession. New home buyers may have to scale back their expectations, he warns: fewer amenities, smaller lot sizes, less square footage in the units.

Al Eckersberg, senior vice president of Real Estate Research Corp., said only 38 per cent of all households can afford to buy housing at the median price of $32,500. In 1950, 75 per cent of all households could afford housing, he said. Rising prices coupled with the "worst fall-off since World War II" in housing construction will significantly affect the market, he predicts.

"RENTS WILL continue to rise substantially, maybe 20 to 50 per cent annually" for the next few years, Eckersberg predicts. This will raise the spectre of rent controls, he said. For the home buyer, the construction industry shakeout will mean fewer amenities, smaller size and more zero-lot-line and attached units, he said.

Government assistance available through the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 will shift a greater portion of construction to moderate and low income housing, Eckersberg said. Financing may be arranged for longer periods and funding may come from foreign sources and pension funds, he said. Prospects are "not bright" for new housing construction in 1975, said Eckersberg, forecasting 1.3 million new housing starts for the year.

• Howell Howard, president of Edward Hines Lumber Co., said unemployment in the housing industry is 12 per cent and continues to rise. "If the situation goes on another six months we will lose a substantial part of our productive capacity," he said of lumber mill operators. This could cause a 150 to 250 per cent boost in lumber prices, he said. Howard said increased timber cutting in national forests and tax incentives for savers at savings and loan institutions could improve the outlook.

• Edmond Shanahan, vice president of Bell Federal Savings and Loan Assn., Chicago, said housing starts in the Chicago area during 1974 will total approximately 21,000 units. This compares with 43,000 units in 1973 and 63,000 units in 1971 and marks the lowest level since 1946.

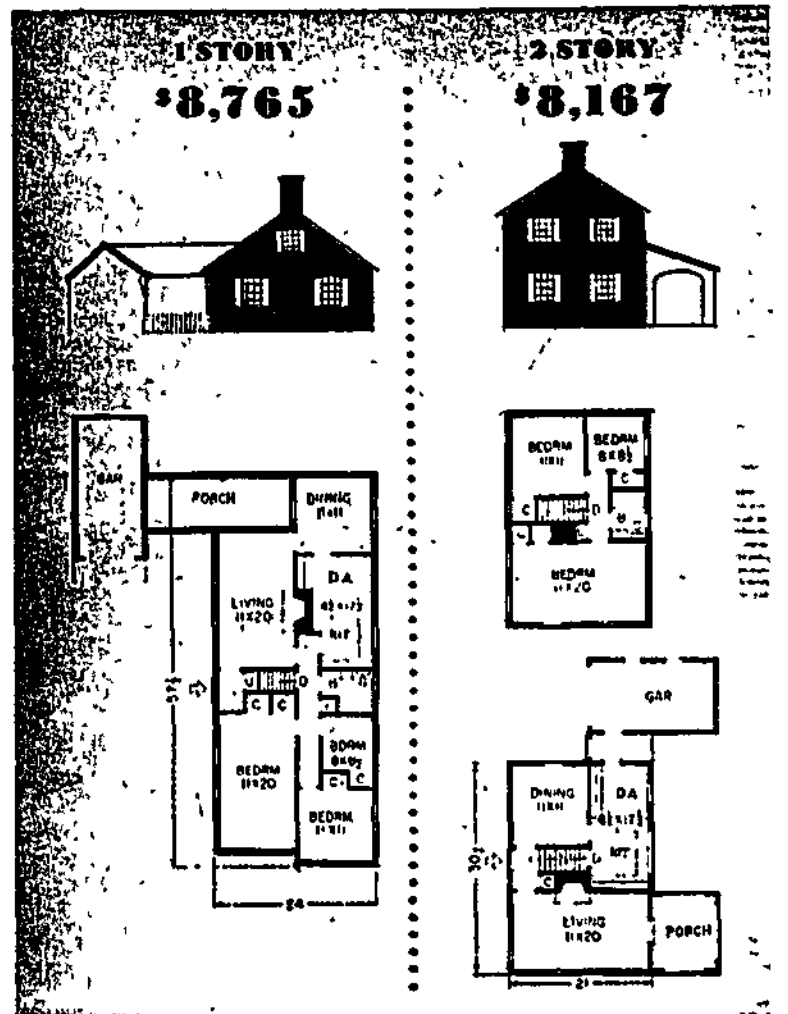

• "Depression in the housing market is a worldwide condition," said Al Kaufman, president of the Home Builders Assn. of Greater Chicago. Recent action by Congress to pump $3 billion into the housing market will have little impact on the local market, he said. "There will be some substantial bankruptcies" among Chicago area builders who have borrowed heavily to finance current projects, Kaufman said. Calling for an end to the "roller coaster" of housing industry ups and downs, Kaufman said the time is coming when savings and loan associations may not be the major source of building funds, and when "only the very affluent will be able to afford a house."

• Stanley Johnson, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor said lower costs are necessary to revive the housing industry. He opposes an increase in the usury ceiling — limit on mortgage interest rates.

• Earl Belofsky, president of the Chicago Mortgage Bankers Assn., said financing for home construction will increasingly come from foreign investors and institutional lenders. There is uncertainty about the outlook for interest rates and availability of funds for 1975, said Belofsky, who is also chairman of the board of Greenbaum Mortgage Co.

The need to change the nature of the housing industry was cited by William Lilley, an assistant secretary in the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. Lilley was among several speakers who discussed plans for low and moderate income housing under the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

Land use regulation and condominium unit regulation were among other discussions at the seminar.

A slight upturn in savings at area savings and loan associations (S&Ls) during the first 10 days of November could signal better times for the depressed housing market.

Edmond Shanahan, vice president of Bell Federal Savings and Loan Association in Chicago, said "We have seen a substantial pickup in the past two weeks" in savings. Fear of unemployment always brings money back to the S&L's, he said. "Consequently, we have revised our forecast."

Shanahan said added home financing activity will eventually follow the buildup of money and the repayment of borrowings from the Federal Home Loan Bank. At the present rate of 10 1/2 per cent interest on FHLB loans, he said, the institutions will repay the agency as quickly as possible.

The increase in Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. insurance from $20,000 to $40,000 on Nov. 27 may draw added funds to S&L's, Shanahan said. He predicts that legislation to allow a tax exemption for savings accounts at S&L's would draw added savings. A critical factor is the ability of S&L's to compete with Treasury bills and other offerings for the savings dollar, he said.

"SOME IMPROVEMENT at the savings windows" was also reported this week by Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Association, Arlington Heights.

"In times of stress, people who have a little bit tend to save more — it's a traditional pattern," said James Holmes of Mount Prospect, executive director of the Chicago Area Council of Savings Associations. "One of the problems is that because of inflation, people don't have this money for savings," he said of the S&L's previous savings problem. Reinvestment of dividends during October brought an abatement in the savings situation, he said, adding that area S&L's are optimistic about increased savings.

HOLMES SAID the recent authorization of $3 billion for federal home financing, and President Ford's announcement that 10 per cent of the amount will be used to finance existing homes is a "meager" effort, "but it certainly is a step in the right direction." His comment is seconded by a spokesman for the U.S. League of Savings Associations in Chicago, who said there will be "very little impact" from the actions on the area housing market.

Improvement in the home financing market is difficult to forecast, said Karen Berger, assistant economist at the Federal Home Loan Bank in Chicago.

$10 million at 8 3/4 % at K&B

The Illinois Division of Kaufman and Broad, Inc. home builders has received $10 million in federal money for mortgage financing of its local developments and will make it available at 8 3/4 per cent interest.

Robert W. Fish, president of the Illinois division of K&B, announced the $10 million in Federal Home Loan Bank Funds has been obtained through K&B's affiliate, International Mortgage Company.

The funds will be immediately available to K&B purchasers at an interest rate of 8 3/4 per cent.

Fish said the funds will provide financing for approximately 300 new homes, including some in the company's Barrington Square complex in Hoffman Estates. K&B is building single family homes, town houses and condominiums in Pine Meadow, Quail Run, Stone Mill and Meadowbrook, all in south suburban Bollingbrook, and in Woodgate at Matteson in addition to Hoffman Estates.

The $10 million is part of a $3 billion mortgage fund pledged last month by President Ford to aid the slumping home building industry.

The $10 million has not been earmarked for division among the K&B developments locally and will be used up as applications for mortgages are approved, K&B spokesmen said.

K&B is regarded as the largest home building company in the nation.

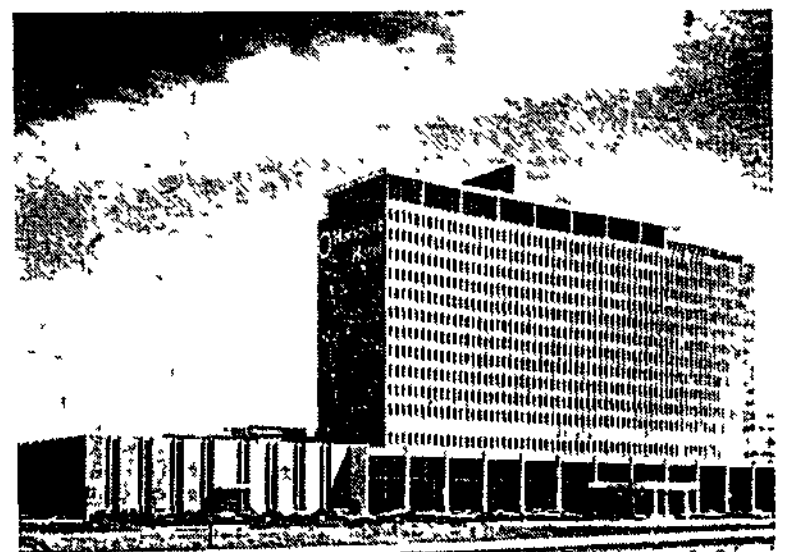

"We've never had a recession with such a high rate of inflation," she said.

Traditionally, S&L's would expect increased savings "because people worried about the economy will save more," she said. The high rate of inflation has staved off this savings trend, she said.

NOVEMBER WILL BE the first "black" month since last March for savings and loan associations in the Illinois-Wisconsin area, she predicted. A black month occurs when savings coming in exceed money going out. In the first 10 days of the month, there was a significant increase in savings at 28 large S&L's surveyed in Illinois and Wisconsin. The $21 million increase is the same as figures a year earlier. The thrift institutions will use the funds to pay off borrowings and improve liquidity, service existing customers and finally offer funds to builders, she said.

THE USURY CEILING of 9 1/2 per cent in Illinois will expire next July, a factor that Miss Berger believes will affect the willingness of lenders to negotiate loans. The usury limit is the highest rate of interest that may be charged on mortgage loans.

The average effective yield of mortgages arranged in early September for single family existing homes in the Chicago metropolitan area is 9.28 per cent, Miss Berger said. The average sales price was $43,000, and average service charges amounted to 2.03 per cent. Buyers paid an average 33 per cent down payment.

Bankrupt hotel returns

The 15-story O'Hareport hotel in Northlake will come out of retirement in December as Northlake, a hotel for the elderly.

The luxury hotel was closed in bankruptcy a few months following its completion in 1970. Its reopening is planned by Kenneth C. Naslund, president of Collaborative Development, Ltd. The Chicago developer also operates a housing project in Glen Ellyn.

"It is our intention to provide, for persons who are reasonably healthy, the living accommodations, and opportunities for an active life similar to those provided by a fine resort hotel, but in this case, at reasonable rates," Naslund said. RATES WILL RANGE from $365 a month for double occupancy rooms, to $570 a month for single occupancy and $1,000 and higher a month for double rooms and suites. The rates included meals, housekeeping services, linens and the use of recreational facilities.

Naslund said he purchased the property from Ford Motor Credit Co. for "somewhat less than the $5.5 million asking price." Ford Motor Credit Co. purchased the facility from the O'Hareport Motor Hotel Corp., the original developer and operator. Naslund, as president of The Engineers Collaborative, Ltd., a corporate affiliate of Collaborative Development, Ltd., was chief consulting mechanical and electrical engineer for the original builder.

Easy ways to clear 'snow white'

Looking at snow through a living room window is a lot different than facing it behind a snow shovel. That fluffy "white stuff" that's so nice to look at, is also a chore to clear away.

But if you are among the many homeowners who tended their yards with a lawn and garden tractor this past summer, clearing your sidewalks and driveway may not be such a chore after all.

"Preparing your lawn and garden tractor for snow removal work isn't complicated," says Leigh Rawson, garden tractor buyer for Sears, Roebuck and Co., "but there are a number of considerations in choosing the proper snow removal attachments, which will assure top performance during the winter season."

A snow blower is best for an area of heavy snowfall since it can remove more snow in a given time and can handle deeper snow more efficiently. A discharge chute that can be pointed in any direction also allows greater control of snow placement.

For light snowfall or use on gravelled areas, the dozer blade is a good choice, especially since a blower might throw loose gravel that could endanger passing cars or pedestrians. It is more difficult, however, to remove deep snow from the edge of sidewalks with the dozer blade without damaging the adjacent lawn.

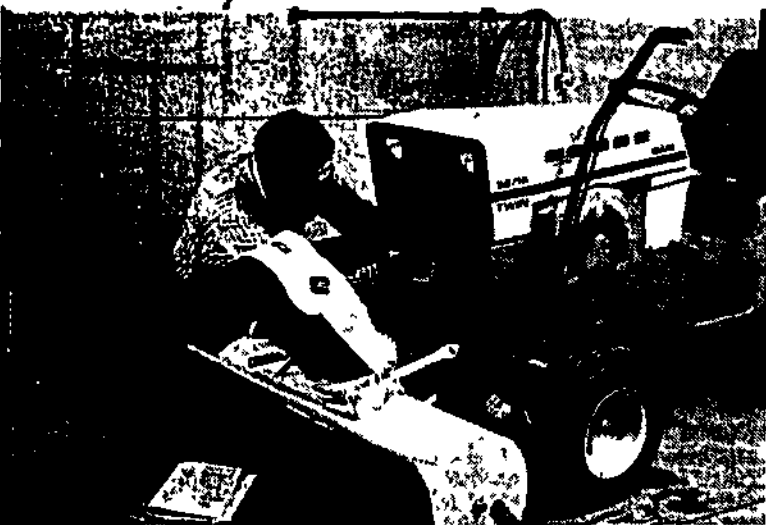

To prevent snow build-up and insure smooth operation, says Rawson, an aerosol spray ski wax should be used on the contact areas of both attachments — blade, auger, auger pan, discharge chute and deflector.

By acquainting themselves with the location of curbs and other obstructions prior to the first snowfall, homeowners will be able to work out a pattern of snow removal that will save time and allow them to deposit the snow where they want it.

When clearing snow, a steady pace of about two to three miles per hour will prevent heavy snow from piling up in front of the dozer blade or clogging the blower's discharge chute. Also, Rawson suggests, when using the blower, turn the discharge chute away from the wind and areas where people may be walking.

Some special tips for winterizing a garden tractor are:

- clean the tractor, giving special attention to the engine, all moving parts and the carburetor air-intake port;
- change the oil at least every 15 working hours to prevent corrosion;
- check the battery at least once every 30 days to be sure a full charge is maintained; and
- check tire pressure and use tire chains and wheel weights to provide positive traction over snow and ice.

WHEN PREPARING a lawn and garden tractor for winter snow removal, select the attachments best suited to the weight of the snowfall and the area to be cleared. A snow blower with a discharge chute that can be pointed in any direction handles deep snow quickly and efficiently, while a dozer blade works best on a light snowfall and on gravelled areas.

$3.8 million loan for new mall

Lake States Properties, Inc., Park Ridge, has secured a commitment for a $3,800,000 loan for the construction of the first phase of Zurich Town Mall in Lake Zurich. Phase I consists of an open mall shopping center containing 143,500 square feet on 10.5 acres. The principal tenants are A & P, ACE Hardware and Southland Corporation. Phase II is to consist of the First National Bank of Lake Zurich, a twin theater, restaurant and 30,000 square feet of office space.

Zurich Town Mall is being developed by Landsmith Enterprises located in Lake Zurich. Architect for the project is Richard Lee Wu Associates, Wheeling. Leasing is being handled by Michael O'Shea. The borrower was represented by Daniel E. Harper, President of Landsmith Enterprises. Lake States Properties, Inc. was represented by John C. Tibbs.

It's all in a name

The telephone caller asked to speak to Jerry.

Joan Kelly, a secretary at The McLennan Company in Park Ridge asked which Jerry, pointing out that the full-service real estate and insurance firm has several Jerry's on its staff.

"It's about that home you have for sale in Mission Hills, Va.," the caller explained.

"We're in Park Ridge," she told him, "and don't have any properties listed for sale in Virginia."

The caller apologized. "I must have dialed the wrong area code," he said, and hung up.

Ten or 15 minutes later he was back on the phone. "I thought I ought to let you know, because you were in on my first call." The caller, who said he was in the State of Washington, reported he rang the correct area code for Washington, D.C., then the number and was astounded to have a White House operator answer his call.

"Ohmygosh," he said, "I must have dialed another wrong number."

"What was the purpose of your call?" the operator asked.

He explained his interest in the Mission Hills house, and his information to "call Jerry" about it.

"Oh," the White House operator said, according to McLennan's anonymous caller, "that's President Ford's house. He's out of town, but I can send you the information."

The people at McLennan Company are still waiting for the other shoe to drop.

"Is your home insured for what it's worth, or just for what it cost you...?"

Homefinders leaders attend national ERA convention

Four leaders of Homefinders Realtors attended last month's national convention of ERA, held in Las Vegas.

ERA — or Electronic Realty Associates — is a national network of real estate brokers which facilitates the purchase of homes for persons moving from one section of the country to another.

Those attending the national meeting were Robert L. Zaun, president of Homefinders; Randall Rathjen, director of special projects; Pat Cappelli; and Hugh McGarvey, manager of the McHenry office of Homefinders.

According to Zaun, the three-day sessions concentrated on the Buyers Protection Plan service provided by ERA and its member brokers. This plan provides for the repair or replacement of essential home components for one full year from date of closing.

Many purchasers of Homefinders listings can now be provided with the Buyers Protection Plan Service Agreement.

This agreement protects the buyer for one year from deficiencies in the heating system, plumbing system, entire electrical system within the home, water heaters, sheet metal duct work, central air conditioning systems, built-in appliances such as dishwashers and disposals and all plumbing fixtures except toilet seats and water softeners. Roofs are covered based on number of years of service.

The Buyers Protection Plan is offered on many of Homefinders listings at no cost to the buyer.

In addition to the seminars on the Buyer Protection Plan, sessions at the Era convention were devoted to national operations generally and to such topics as the independent contractor versus the employee.

The four Homefinders representatives also hosted a six-hour "rap session" with 40 ERA brokers from all sections of the country, with everyone exchanging views on different methods of real estate operations.

Prior to leaving for Las Vegas, Zaun was presented with a special "ERA fee" constructed by Susan Johnson and Cheryl Smith of his accounting staff.

Homefinders is the exclusive ERA broker in the northwest suburbs.

Homefinders, which has 11 sales offices covering four counties, maintains its executive headquarters at 235 N. Northwest Highway, Palatine.

EDWARD J. BUSSE, President of Annen & Busse, Inc. Realtors (left), congratulates sales associate Will Schwantz on his 10 years of service with the firm. Schwantz was presented with a handsome gold calendar watch in honor of his Tenth Anniversary at an all-office sales meeting recently. Will is a lifetime member of the MAP Multiple Listing Service.

Million Dollar Sales Club as well as the Illinois Association of Realtors' Million Dollar Sales Club. He is a senior member of the Annen & Busse Million Dollar Sales Club and reached that high mark in September of this year again. He serves the residents of the northwest suburban area from the firm's Arlington Heights location.

Checklist for condominiums

In a previous Real Estate Facts column, the condominium concept of home ownership, owner's responsibilities, types of condominiums available and advantages of ownership were discussed.

Like any other relatively new concept, condominium ownership — authorized by federal legislation in 1961 — may have drawbacks. While many feel condominium living offers a feeling of security and "neighborliness," freedom from maintenance chores and a chance to build equity with relative ease, some have reported a feeling of overcrowding or a lack of privacy and quiet.

But despite some reported difficulties, the market for condominiums is booming. Sharply higher prices for conventional homes have made condominium building and buying attractive alternatives. A condominium usually costs 25 to 30 per cent less than the identical amount of space in a detached house.

Attractiveness of condominiums as an economical alternative is proven by the growth number of units nationally — from 235,000 in 1972 to 420,000 in 1973. According to a survey by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, half of all new homes built in 25 major metropolitan areas last year were condominiums. And the National Association of Home Builders estimates that condo units will account for one fourth of all new homes built in the nation this year.

To help those entering the condominium market make satisfactory purchases, the National Association of Realtors suggests the following:

Consider your present lifestyle. Will a condominium suit the way you're used to living?

Make sure you know what you're buying. Read your contract carefully.

Check the builder's reputation.

Make sure the management fee includes everything, so you won't later be assessed for use of swimming pools or parking spaces.

Get specifics on maintenance. Does the developer promise exterior maintenance only, or is interior maintenance included? What are your maintenance responsibilities?

Will the builder pay full maintenance costs for completed but unsold units, or will this expense be added to your costs?

If recreational facilities are promised but not yet built, make sure the developer has the necessary permits.

Check the developer's estimate of property taxes and fire insurance costs. If you are buying a converted apartment, ask to see actual figures on taxes, utilities, upkeep.

Look for condos with soundproof walls, enclosed patios, playgrounds set far from the units. Find out what protection you have against noisy and unruly neighbors.

Find out if pets are permitted.

Check the zoning around the project.

Find out what restrictions are imposed in connection with resale of the unit.

Find out whether the developer is retaining the right to manage the project and whether residents can fire him, should they find cause.

Inspect your housing unit if you can, or a model if one is completed. If only plans are available, find out precisely how big the unit is.

Talk with present tenants about the homeowners' association. This group, with each unit owner a member, is responsible for landscaping and maintenance. If the association is badly managed, it can be a problem.

Your Realtor can give you details on how a condominium works in terms of specific services. And once you've located the condo you want to own, he or she can help you secure the mortgage.

Mortgage loan delinquencies up

Mortgage loan delinquencies at the nation's savings associations moved up slightly during the third quarter of 1974, the United States League of Savings Associations announced. The trade association said that the loan delinquency ratio for the third quarter was 0.816 per cent, up slightly from the 0.78 per cent of the second quarter and down slightly from the 0.82 ratio in the first quarter.

The League said that the lower delinquency trend began in 1967 and that in February of that year the delinquency ratio hit the one per cent mark for the last time. Since then it has ranged from a high of 0.94 per cent to a low of 0.69 per cent.

By months, the third quarter delinquency ratio was: July — 0.79; August 0.82; and September — 0.84.

Here are the League's delinquency figures for the period 1970 to date:

Shop where you live

More and more, residents of high-rise condominiums and apartment houses will have their own shopping centers — mini-malls.

"The small, self-contained promenades of little shops located within the residential structures will become a most popular marketplace for city dwellers," predicts Marshall C. Dennison, president and chief executive officer of Associated Mortgage Companies, Inc., a Philadelphia-based national real estate financing and servicing organization.

AMCO, one of the nation's three largest mortgage banking firms with a portfolio exceeding $2 billion, is an affiliate of First Pennsylvania Corporation.

"Mini-malls are beginning to show up to help serve the immediate needs of those who live in condominiums and apartment buildings," Dennison reports.

Shopping arcades now offer everything from basic food items to gourmet fare, service-oriented shops to fashion boutiques.

"Principal reason for this growing popularity is convenience. Doing one's shopping or browsing under one's own roof is proving to be quite an attraction and an important selling or renting point for new condo and apartment projects.

Dwellers of these complexes seek quick, convenient, one-stop shopping that can be accomplished after work or even on week-ends.

Dennison sees the mini-mall as a boon to those city dwellers who do not have automobiles — not to mention those busy workers who have little time to frequent a number of stores and also need near-by shopping facilities.

"Many apartment and condo residents in metropolitan centers can now buy their groceries, visit the barber or hairdresser, purchase gifts, order flowers, browse in a bookstore, dine in an attractive restaurant, have a prescription filled at a drugstore or spend time in an art gallery — and all within their own complex."

He forecasts that most condominium and apartment buildings in the years ahead will feature their own individualized shopping malls.

"Never underestimating the power and attraction of sprawling shopping centers which are usually found near large suburban residential areas—the arcade of little shops and facilities is here to stay."

"Shop where you live — it's the wave of the future for the condo-apartment construction picture," Dennison concludes.

Landwehr sells $250,000

Tal Andrews, sales manager for N/W Village Realty in Arlington Heights, announced that Arnold Landwehr had an outstanding monthly volume of a quarter of a million in sales during October.

Landwehr was born and raised in the Northwest area and his family ties go back to the rural farm community that originally existed in this area. Landwehr resides in Mount Prospect with his wife Eleanor and son.

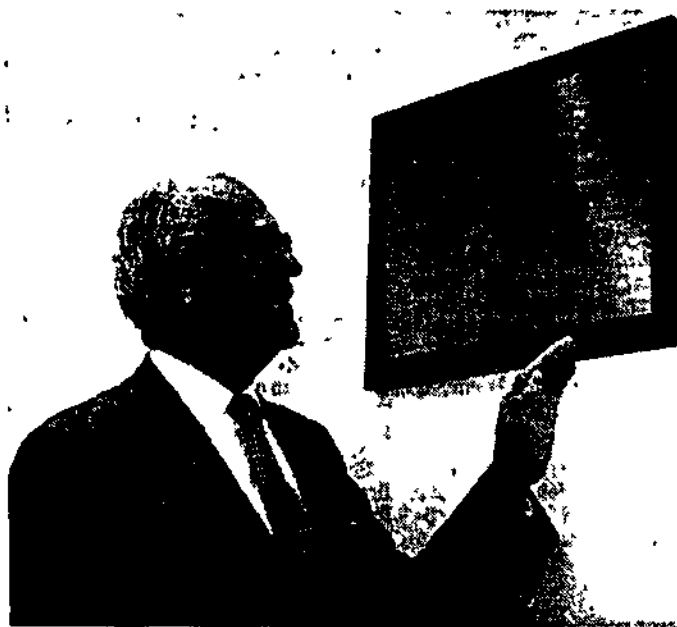

Homefinders lists salesmen of month

Sales associates in each of the 11 Homefinders Realtors office have been acclaimed "Salesman of the Month" by Robert L. Zaun for their sales records during the month of September.

Zaun is president of Homefinders, which maintains its executive headquarters at 235 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

"Salesman of the Month" in the Homefinders offices are Ann Bartlett, Roselle Dottie Bruno, Schaumburg; Mary Anne Flynn, Palatine; Len Heckmann, Antioch; John Kerwin, Buffalo Grove; Vivian Mattix, Lake Zurich; Hugh McGarvey, McHenry; Sue Summer, Libertyville; Cindy Tossing, Streamwood; Jan Van Ke, Arlington Heights; and Ruth Walker, Mount Prospect.

Homefinders also maintains a commercial and investment division. Randall Rathjen is the director of special projects and Larry Ham is director of sales training for Homefinders Realtors.

RETIRED GOULD director A. B. Jackson admires the plaque dedicating Gould Inc.'s new Rolling Meadows research and development center in his name. Jackson is also the retired Board Chairman of The St. Paul Companies and served on the Gould Board of Directors from 1956 to 1974.

Gould Center building dedicated

The first building to be completed in the $40 million Gould Center on Golf Road near Woodfield Mall was dedicated recently as the A. B. Jackson Research and Development Center.

The 60,000 square foot research building, named after the recently retired member of the Gould Board of Directors, will serve as a technology center for Gould's expanding electrical and electronics business.

When completed in late 1975, Gould

Center will provide a 40 acre campus-like international headquarters for the $740 million company. Highlight of the center will be a 28-foot sculpture of Pablo Picasso's "The Bather" executed by the Norwegian artist, Carl Nesjar.

Jackson, in whose name the laboratory was dedicated, served on Gould's board of directors from 1956 to 1974 and was chairman of the executive committee from 1968. A graduate of Princeton University, he is retired chairman of the board of The St. Paul Companies.

176 years of service

Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan Association's nine member board of directors represents 155 years of service to the $145 million Berwyn institution.

And when the 21 years of Association Secretary Olga M. Janik, who attends all meetings are figured in, the total grows to 176.

President Frank J. Kinst has been "on board" the longest, 43 years. Thomas A. Kinst cut his teeth as managing officer of another savings and loan before becoming a Lincoln director, a year ago.

Anton P. Mourek and William Kinst have a quarter century each and both Philip R. Kasik and C. A. Linder, 18 years.

E. E. Socolofsky and Raymond E. Wachter have put in 13 and 12 years, respectively.

Lincoln Federal, originally Lombard Savings, was founded in 1918.

Easier decorating

Hydronic baseboard heating panels can be painted to blend or contrast with the decor of the room, say spokesmen at the National Better Heating-Cooling Council. Decorating is simplified with hydronic baseboards because they never get too hot to the touch, draperies can hang floor length without scorching and furniture can touch them and not block out heat.

Cracks cost cash

The National Bureau of Standards has estimated that in a moderate climate a 1/4-inch crack under a 3-foot-wide door leading to an attic lets $4.50 worth of heat escape per winter.

'Lights on' when selling home

"Lighting up" your home before showing it will not only brighten the setting, but can hasten the sale, according to a

Richard Caruso

Chicago suburban Realtor. Richard Caruso, president of Rich Port, Realtor, advises that "every lamp in the home should be turned on before the prospective purchasers arrive, regardless of whether the property is being shown by day or night. Not only does it cast a warm glow on walls, carpets and furniture, but it gives each room a lived-in look. In the evening, it also makes it unnecessary for the salesman to run ahead into each room in order to turn the lights on. During the day, interior lighting counteracts the visually deadening effects of strong outside lights on interior settings."

Caruso includes closet and storage room lights in his "turn-on" list, but cautions against harsh overhead light fixtures in bedrooms, living rooms, family rooms and studies. "Keep it subtle in these areas," says Caruso, "by using floor lamps, table-top fixtures and indirect lighting, if available."

"On the other hand," he adds, "go all out in the kitchen and bathrooms, even to the extent of increasing the wattage in your existing fixtures. These areas should be as bright and cheery as possible."

Caruso says that showing a home is "much like setting a stage," and "if you can get a few tips on mood lighting from a local 'Little Theatre' or 'Theatre-in-the-Round' technician, it wouldn't hurt a thing. The idea, when your home is shown to prospective buyers, is to show it at its best advantage. The atmosphere created by the way it is lighted can either help or hinder that impression considerably."

"And don't forget," Caruso concludes, "after the client leaves, turn the lights off to conserve energy."

Rich Port opens new sales division

Realtor Richard Caruso, president of Rich Port, Realtor, has announced the establishment and opening of a new condominium home sales division.

Under the direction of Barbara Watson, who has been named vice president and sales manager, this new division which is Rich Port, Realtor's twenty-second office in suburban Chicago, will offer all the services associated with condominium sales.

Prior to being appointed to this new position, Ms. Watson served as vice president and sales manager of Rich Port, Realtor's Barrington office.

A native of New York, she attended the University of Cincinnati and has taken various real estate courses.

Ms. Watson will be based at Cass Lake Village, where she will direct condominium home sales.

Data General Corporation expands its regional office

The Midwest regional office of Data General Corporation, Southboro, Massachusetts, is expanding and locating in Woodfield Office Plaza, Golf and Meacham Roads, Schaumburg, according to builder-developer J. Emil Anderson & Son, Inc., who announced signing of a long-term lease for space at 1111 Plaza Drive. Data General Corporation is moving this month from present offices in the Anderson company's Touhy Office Plaza project in Des Plaines.

Data General Corporation Regional Manager James T. Morrissey indicated that rapid sales growth necessitated the expansion move. The additional space will provide for expanded sales, service and applications staffs as well as the addition of a repair depot and an expanded data center. This is the third expansion of Midwest Region facilities since 1972 and represents a 300 per cent increase over present space requirements.

Data General Corporation, which began operations in 1968, is an international supplier of sophisticated computer systems for end users and a manufacturer of high capability computers for original equipment manufacturers.

The 1111 Plaza Drive building is one of two 8-story buildings located at Woodfield Office Plaza — next to Woodfield Mall — in J. Emil Anderson's 325-acre Woodfield Park planned commercial development.

Van lines do more than just move you

Short of selling their home furnished, it is probably every family's dream to leave all the packing, loading and driving to someone else when moving time comes. Moving van lines promise to fulfill that dream.

The easiest, yet most costly, way to move is to hire a van line and let them do most of the work. About one-quarter of the change-of address moves made in 1973 were made with the use of a van line.

The first thing to do is call a reputable van line, listed in the Yellow Pages telephone directory. Ask an estimator to come to your home. Show him everything that you want moved. His estimate, and the van line's charges are based upon the weight of your shipment and the distance to be traveled. To determine the weight, the driver will weigh his truck before and after loading your goods. The difference is the weight of your shipment.

The Interstate Commerce Commission regulates van line rates so that all are nearly identical. There are no penalties for incorrect estimates and regardless of the estimate, you must pay the full amount billed by the van line within 15 days of receipt of your goods.

The estimate will be only for shipping charges, so ask the agent about any extra charges for there may be several, including insurance. The agent will also tell you how long it will take the van to deliver your goods. The van lines are permitted considerable leeway in making delivery — the ICC says "within a reasonable time."

You can assist the loading and unloading process if you plan ahead. Pack as many items yourself ahead of time as you can. The driver will label those cartons as "packed by owner" to note that the van line is not responsible for damage resulting from improper packing. At your destination, know where you want furniture placed as it is unloaded from the truck.

Even though the van line is moving your household goods, you still have to get your family to your destination. Be sure to take your auto, airline and other associated expenses into consideration as part of the total moving cost.

The van lines' record is less than enviable. In an ICC survey conducted in 1972, families that moved with van lines reported the following experiences: 48 per cent said their move was unsatisfactory, 16 per cent said shipment was picked up late and 33 per cent reported late delivery. Of those with late deliveries, 75 per cent said they were not notified of the reason for the delay or the location of the shipment as required by the ICC. Nearly 30 per cent said that the final bill exceeded the original estimate by more than 10 per cent. More than one-half of the respondents filed or intended to file claims for loss or damage, and of the claims filed, 40 per cent said the mover failed to respond in 30 days as required by the ICC.

If you have questions or a complaint, call a regional office of the ICC, or write to: Director, Bureau of Operations, Interstate Commerce Commission, 12th Street and Constitution Avenue NW, Washington, D.C. 20423. You can also contact: American Movers Conference, Consumer Service Department, 1625 "O" Street NW, Washington D.C. 20036.

Dot Paolini joins Homefinders staff

Dot Paolini has joined Homefinders Realtors as a sales associate, according to an announcement by Robert L. Zaun, president of the firm.

Born in Washington, D.C., Mrs. Paolini graduated from McKinley high school in that city. She and her husband, Albert, reside at 740 Hawthorne Lane in Libertyville. They are the parents of three children and also have two grandchildren.

Prior to joining Homefinders, Dot was school secretary for District 21. She enjoys bowling, golf and bridge as her favorite hobbies.

According to Zaun, Dot will be assigned to the newly-opened Libertyville office of Homefinders, located at Park and Fourth Sts. in the village.

Opened in August, the Libertyville office is the fourth to be opened by Homefinders this year. The others are in McHenry, Antioch and Roselle. Homefinders also has sales offices in Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Lake Zurich, Palatine, Mount Prospect, Schaumburg and Streamwood.

Adding to its many facilities, Homefinders is now planning a state-approved school for training real estate salesmen and women.

The executive offices of Homefinders are located at 235 N. Northwest Highway in Palatine.

Dedication set for warehouse

The 100,000 square foot warehouse and headquarter facilities of Rite-Way Discount Drug Corporation will be formally dedicated at 2 p.m. on November 17 in suburban Bensenville.

The 200-plus member voluntary group was formed in 1969 in Chicago by Dave Greenberg, president, G & G Drug Company. Today it services Rite-Way stores in Illinois, Kentucky, Indiana and New Jersey, in addition to the greater Chicago area.

Greenberg plans to expand his operation nationwide.

Rite-Way provides retailers with a planned weekly advertising program, plus a host of merchandising and selling aids. Greenberg says the company's success has been based on its philosophy of strong advertising which combines price and selection but which also emphasizes customer service.

The program is geared toward the small businessman. "If it weren't for the Rite-Way program," Greenberg says, "about 60 per cent of our independents would probably be out of business today."

About 1,000 guests — manufacturers and retailers and other business associates — are expected to attend the dedication party.

Homefinders adds new sales staffer

Townsend Barlow of Antioch has joined Homefinders Realtors as a sales associate, according to Robert L. Zaub, president of the firm.

Born in Champaign, Townsend Barlow graduated from Urbana high school. He studied architectural engineering at the University of Illinois before entering the Army and subsequent service on Okinawa.

Barlow graduated from Eastern Illinois University with a bachelor's degree in Industrial Education. During the summers and while on vacation he served as a carpenter's apprentice and passed the journeyman's examination. During his senior year in college he was elected president of the Industrial Education Honor Society.

As an educator, Townsend has taught general shop, wood shop, third grade, and has also served as the principal of an elementary school and as a teaching superintendent. He had his own business for eight years, and prior to joining Homefinders Barlow was with another real estate firm.

Townsend Barlow will work out of the Antioch office of Homefinders, located at 389 Lake.

Barlow is married to the former Virginia Metzler. They reside with their five children at 434 Orchard in Antioch. Mrs. Barlow is a physical education instructor at Woodland Junior high school in Gages Lake.

Write for booklet

Most people know very little about the biggest investment in their lives — their homes. So, with today's inflation spiraling, energy costs soaring, and winter coming on, the experts at the Home Institute of Certain-Teed Products Corporation felt it was high time for homeowners to get some straight facts on roofing, siding and insulation.

Everything You Ever Wanted To Know About Roofing, Siding and Residential Insulation is a 32-page, illustrated booklet, written by Mort Waters, editor of Family Handyman. It provides in-depth answers to homeowner questions on selecting, purchasing, installing and maintaining roofing, siding and insulation.

Waters points out, for example, the fact that sun, not wind and rain, does the most damage to a roof. He notes that attic insulation projects can be completed by almost anyone without prior knowledge or experience, and he stresses that vinyl siding is more childproof and maintenance-free than metal siding materials.

Interested homeowners can obtain these home improvement tips, maintenance suggestions and valuable product information by sending 25 cents to the Home Institute, Certain-Teed Products Corporation, P.O. Box 880, Valley Forge, Pa., 19482.

Calendar cases organic gardening

Are you bothered by ants around your patio? Mint plants not only provide a fresh spearmint aroma but also repel ants. Have problems with field mice in your back yard? Garlic applied on your house plants will help eliminate this problem without the use of poisons which may be deadly to pets and children.

These and other helpful hints are available in the 1975 edition of the Living Garden Calendar published by two leading environmental organizations, the Audubon Naturalist Society and Concern, Inc.

The engagement calendar, which retails for $3, provides a wealth of information to gardeners on deterring insects and other pests without using chemicals which pollute the environment. The calendar also provides information on health plant growth as well as attracting natural pest controls, such as birds, to your yard.

For a copy of Living Garden Calendar, 1975, send check or money order for $3 to "Living Garden '75" Audubon Naturalist Society, 8940 Jones Mill Road, Washington, D.C. 20015. Please allow several weeks for delivery.

Alert shoppers can beat high food costs

Monthly news stories report the regular and increasing cost of family food as regularly as the weather. For years the Consumer and Food Economics Institute, part of the USDA's Agricultural Research Service, has compiled a cost of three food plans for urban families aptly labeled low-cost, moderate-cost and liberal.

For one week recently the CFEI reported that food at home for 21 meals for a family of four cost $43.90 on the low-cost plan, $55 for the moderate-cost plan and $66.60 for the liberal plan. The family of four included two elementary school children. Add two teen-age boys and the totals jump to $64, $81 and $97.40 respectively.

These figures are for all persons eating all meals at home — not likely for urban families. Five per cent of one person's meals can be dedicated for each meal eaten away from home. Thus, a person eating five lunches downtown or at the plant reduces the cost of his or her meals at home by 25 per cent.

During January 1964 the cost figures for the family of four were $24.60, $33.10 and $37.50. Over the 10-plus years family food costs have risen about 75 per cent. Roughly two-thirds of the increase occurred during the past 12 months.

EACH OF THE three plans includes enough food to prepare well-balanced meals and snacks for a full seven days. Selections and costs of food reflect family buying practices as reported in food surveys conducted by the USDA for low, middle and high incomes. Fats, oils, sugar and sweets, coffee and other nonalcoholic beverages, and seasonings are included.

Each month prices are surveyed by field workers for the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Collected data also finds its way into the Consumers Price Index. Food plan costs are updated monthly. If the survey finds families paying 50 cents a pound for ground beef and the previous price was 60 cents, the cost of X-pounds of ground beef in the list is increased by 50 per cent.

Both the food cost plans and the CPI suffer from inflexibility. To keep data consistent, specific items are precisely defined. BLS field workers may not choose a different grade of beef, for example, or substitute fish for beef if a good buy on fish shows up in the market. So, if ground beef jumps 50 per cent in price, the higher cost is dutifully tabulated and fed into the computer for compiling costs.

Managing your family's money

by Merle E. Dowd

ALERT SHOPPERS almost always beat the inflexible cost guides. If ground beef prices soar, many shoppers avoid beef that week. They buy something else instead — fish, pork, or a textured vegetable protein meat substitute. The CPI similarly fails to allow for shoppers' choices. Price resistance is for real, as the beef industry discovered.

Differences among the three plans show expected results, the low-cost food plan includes less expensive sources of protein, and the liberal plan calls for more meat and milk products. For example, a shopper on the low-cost plan would buy 11½ pounds of meat, poultry, and fish to feed a family of four for a week. A shopper spending on a liberal plan would buy 20½ pounds — nearly double.

A low-cost shopper would buy 22 ounces of beans, peas, and nuts while both the moderate and liberal plan shopper would buy only 14. Liberal shoppers might buy 40 pounds of vegetables and fruit compared to only 31 for the low-cost shopper.

Habit patterns resist change, particularly where food is concerned. Yet, opportunities exist for fine tuning a family's spending for food. Prices can and do change radically from week to week and season to season. Stores offer price differences weekly. Alert shoppers regularly cut food bills by 10, 20 or 25 per cent compared to shoppers with fixed habits and little imagination. Varied menu plans and recipes help families eat better for less.

One fact emerges from the food plans — families can do something about managing the cost of food.

EXPENSIVE... BUT WORTH IT...

There isn't another Mediterranean Ranch in the area that offers the space, construction and 2 acre setting of this home. The slate foyer entrance leads to wrought iron gates which open to the heart of this unique home, an authentic Spanish Atrium. This room is superb with its skylight, fountain and decorating. All rooms open from the Atrium.

A delightful view of the beautifully landscaped Weeping Mortar walled courtyard is viewed from the formal dining room with crystal chandelier and white marble fireplace. The formal living room has a black marble fireplace with views of the courtyard and spacious lawn.

A masterpiece in decorating, the master bedroom is a dream with wall to wall closets, mirrored doors, thick carpeting, huge dressing room and private bath with sunken tub. There are three more king sized bedrooms, all carpeted. Two with double closet mirrored doors, one bedroom richly paneled with carved closet doors.

The island kitchen is a woman's delight with built-in oven and range, dishwasher, abundance of cabinets & counters, built-in desk, large eating area with terrific view of the countryside. The laundry room opens from the kitchen and has ample cabinets & storage. Both rooms are carpeted and wallpapered.

This delightful home offers a host of extras. All rooms are oversize, there is music piped thruout the house with speakers in each room and carried out to the courtyard. There is a large walk-in-guest closet, 3 linen closets. There is a 3 car garage with 4 car space and 3 separate garage door controls, circular blacktop driveway, and fantastic views from all rooms.

Heating oil users to get refund: FEA

Refunds on the way: N. Allen Andersen, regional administrator of the Federal Energy Administration in Chicago, announced that Bell Fuel of Chicago agreed to roll back prices until a refund of $463,160 is paid to customers in the Chicago metropolitan area. The refund will be available to customers who purchased No. 2 and No. 5 heating oil after last November. More than 5,000 customers will benefit from the rollback in prices.

Andersen said dealers are asked to voluntarily roll back prices when a violation of pricing regulations is found. In this case, Bell agreed to lower prices to the highest allowable rate and then again lower the price per gallon by 2½ cents until the overcharge is refunded to their customers. Andersen said consumers who wish to file complaints about fuel regulation violations, or business representatives who seek information about their obligations may call the FEA office in Chicago, 353-8772, or write Federal Energy Administration, Region V, 175 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago, Ill. 60604.

Bank marks third year

Suburban National Bank of Elk Grove Village recently celebrated its third year of service by offering refreshments to customers in the bank lobby. Bank president Thomas Johansson said the bank's assets at the end of the third quarter exceeded $8 million.

Buyer confidence low: index

The Conference Board's consumer confidence index dropped to a record low level in September and October, the New York based executives group reported Wednesday. The reading of 48.9 points on a scale that sets a reading of 100 points for 1969-70 is a 20 point drop from the July-August figure.

The survey, covering 10,000 households across the country, is conducted for the board by National Family Opinion, Inc. Survey results indicate the following: 29 per cent of the families surveyed label current business conditions "bad" up from 19 per cent in the previous survey; 34 per cent expect the economy to worsen during the next six months compared to 20 per cent in the previous probe; and 43 per cent expect fewer jobs during the next six months, compared to 27 per cent in the previous survey. Buying plans were indicated as higher for cars, homes and major appliances. The biggest gainers were color television sets, washing machines and vacuum cleaners. Nearly 43 per cent plan to take a vacation in the next six months.

Bank OKs 45 cents dividend

The Mount Prospect State Bank board of directors recently approved a semi-annual dividend of 45 cents a share plus a special dividend of 5 cents a share of stock. It is payable Dec. 15 to shareholders of record Dec. 5.

The directors also approved a transfer of $500,000 from undivided profits to surplus. The new total of $5.5 million in capital and surplus sets the bank's maximum lending limit at $25,000. Earnings for the nine months ending Sept. 30 were reported at $4.03 a share compared to $3.17 a share the same period a year earlier. Total assets were a record $137,678,696 for the period.

'Price Week' continues

"MY WIFE HAS A million activities, but I don't," said Ed Conlon of Des Plaines. "This is something we can do together." Ed and Mary, both retired, pick up their share of the hot noon meals and cold suppers to be delivered to homebound persons — the ill, convalescing, elderly, handicapped — who live within a five-mile radius of Lutheran General Hospital and are unable to prepare their own meals.

Good samaritans bring more than food to the home-bound

by ELEANOR RIVES

It's a grey day. The kind of day that makes one yearn for a pat on the back, a smiling face, a laugh or two.

When your joints ache, your hands are unsteady, it hurts to stand too long and you need a walker or cane to get around, what a godsend it would be if some good samaritan dropped in out of nowhere and served you a delicious steaming hot dinner.

Sprinkled throughout the northwest suburbs are stranded people — hospital convalescents, disabled men and women, elderly people — who are not physically able to prepare themselves a good nutritious meal, who have no one they can depend upon day after day to help them out.

Almost as life-sustaining to them as food itself are the company and conversation of individuals who care.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Conlon of Des Plaines are two individuals who are. For more than a year, they have set Friday aside as a special day — the one in which they pick up hot meals and cold suppers at Lutheran General Hospital at midday and deliver them, along with generous portions of lighthearted conversation, to three appreciative recipients.

"I don't know what I'd do without the trays three times a week," said Mrs. Agnes Brown, "and the volunteers are so nice to talk to." Retired for 15 years, a widow for 33 years, Mrs. Brown lives alone in a small apartment above a store, using a walker to move around. She is separated from humanity by a flight of stairs and the inability to walk without help ever since a series of bad falls sent her to the hospital and then to a nursing home to convalesce.

MARY AND ED CONLON never hurry a delivery. They banter good-naturedly, always letting their real concern shine through.

Matthew Robertson, his big frame filling the doorway of the little white house he has owned for 50 years, beams as the Conlons approach. He's hungry, but eating can wait. Sometimes it's good to have a man to talk to. Sometimes it's good to show pictures of your three sons and their families, right down to the great-grandchildren, to lean back and laugh and say, "I started it all!"

Almost 83, Matt has lived alone about 17 years. He learned about the home delivered meals program when he was a patient in Lutheran General Hospital a year ago. Five days a week he receives two meals a day, nutritionally balanced to meet his diabetic diet.

And so it goes. It may be waving to two little old guys standing at the window waiting for them; it may be answering a booming "Good morning, Senator," with a laugh and a handshake; or it may be sitting with a blind woman as she eats — seasoning her dinner with talk.

"No money could pay for the amount of enjoyment we get seeing these people," said Ed, who also spends two mornings a week delivering newspapers to all the hospital patients. Mary spends a morning working in the doctor's lounge.

The Conlons are members of the hospital's volunteer Service League. Both retired, they have little patience with retired people who wonder what to do with themselves. "I could take them by the hand and show them what to do," said Mary.

ON THAT PARTICULAR day, eight volunteers transported 38 meals to 17 different destinations, delivering two highly insulated trays — one cold, one hot — to each of the home-bound individuals in the program, and returning to Lutheran General's food service department the empty trays from the previous delivery.

The round trip takes from one to one-and-a-half hours. Volunteers are scheduled for only one day a week but a few, like the Conlons, stand ready to take someone's place in an emergency.

The program has been in effect since the fall of 1972. Meals are planned by a registered dietitian and can be adjusted to meet special diets and individual likes and dislikes.

"We can handle about 50 meals a day," said Carol Litman, coordinator of the program, "and some days we almost reach that maximum. Our great need is for volunteers. We desperately need both regulars and substitutes."

In Arlington Heights, the pilot project of the Senior Citizens Commission is called "Meals on Wheels." Limited to the village only, it is administered by the health department, which determines the eligibility of each applicant, works out a route map for volunteers, and solicits churches to accept responsibility for delivering the meals for one month. Response from the churches has been gratifying, according to Village Health Director Frank Charlton.

Meals are prepared at Northwest Community Hospital under the direction of Ruth Shub, director of food service. The hot portions of the meal are stacked in a specially designed rack with an insulated cover, designed to carry a maximum of eight meals. The cold portion of each dinner is carried in a paper bag.

AT PRESENT, SEVEN persons are receiving the hot noon meal. One volunteer per day is all that is needed, easily completing the route in a little over an hour.

The Arlington Heights Evangelical Free Church is responsible for the month of November. Norman H. Cook and his "team" — Ted Van Abema, Clara Witte, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Herndon and Ralph Bemis — divide up the days of the week conveniently among themselves.

The recipients unanimously praise the program, relish the food, and enjoy having someone visit them daily. One woman on a bland diet, with a far from bland personality, exclaimed cordially, "Oh sit down and stay awhile. I'd rather talk than eat!"

The Palatine Township Senior Citizens Council, just a little more than a year old, has had a "Meals on Wheels" program in operation since last February. Between three and seven recipients receive a hot dinner and bag supper, made up at St. Joseph's Home for the Elderly, Palatine, following doctors' dietary recommendations.

Director of the council and case worker for each recipient, Louise Robertson personally interviews applicants, screens them, re-evaluates them every six weeks, and enlists the help of volunteers to keep the program moving smoothly.

"Our volunteers are marvelous," she said. "If anything is amiss, they report it immediately. They have even taken doggie biscuits to the dog!"

MOUNT PROSPECT has a home-delivered meals program administered by the Village of Mount Prospect Senior Citizen Office. With the help of two or more volunteers, from four to seven people receive meals each day. Applicants are screened by Senior Citizens Coordinator Kathy Stoga, and meals are transported from Lutheran General Hospital.

Sometimes a home meal program is all that's needed for the ill, the convalescing, the handicapped or the elderly to maintain their independence in the familiar, friendly environment of their own living quarters. Home delivered meals meet the needs of many for social contact. And, more dramatically, the delivery of meals has even led to emergency medical care, to alerting physicians to obvious changes in the recipient's condition, to procuring the services of a visiting nurse.

Said Carol Litman, "It's the outside contact with the world that makes the difference between someone being okay or not okay."

A HOT MEAL and a warmhearted sight to Mrs. Clara Donahue whose respiratory condition prevent her going far from her apartment. visitor, in this case Ralph Bemis of Arlington Heights, are a welcome

A REGISTERED dietitian plans Matthew Robertson's menu to meet the requirements of his diabetic diet. Almost 83, he gets the hot noon meal and cold supper five days a week, has help from his son and daughter-in-law on weekends. On Fridays Mary Conlon is his "friendly waitress."

Home-delivered meals in Northwest suburbs

The cost of subscribing to a home-delivered meal program varies from place to place, but in all cases it is reasonable and non-profit. Cost may be ascertained at the same time one calls for application information, as described below:

• Lutheran General Hospital:

Any homebound person living within five miles of the hospital may request this service by calling the Home Care Office, 696-5068. If he is eligible, his physician will be contacted for approval and any special diet orders.

More volunteer drivers are needed to serve one day a week or to be on call as substitutes. One may volunteer by calling Carol Litman mornings at 696-5105.

• Arlington Heights:

Senior citizens living in Arlington Heights who feel they are eligible for Meals on Wheels may call Mrs. Delores Bricker at the Village Hall, 253-2340. Many local churches have accepted the responsibility of providing volunteers one month of the year. The meals are prepared at Northwest Community Hospital.

• Mount Prospect:

Applicants living in the Mount Prospect area may contact Senior Citizens Coordinator Kathy Stoga at 398-4587. More volunteers are needed and may offer their help by calling the same number. Meals are obtained from Lutheran General Hospital.

• Palatine Township:

For information regarding home delivery of meals anywhere within Palatine Township, applicants may call Louise Robertson at 991-1112. She would be especially happy to hear from anyone who wishes to volunteer. Meals are prepared at St. Joseph's Home for the Elderly.

• Bensenville Home:

Meals prepared at the home are delivered within a five-mile radius, presently to Bensenville, Wood Dale and parts of Addison, although the delivery area could reach into parts of Des Plaines and Elk Grove Village. More information is available by calling 766-5800.

• Alexian Brothers Medical Center:

Though a home-delivered meal program does not exist at this time, one is being considered and, depending upon the need, may be put into effect in the not too distant future.

Tradition reigns Oct. 26 as Bette Davis marries

The bride and groom centerpiece used years ago at the wedding of the groom's grandparents decorated the cake at the wedding reception of Bette Davis and Dr. Gregory Rackauskas on Oct. 26. The bride's paternal grandmother furnished the traditional garter. Bette's gown was the wedding dress worn 25 years ago by her mother.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard K. Davis, 2103 Adams, Rolling Meadows, Bette and Gregory, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Rackauskas of Springfield, Ill., were married in St. Theresa Catholic Church, Palatine. Bette's sister, Mary Davis Craig, was soloist for the 2 p.m. double ring service.

Bette's hoop-skirted gown was fashioned of ivory slipper satin with Chantilly lace bertha collar and circular train. Her veil, also trimmed in Chantilly, was held in place by a Juliet cap trimmed with seed pearls, and she carried a cascade of roses with baby's breath.

Elizabeth McDermott, Chicago, was maid of honor, and the couple's sisters, Terri Davis and Mary Ann Rackauskas, were bridesmaids. All were gowned alike in burgundy velvet with ecru lace, and carried nosegays of pink and white carnations accented with red baby roses.

THE BRIDE'S 8-year-old sister, Kathy, was flower girl. Her gown was also of burgundy velvet, and she carried her carnations and roses in a basket.

Best man was Dave Haver, Springfield, and ushers were Dr. Chuck Holmberg, Chicago, and David Stette, Springfield.

A dinner reception for 175 guests was held at The Camelot in Des Plaines after which the newlyweds honeymooned at Eagle Lake, Land O'Lakes, Wis. They are now at home in a Chicago apartment.

The new Mrs. Rackauskas, a registered nurse employed at St. Mary of Nazareth Hospital, Chicago, is a graduate of Sacred Heart of Mary High School and St. Mary of Nazareth School of Nursing. Her bridegroom, a graduate of Springfield College and the University of Illinois Medical Center, Chicago, with a doctorate in dental surgery, is with Logan Square Medical Center in Chicago and the Maywood Clinic, Maywood, Ill.

Dr. and Mrs. Gregory Rackauskas

Susan and Edward Pate now at home in Sycamore, Ill.

Susan Dee Henrich and her bridegroom, Edward L. Pate, honeymooned in Hawaii for two weeks and are now residing in their own home in Sycamore, Ill. The couple were married Oct. 26 in Lutheran Church of the Cross, Arlington Heights.

Susan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henrich, 1278 S. Mitchell, Arlington Heights, is a '73 graduate of Rolling Meadows High School. She met her bridegroom when she was a secretary at Ampex Computer Service Division in Elk Grove Village and Ed joined the company as a computer technician.

Son of Mr. and George Pate of Crystal Lake, Ed is a graduate of Northern Illinois University. He is now with Sorbus Inc., Elmhurst, where Susan was also employed.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pate

FOR THE 10:30 A.M. double ring service Susan wore a gown of silk organza and peau d'ange lace fashioned with A-line skirt with lace detail at the hemline. Her chapel-length mantilla was bordered with matching lace and fell from a crown of the same lace. She carried white mums, white fugi mums, stephanotis and ivy.

Her "something old" was the garter worn by her mother at her wedding in 1950.

Her sister, Judy, was maid of honor, and Sharon Peters, Arlington Heights, was bridesmaid. Both wore jade green halter gowns with forest green velvet hooded jackets. Their flowers were white mums and pale yellow fugi mums with greens.

Best man was Michael Egger of Mount Prospect, and ushers were the bride's brother, Steve of Wheaton, Roman Medjnsky, Chicago; and James Norris, DeKalb.

A reception for 100 guests was held in Old Orchard Country Club.

Bike safety rule date pushed back

Whoops! The Consumer Product Commission pulled the rug out from under this columnist. It was reported here several weeks ago that the CPSC's new safety regulations for bicycles would become effective Jan. 1.

However, the columnist has been informed by Schwinn Bicycle's Jay Towle that the effective date was moved back to May 1. According to the CPSC, the Jan. 1 date did not allow time for public comment on the regulations and "would have placed an unreasonable burden on... manufacturers."

In the meantime, the commission will publish for comment the proposed changes relating to coaster brakes, chain guards and front wheel/handlebar attachment.

Towle, who is vice chairman of Schwinn's Product Safety and Standards Committee, along with at least one local bike dealer, have expressed great concern over the effect the previous report might have on Christmas bicycle sales.

I concede the changed date make it less practical to put off buying a bike. But parents making that purchase for Christmas should still shop carefully for maximum safety features. Bicycles are the leading cause of consumer product-related injuries, as recorded by the commission's hospital surveillance system.

According to bicycle dealers contacted previously, Schwinn bikes will probably require fewest changes overall, although that will vary depending on the model of bicycle.

PARENTS USING General Motors' infant carrier "Love Seat" are being warned by the company of a potential hazard when the seat is used outside the car.

GM reported complaints from three owners that their infants slipped down in the seat and caught their heads. The infants were freed without injury, but GM urges parents always to be sure the restraint straps are fastened at all times, whether in the car or out.

GM is also developing a modification for the seat when used outside the car. The device will restrict the size of the openings where the car's seat belts come through, for use of the seat outside the car. The device will eliminate the danger that an infant could get his neck caught in those holes.

The modification kit will be supplied to owners "as soon as possible at no charge," GM said.

The consumer

by Monica Wilch Perin

The hazard exists only in the 265,000 infant carriers produced since July 14, 1973. The date of production is stamped on the label of the carrier.

GM's 1974 "Love Seat" received a top rating from Consumer Reports for effectiveness in protecting infants from injury during collisions.

Want an electronic calculator for Christmas? Here are some pointers from the industry on selecting the best model for you:

- Any calculator should offer at least the four basic arithmetic functions — addition, subtraction, multiplication and division.

- Don't buy more than you need — or less. A basic pocket size model for around $20 should be adequate for students in the lower grades, or for routine household budget figuring. But anyone intending to use advanced math would need a more sophisticated model.

- Be sure you can read the display panel easily. The numbers should be not too small, and should be a greenish color.

- A floating decimal system is a useful feature, eliminating dilemmas over where to place the decimal.

- An automatic constant is another useful device available on the basic $20 models of some manufacturers. It saves repeating a number used in successive calculations.

- Consider what capacity you need in the answer display panel and buy accordingly.

- Be sure the salesman shows you how to operate the calculator or supplies you with thorough instructions.

- Be sure the calculator works equally well on batteries or on AC current with an adapter.

- Look into the reputation of the manufacturer before you buy, and check the warranty carefully.

Standby wall cleaners best; write her for brand names

Dear Dorothy: The wall cleaner you recommended is great for the big overall swabbings. What I'm wondering is whether you have something just as good for the daily smears.

—Nancy Beth Doss

Nancy Beth refers to the trisodium mixture mentioned months ago. It is excellent for the twice-a-year major clean-ups. For the quick daily work, I started using one of the spray cleaners seven years ago. In between almost all the others have been tried, but I'm back to old faithful, which is quite a recommendation.

As with the big mix, the commercial name of this spray is available if you'll drop a note — with self-addressed, stamped envelope. I haven't done it myself, but some have written to say they even use some of these sprays for stains on clothes before they toss them into the laundry.

Dear Dorothy: My husband is diabetic, and it is difficult to come up with interesting dishes day after day. Is it possible to ask your readers to send in recipes? I'm sure many others could also use this information.

—Mrs. B. W.

Diabetic recipes have to be so exact I would think it important to have a cookbook specifically for these dishes. I suggest that all who are interested send $1.50 to the American Diabetes Assn., 1 W. 48th St., New York, N.Y. 10020. Ask for the "Diabetic Cookbook," which has standard recipes. For those desiring a gourmet type of cookbook, the association also has the "Calculating Cook" at $4.25.

Dear Dorothy: There's a new washday patrol in this house. Every one of the youngsters' pockets is examined meticulously. I've just had to cope with a red crayon one of my brood left in a pocket. The ordeal convinced me that eternal vigilance is the price mother has to pay.

Take pizza orders for Dec. 6 delivery

St. Hubert Council of Catholic Women in Hoffman Estates has a project that will take "the cook" out of the kitchen Friday evening, Dec. 6.

The churchwomen are taking orders now for homemade pizza that can be picked up that day at the church auditorium, Flagstaff Lane at Grand Canyon Boulevard.

The pizzas are deep dish, 12x18 inches in size, featuring homemade crust, sauce and sausage. They will be prebaked earlier in the day, can be picked up between 4 and 7:30 p.m. Dec. 6, and warmed for 10 minutes so the cheese melts and the pizza is served hot. They cost $3.50 each.

Pam Toomey and Dorothea Shaffer are ways and means chairmen who planned the event. Neither will part with the secret recipe to be used.

Orders can be phoned to 882-0453 or 882-4623.

Pair escorted by parents

When Patricia Ann Fitzgerald of Arlington Heights and Patrick Daugherty of Roselle were married Oct. 26, both sets of parents escorted them to the church altar and gave them in marriage.

Patricia's parents are the M. Joseph Fitzgeralds of 1610 Roanoke, and Patrick is the son of the Robert Daughertys.

The ceremony took place at five in the afternoon in the Evangelical Free Church of Arlington Heights, with a reception for 225 afterwards at Camelot Restaurant, Des Plaines.

FOR THE DOUBLE ring nuptials Patricia wore a white chiffon gown with a halter-type bodice of crocheted daisies. The dress featured long puffed sleeves and A-line skirt. Crocheted daisies also formed a tiara to hold the bride's veil, which was edged in the daisy motif.

Patricia's bouquet was of white daisy pompons, stephanotis and french carnations with a few yellow roses for accent.

Six attendants stood with her at the altar. Her sister, Karen, was maid of honor, and bridesmaids included another sister, Mrs. Lynda Gross of Hoffman Estates; Terry Drake, Mount Prospect; Cindy Lindsay, Carbondale; Cathy Sankansky, Schaumburg; and Carol Walsh, Arlington Heights.

All the girls wore yellow gowns with bronze colored velvet collar and cuffs and carried yellow Sweetheart roses with white daisy pompons.

THREE OF THE groom's brothers were among his attendants, Michael of Arlington Heights as best man and Steven, Round Lake Park and Kevin, Roselle, as ushers. Also seating the guests were Tom Kinneman and Ralph

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Daugherty

Karner, Roselle, and Tim Seagrave, the groom's cousin from Addison.

Steven Daugherty's wife, Patty, was soloist for the service.

The newlyweds are settled in Arlington Heights since returning from a two-week honeymoon north to the Dakotas and west to Colorado and Wyoming.

The bride works for Transamerica Insurance Co., Arlington Heights, and the groom for Citizens Utility Co., Addison. She is a '73 graduate of Hersey High School; Patrick a '72 graduate of Lake Park High.

Mary Taylor makes her wedding banner

Mary Taylor made a banner for the church for her wedding Oct. 12 to Frank Lentine. Both are of Arlington Heights, Mary the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Taylor, 430 S. Evergreen, Arlington Heights, and Frank the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Lentine, 1215 E. Maple.

The wedding was held in Our Lady of the Wayside Church, Arlington Heights, followed by a reception at Lancer's Steak House for 120 guests.

Patricia Taylor of Streamwood, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor, and bridesmaids were her sister-in-law, Petra Taylor, Mount Prospect; the groom's sister, Cathy; Sheila Meehan, Arlington Heights; and Carol Herder, Springfield. Her niece, Jennifer Taylor, 4, Streamwood, was flower girl.

TIM ACCARDO, Arlington Heights, was best man, and ushers were Bob Rosholt, Palatine, and the couple's brothers, Robert, Tom and Michael Taylor, and Tony Lentine.

Mary is a graduate of Sacred Heart High School and also the University of Illinois. Frank is a graduate of Arlington High and also the University of Illinois. He is with Commonwealth Edison Co., Zion.

The newlyweds honeymooned a week in Orlando, Fla., and are now making their home in Waukegan.

Plan your shopping, know facts to beat inflation.

Planning and a little imagination can help you beat rising prices, inflation and shortages of goods.

But that route to smart shopping isn't always easy — especially if you give in to temptation and buy a new gadget that catches your attention but isn't always necessary.

The planning-imagination route to getting the most for your money is described in the Family Banker, a money-management newsletter.

Planning ahead for a shopping trip and knowing the facts about what is being purchased can help shoppers get ahead and stay there, says the newsletter published by Continental Bank in Chicago.

The newsletter advises:

- Make out a shopping list before you enter a store and make a commitment to stick to what's on the list. This will help reduce impulse buying and make shopping decisions easier and more rational.

- Know how much you can afford to spend and stay within that budget. Realize that while paying cash usually means depleting savings or deferring a purchase until enough money is saved, buying on credit raises the total price of merchandise.

- Consider personal experiences and the recommendations of other persons in determining which products and brands of products offer the most value for their cost.

- Read and understand labels, tags and seals on merchandise. The smart shopper looks for specific information on the manufacturer, materials used, use and care recommendations, weight and size, safety standards and guarantee and warranty coverage.

- Compare price, merchandise, and service in several stores before buying. Different types of stores — department stores, specialty shops, discount stores and mail order houses — offer different services with their merchandise and, therefore, may vary widely in prices.

- Shop at the right time of day or year. The smart shopper avoids high traffic times such as his lunch hour and right after work, and watches for seasonal and clearance sales.

- Determine whether a retailer is reliable. Responsible businessmen stand behind their merchandise and are fair in handling reasonable exchanges, returns, and complaints.

- Know how to complain effectively if you are not satisfied with the merchandise you purchased. Keep all sales receipts, labels and guarantee or warranty information and refer to them when writing or visiting the store from which you bought the merchandise. If the store does not resolve your complaint, contact someone who can: State's attorney's offices, Small Claims Court, the Better Business Bureau, the Federal Trade Commission or the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs.

- Designate a single, specific location, such as a file, box or drawer, for storage of purchase records for easy reference in case of an exchange, return, complaint. (United Press International)

Fusibles are time-savers for seamstress

by JOANNE SCHREIBER

Are fusibles part of your sewing inventory? If not, you're missing out on one of the greatest time-savers available to home sewers.

In the past, anyone who worked up nerve enough to tackle a tailoring project was in for hours of tedious handstitching interfacings to sleeve hems, jacket hems, pocket flaps and other details.

Now, with the fabulous new fusibles, you can shape and stabilize your tailored garments by simply ironing the interfacings in place. The newest of the fusibles is Fusible Pellon, which has been designed especially for today's fabrics and sewing techniques.

Many fusibles are too stiff for the soft, fluid knits — yet garments made of these knits do require gentle support along front facings, collars and waistbands. Fusible Pellon is used on the cross grain for a soft, supple effect; on the lengthwise grain for a crisp line. Applied to a knit, it retains the crosswise stretch which makes knits so comfortable and easy-to-wear.

FUSIBLES ARE easy to use. Simply cut the appropriate piece from the tissue pattern, and trim off a half-inch seam allowance to reduce bulk. Lay the fusible interfacing against the wrong side of the section to be interfaced, cover with a wet press cloth, and press firmly for 10-15 seconds. Presto! The interfacing is permanently in position, adding just the right amount of body and shape to your fabric.

FUSIBLE INTERFACINGS are the newest time-and-temper saviors for home sewers. Here, fusible Pellon is cut from the same pattern piece as the collar section. Seam allowances have been trimmed to reduce bulk. The fusing will be done by pressing the two materials together with a steam iron and a damp press cloth.

THANKS TO ALL of you who have written in your favorite sew 'n' save tips. Here's a good idea for all of us:

Dear Joanne: I never buy potholders. Three thicknesses of terry cloth, cut 6 1/4" square, make a perfect padding and get the last bit of use from worn-out bath towels. Make the outside cover of scraps of washable fabric left from a dressmaking project; finish with a plastic ring in the corner. Stitch across from corner to corner to keep the filling from shifting. Takes just a few minutes! Mrs. R. D., Dallas, Tex.

SEE THE NEW HONEYWELL SPOTMATIC F

The world's first single-lens reflex camera with a behind-the-lens exposure system has been refined. The new Spotmatic "F" retains most of the classic Pentax features and more: "Full aperture metering" allowing both focusing and meter reading with the aperture wide open. No need to stop down the diaphragm, no need to re-open the aperture for clear focusing after the exposure has been selected. . . . The aperture is always wide open, so the image in the viewfinder remains bright. Other improvements: Coordinated metering that works on removal of the lens cap, new shutter release lock to guard against accidental release and "sure-grip" rubberized focusing ring.

Specimens still around for dry arrangements

Last call for roadside scavengers to hunt up dried materials for holiday arrangements!

While the weather has ruined some wild plants, there are still plenty of goodies free for the picking that will make up into lovely Thanksgiving centerpieces, party home decorations and gifts.

Cattails are just about gone, but if you are lucky enough to get some firm specimens, a little shellac will keep them from shattering. Wet weather rotted out much of the milkweed pods, but you can still manage to find fair specimens. Be sure to open the pods and take out the seeds. If the outside of the pods have been discolored (but not rotted by weather), dip in bleach to whiten, then let dry and harden them.

THE TOOLS OF A florist's trade are his picks and wires. If you're going to make your weeds up into arrangements, you'll need some four-inch picks to attach them into a piece of plastic foam and maybe some No. 24 wire to pierce the pods so you can get a grip on the material to pick it. Buy some green or brown Floratape while you're at the florist getting picks and wires, to cover up the mechanics and be sure to camouflage the foam with leaves, moss or some other good hider.

Speaking of leaves (this goes for ferns too), you can preserve them so they don't dry and crumble by dipping them in a solution of one part glycerin to two parts of water. (Buy glycerin from a drugstore. You can also use the glycerin hit with magnolia leaves, spirea leaves, flowering almond — shrubs you may have in your backyard. Hydrangea blossoms need to be sprayed with "mum shatter," "super sealer" or the like to prevent a mess.

MANY OF THE dried roadside plants need no preservative treatment at all. Just pick and use: dock, mullein, Joe Pye weed, sumac, yarrow and tansy, for instance. The last two can be sprayed with yellow spray paint to hold their color. Concerning sumac, you can't confuse staghorn sumac with poison sumac, if you remember that staghorn sumac (the good kind) has RED seedhead flowers and they are borne at the top end of the branches. Joe Pye weed looks so different dry from fresh that when I first saw it dried, I didn't even know it was Joe Pye weed. Fresh it has a lovely pink large flower head. The dry is pale, almost colorless, lacy, a hanging cluster with a couple "strands" of leaves arching gracefully down. I did a lovely arrangement with it for a neighbor in a moonshine still she uses as a flower arrangement container.

Mums, if you have any left close to the house where they are protected — ha — can be saved in the same manner as zinnias, marigolds, asters, pansies, etc. Use a mixture of two parts of borax to two parts of corn meal. If you don't want to waste corn meal, use one part of dry white sand instead of two parts corn meal. Be sure flowers are dry. Place flowers in a box on a layer of borax and carefully sprinkle additional mixture over the flowers so that the petals are completely covered but not crushed or bent. Cover box and wait seven to ten days.

TEASEL IS sharp and prickly like thistle, but I've seen elegant flower composites made up of a teasel in the center with pumpkin seeds glued (with Sobo glue — that's what the florists use) around the perimeter of the teasel in two or three rows. Each flower sells for $1 or more. If you look closely at some of the dried flowers for sale at the local gift shops, you'll see they are composites of various materials.

Finally, while the weather is still fair, why not prune your evergreen so you'll be able to use those trimmings for holiday decorations? More on that in a holiday column devoted especially to evergreens at Christmas.

Service League takes children to circus

A small group of northwest suburban women who are dedicated to helping handicapped children recently provided an afternoon of pleasure for 22 youngsters and five therapists from the Willett Easter Seal Metropolitan Treatment Center in Oak Park.

Members of the Service League for Handicapped Children took the group to see a performance of Ringling Brothers Circus in Chicago.

This is just one of the ways the women support the Willett center and its functions. Although limited to 15 members, the league carries on an ambitious program. It sends money monthly toward therapy salaries, buys orthopedic equipment for individuals in need and buys equipment for physical, occupational and speech therapy at the center.

To raise their funds, the women arrange a variety of events each year. House walks, dances, bazaars, and art shows are the most popular.

No further action planned by county official in Dwyer School case

Cook County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick said Tuesday he does not plan any action against other persons involved with the Dwyer School for emotionally disturbed now that there has been a ruling in the case of John Whipple, former head of the school.

Martwick also said the decision by the State Teacher Certification Board to recommend revocation of Whipple's school psychologist certificate "was the only possible decision in the light of the facts."

Whipple stands to lose his certificate, which allows him to work in public schools, because he accepted the assignment as head of the school without an administrative certificate required for school administrators in Illinois. Whipple plans to appeal the decision. The certification board cleared Whipple of charges of child abuse which had been made by Martwick.

Martwick's statement that he does not plan any action against others involved with Dwyer, appears to place in the clear Robert Taylor, a social worker at the school who was Whipple's assistant but did not have an administrative certificate, and John Wightman, director of special education for the Northwest Education Cooperative.

WIGHTMAN, the man who assigned Whipple to his post at Dwyer, testified before the certification board that he never even asked Whipple about his certification when he asked him to head the school.

Martwick said he may still ask some of those involved with Dwyer to come to his office to talk about the school, but added, "What is most important now, however, is that we put this matter behind us and see that first rate special education is offered at Dwyer and throughout the NEC."

Martwick visited Dwyer for the first time Monday and said he was "impressed" with the program there. Teachers at the school asked Martwick why he did not visit the school before making the charges against Whipple and were told the superintendent had chosen to work through administrative channels on the case.

Tipsy Scuba divers play with death

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The county of Los Angeles has taken steps to halt drunken diving as differentiated from drunken driving.

Drunken divers are those merry inebriates who don scuba equipment, raise a toast to Neptune, plunge into the briny, and all too often wind up in Davey Jones' locker.

Incensed at loss of life in the deep six through booze or carelessness, the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors passed a law requiring scuba divers to carry a diver's license.

"People are dying, and we are going to protect the public," said Supervisor Kenneth Hahn.

"Nuts to you!" cried a sober group of 100 divers and diving boat operators who attended a board hearing.

THE SUPERVISORS won. It is now against the law in Southern California—where 25 per cent of all scuba diving in the United States takes place—to dive within 24 hours of taking a drink. This, of course, does not apply to backyard barbecue chefs who take gainers into their own pools.

It is well nigh impossible to enforce. How can county lifeguards and sheriff deputies collar a boatload of revelers equipped with scuba gear a mile off shore? Where would they walk a straight line?

But it is a serious matter. Some 125-150 divers drown every year in coastal waters of the United States.

ACTOR LLOYD BRIDGES, who starred in the "Sea Hunt" television series for four years is in favor of the new ordinance.

"Divers are afraid all the red tape might hurt the sport," he said. "But it is a law long overdue. There's nothing to prevent a guy from buying scuba equipment for the first time and wading out into the ocean."

"That's the most dangerous thing in the world. It's a whole different environment out there in the ocean. It takes getting used to — by stages. And drinking is just asking for trouble."

"Alcohol affects the brain to a much greater degree in the pressure under water. People who can handle a drink or two on the surface find themselves in life-or-death situations 30 feet below the surface."

THE NEW LAW requires all divers to take physical examinations and renew their licenses every two years. Instructors must renew their licenses every year.

A decade ago, Bridges spent more time underwater during the working day than he did on dry land. His performance in "Sea Hunt" is credited with helping the immense growth of scuba diving.

"I'm glad they passed the new regulations," the actor said. "Divers shouldn't object to showing licenses that they have been properly trained. It's for their own safety."

"And it's a good idea that diving boats carry oxygen resuscitators. It's time they were careful about the kind of air they put in the tanks."

Bridges, who recently completed "Stowaway to the Moon" and a Benjamin Franklin television special to be shown Dec. 17, will apply for a diver's license himself. He still is an ardent diver.

But he needn't fret about being arrested for drunken diving. He doesn't even drink booze at Hugh Hefner parties.

'God, make Grandma well again'

HELSINKI (UPI) — The world's children are writing to Santa Claus in record numbers this year. Many show the Christmas spirit by asking him to give gifts to others.

Brian de Sales Smith of Mechanicsburg, Pa., wrote Santa asking for a toy, but said, "I mostly would like God to make Grandma well again."

Alexander Geatcher of Scarborough, Ont., sent a Canadian dollar and said, "Here is some money for presents for little children who have no mummy or daddy."

Many of the world's post offices traditionally have sent children's Christmas mail to Helsinki because local legend says Santa lives on Korvatunturi Mountain in Lapland, high above the Arctic Circle on the Finnish-Soviet border.

Earlier this year, the Finnish post office halted handling of the letters, citing lack of manpower. But the Tourist Board put pressure on government officials and the post office changed its mind.

AUTHORITIES BELIEVE a record number of letters will be sent to Santa this year. Last year, more than 3,000 children wrote to him from overseas.

Every child who writes receives a handwritten answer on a multi-colored page with drawings of Santa, his helpers and the reindeer.

The letter reads: "I was so pleased to get your letter and to hear that you remember me. In the pictures you can see how my brownies are busy getting ready the presents for good girls and boys all over the world."

"Soon I shall set off on my travels and bring gifts to my friends in many lands — and to you too, with best wishes for a happy and peaceful Christmas. Santa Claus."

THE LETTERS to Santa come from North and South America, most European countries, Australia, India, Japan, the Persian Gulf and South Africa.

In one childishly scrawled note, Denise Boetwick of Miami, Fla., told Santa, "I have never gotten a letter from you and if I had one I would keep it always."

"But even if you can't write, God bless you, Santa, and thanks for making us kids happy in this sometimes troubled world."

Environment teachers vie for title, $1,500

A national awards program for teachers in environmental education will be conducted this year, cosponsored by the National Assn. of Conservation Districts and the Allis Chalmers Corp.

The winner receives a cash prize of $1,500 and the title of "Teacher of the Year" in the conservation field. The winning teacher also will receive a trip to the conservation district's national meeting. Teachers can receive more information on nominating procedures for the award by calling the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District at 438-5427, or by stopping at the office, 3. Old Rand Road at Ill. Rte. 12, Lake Zurich. Winners will be selected by environmental education leaders and the National Assn. of Conservation Districts.

Private firms may be decimated

National health insurance appears to be sure thing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — No matter what else Congress does next year, passage of some sort of comprehensive national health insurance looks like a sure bet.

Credit for a breakthrough this year must be shared by the American Medical Association and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, both of which offered compromises toward a final bill.

Although the AMA gave ground first, HEW struck the telling note with a memorandum to President Ford supporting increased payroll taxes and mandatory participation by both employers and their workers. Financing and the question of optional or mandatory coverage have been the major obstacles.

"The 94th Congress offers the best opportunity yet for a decent health security program," says Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers.

Woodcock and other major figures in organized labor, joined initially by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., favor cradle-to-grave health services administered and financed entirely by the federal government through tax increases.

THE PRIVATE HEALTH insurance industry, which would be decimated by labor's approach, favors more modest reforms.

"There is widespread agreement abt national health insurance should be enacted," said Dean Jeffers of Nationwide Insurance and chairman of the Health Insurance Assoc. of America. "The difficulty Congress and the nation face is to write such a program without adding to the nation's No. 1 problem — inflation."

Reflecting the inevitable, Blue Cross had advanced from mid-1976 to late 1975 its timetable for enactment of national health insurance, and its president, Walter McNeerney, says passage could come as early as next spring.

THE HOUSE WAYS and Means Committee left the issue for the 94th Congress to decide because, after prolonged debate, it could not decide:

- Whether to pay for national health insurance by imposing new payroll taxes on workers and their employers, or by dipping into federal tax revenues;

- Whether employers should be required to provide insurance for 1970 million workers and their families who would be required to accept coverage, or whether it should be optional for either or both groups.

There might be an attempt in what's left of the 93rd Congress to attach to a Senate bill some form of national health insurance for the poor and families faced with major medical bills, but it probably won't go far.

THE AMA, WHICH lost at least 54 congressional supporters for its voluntary "Medicaid" plan through election defeats and retirements, is considering a new strategy for the 94th Congress.

Dr. Russell B. Roth, the AMA's immediate past president, now says it would be "foolish" not to consider mandatory coverage. The AMA board of trustees has endorsed a proposal to require employers to offer private health insurance to their workers.

This would be a sharp departure from the AMA's previous position on Medicaid, a voluntary plan providing income tax credits for the poor to help them buy health insurance.

Detroit deer roundup begins with apples, alfalfa—bullets are next

DETROIT (UPI) — The great Detroit Metropolitan Airport deer roundup starts today with hunters hoping to lure their quarry with apples and alfalfa.

If that does not work, hunters will use bullets.

The herd of 40 to 60 whitetail deer has taken up residence in a wood area south of the main passenger terminals.

frequently appearing along runways, and officials consider them an airport hazard. So far, there have been no reports of accidents involving the animals.

When the Wayne County Road Commission, which operates the airport, said last week it would shoot the deer and donate the meat to charity, there was a furor.

That shoot-to-kill order was dropped

Friday, which also was the first day of Michigan's deer hunting season.

Instead, the commission said Detroit Zoo experts would trap the deer for transportation and release in the wilds of the far north of the state.

BUT IT SAID any deer roaming the runways of the airport, which handles about 8 million passengers a year, would automatically become the target of armed hunters assigned to protect planes and passengers.

"We've got a job to do and a lot of people to please," said James M. Davey, the commission's managing director.

Dr. Robert Wilson, Detroit Zoo director, outlined a plan to trap the deer. It involves placing apples and alfalfa around wire corrals to attract the deer, then putting more bait inside the corral to trap them.

Willson said he did not know how long the operation would take. Other experts said it could take from three days to three weeks.

The commission warned that if the hunt goes on too long, it will revert to its original plan to shoot the animals.

No ripoff

PROMISING AN 'HONEST jump,' daredevil Heidi Schaezinger, 18, of Cinnamson, N. J., unveils the rock-st-powered motorcycle she plans to use in her attempt to leap the Snake River Canyon, site of Evel Knievel's unsuccessful jump. She calls Knievel's jump a "ripoff," and vows to do better.

Paul Harvey leads simple life—work

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Paul Harvey, the newscaster with the pipe organ voice, is the biggest radio-television personality in Chicago with one of the target nationwide followings in the news business.

His lifestyle can be described in a single word — work.

He and his wife, Lynne (whom he calls Angel), have even converted two of the four floors of their home into offices for seven employees for Harvey's many activities.

In addition to his two daily broadcasts for ABC radio, five daily telecasts for syndication in more than 100 cities and three-times-a-week newspaper column, Harvey writes books and all his own news copy.

He is a tall, impressively handsome man with a booming voice that speaks up for that majority of Americans who live between the communications centers of New York and Hollywood.

PRIVATELY, he is more reflective than he appears. He travels around the country averaging three speaking engagements a week for a variety of civic groups, service organizations and universities.

He often speaks of Angel, to whom he has been married 34 years, and their only son, Paul — a concert pianist — during his broadcasts.

Home is very close to his heart. It is an immense house in River Forest. The first floor consists of offices, as does the fourth floor. The second and third floors are living quarters. In the basement he has rigged up a workshop for his hobby of miniature radio-controlled airplanes.

THE 18-ROOM HOUSE is colorfully and imaginatively decorated, thanks to Angel, with French provincial pieces. Her bedroom is a study in silver and pink. Paul's has the masculine touch.

He has a dish of oatmeal by himself before dawn, and is at his desk in downtown Chicago before the rest of the world is astir. After a busy day he is home for an early dinner with Angel and young Paul at 5 p.m. By 8:30 he is asleep.

PAUL AND ANGEL are handy in the kitchen, but there is full-time help to prepare meals. But in their early days together Angel could cook spaghetti dishes a dozen different ways.

The Harveys treasure their time together because he is on the road so often. They are fortunate in that Angel is Paul's business manager and active in his various corporate activities.

IN ADDITION to their River Forest home the Harveys have a showcase hideaway ranch in Arizona and a large farm in Missouri bordering the banks of the Mississippi.

But the press of business and Harvey's voracious appetite for work prevent him from spending much time at either property.

Two or three times a week when the weather is clement Harvey can be found on the golf course flailing away. He once aspired to a scratch handicap but is content now to play in the 90s and enjoy himself.

Once a year he takes a few days off for a fishing trip to the Canadian wilderness with a group of old friends.

He takes pride in being the largest one-man news network in the world. And his voice thunders in indignation as he reports the news, it comes across as gospel.

JOHNNY CARSON

Carson had tough act to follow on 'Tonight' show, now tops pack

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — In October 1962, show business insiders pitted Johnny Carson because he was following Jack Paar as top dog of the "Tonight" show. The kid had guts, but Paar was an impossible act to follow.

Now, in his 13th year, brash, brilliant Johnny Carson brings NBC $40 million a year with sponsors standing in line and millions of television's most loyal fans. And show business insiders pity Jack Paar.

Johnny was relaxed in his office-dressing room at NBC, awaiting a taping session. Relaxed is a relative word as applied to Johnny. He appears as tightly wound as a three-dollar watch.

"I don't think of what we do as a talk show," he said. "Our success is due to the fact that we are basically a comedy program. Buckley, Frost and Susskind are talk shows."

"We do more variety, sketches and blackouts, and I open the show every night with a monologue. People tune in for more than conversation."

JOHNNY ALWAYS has thought of himself as a comedian. He has, in fact, a comedian's timing. He shares the comic's generally dour outlook on life when he isn't performing. He doesn't make jokes unless he's getting paid. His wit is incisive and offbeat.

"My job is to entertain people," he continued, "not to attack a guest's point of view. And I don't like to intellectualize on social issues."

"If you can make people laugh it's as important as making them aware of the prison situation in the United States. That's important, sure. But I will leave those exposes to other people."

Levine saves self by going back to films

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Movie tycoon Joseph E. Levine virtually saved his own life earlier this year by shaking off the creeping paralysis of retirement and returning to the thick of the film wars.

At 69, Levine sold his interest in his Avco Embassy Production company for a tidy $40 million to take it easy.

"That was more than Jack Warner got for his studio," Levine said. "He only got $32 million."

The stubby, kinetic movie impresario boasted he is responsible for 491 pictures, more than any man who ever lived, which he bought, produced, co-produced, imported or stole outright since the mid-1940s.

After 30 years of eye-gouging competition with hustlers, charlatans and even a few legitimate show-biz types, Levine found he couldn't quit the arena. Lassitude overtook him. Earlier this year, writing his autobiography, the ending was downbeat and he couldn't finish it.

Then he threw himself a life ring.

LAST JULY HE went to Paris to buy some paintings for his multimillion dollar collection of old masters. While there he went to see a movie, "The Night Porter," with eight or nine yes-men who worked for him in the old days.

"Afterwards they were afraid to say whether they liked it or not," Levine said. "They were waiting for me to say something so they could agree with me."

"I got so damned mad I bought 'Night Porter' to release in this country. And only a few months earlier I'd sworn I'd never sink another penny in a motion picture."

"After that I bought two more movies, 'Toussaint Louverture' and 'I'll Make You Rich Again.' I bought 'em all in six days, and I felt better than I had in years."

"The rat race is on again. Now I can tell people to go see the latest Joseph E. Levine Presents..."

"THE NIGHT PORTER," which stars Dirk Bogard and Charlotte Rampling, is a sleazy story of sado-masochism involving the renewal of a sexual relationship between a Nazi concentration camp torturer and a Jewish woman who welcomes the revival of their fun and games.

"I've had flops and I've had hits. More hits than flops. My last picture was 'Day of the Dolphins.' George C. Scott was in that one and cost me a lot of money."

Levine launched into a tirade against Scott's character and personal habits which scorched the tablecloth at the Beverly Hills Hotel.

He changed the subject. "Now with 'Night Porter' I bet it will never be shown on American television. The subject matter is too delicate, or too indelicate. But they'll show it on French and German TV."

Penalty stiff for official misconduct

There are a number of acts for which a person can be convicted of official misconduct, says the Illinois State Bar Assoc.

According to Illinois law, a public officer or employee commits official misconduct when, in his official capacity, he commits any of the following acts:

- Intentionally or recklessly fails to perform any mandatory duty as required by law.
- Knowingly performs an act which he knows he is forbidden by law to perform.
- With intent to obtain a personal advantage for himself or another, he performs an act in excess of his lawful authority.
- Solicits or knowingly accepts for the performance of any act a fee or reward which he knows is not authorized by law.

The Illinois State Bar Assoc. says a person who is convicted of official misconduct automatically will forfeit his office.

Also, public officials or employees may be convicted of failure to report a bribe.

Tin Man Haley thankful he 'knew when to get off'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jack Haley, 70, flashed his Irish grin and said, "There's a time to take the center of the stage, and a time to walk into the wings."

"A smart performer knows when to get off."

Haley sat in an alcove of his showcase Beverly Hills home. A Rolls Royce was parked in the carport. He is rich, retired from show business but vigorously engaged in business enterprises.

He still treads lightly on his dancer's feet and while the inevitable wrinkles and loss of hair are apparent, his girth is slender, his eyes lively.

There will be no benefits for Jack Haley. He planned it that way. He left show business gracefully, playing happy roles in upbeat films.

"It wasn't a wrench leaving movies, television and the theater," he said. "I was never an exhibitionist. It was a business with me. I don't believe there's no business like show business."

"Most stars don't get off gracefully for economic reasons. If performers save and invest their money, they don't have to appear before audiences in denigrating roles."

"Some stars get an emotional lift from an audience — Bob Hope and Milton Berle — but not me. Comedy is too full of tension."

"Some stars can afford to bow out. Gary Grant and Jimmy Cagney. How I admire them for not trading on what they once were. Like me, they don't miss standing in front of an audience. Adulation belongs to the younger people. Show business is a youthful thing."

HALEY FIROWNED thoughtfully.

"Youth looks at old people and sees gray hair, wrinkles and worn bodies. It doesn't occur to them that we old people have young minds. All of us. The mind doesn't get old."

"I think as youthfully as I did 50 years ago. I go to my office every day about noon and work until 6 o'clock."

HALEY HAS A STAFF of four who work for his various companies, mostly pertaining to investments and real estate operations. He can be counted among the largest holders of California property.

Although he doesn't play golf anymore, Haley is a member of Bel Air Country Club where he and his wife, Florence, center their social activities.

HALEY LOOKS BACK on his long career in vaudeville, the Broadway theater and movies without sentiment. He is writing his memoirs. Even his unforgettable portrayal as the Tin Man in the "The Wizard of Oz" does not evoke nostalgia.

"All of the cast are gone except me Ray Bolger and Margaret Hamilton," he said. "There's nothing to date that picture. It's a toy for a new group of kids every year. I get more fan requests for photographs now than I did when I was a star."

A devout Roman Catholic and a Knight of Malta, Haley attends Mass every Sunday. He also works with the St. Francis center in downtown Los Angeles helping the destitute, the troubled and the lost.

HE PITIED THE STARS who die broke in charity wards.

"It's tragic they don't protect their economic life," he said. "When a man loses his economic dignity it's terrible. Most performers pay no attention to business details. They leave it to other people and get robbed."

"I've always had an interest in business affairs. I enjoy going over deals, looking for the dangers and the advantages and making decisions."

"SOMETIMES I WORRY about my good fortune. I don't believe I deserve it. But I'm healthy. I've had only one wife, and I have a happy family."

"I am grateful for all those things, but sometimes I wonder what might have happened if I'd become an educator. If I hadn't been a performer, that's what I would have enjoyed most."

Carson anchors 'Tonight' show to top ratings

Denn Martin's and Jack Benny's, Carson said, never dealt with civil rights.

Johnny finds it difficult to remember highlights of his long run with the late-night show. Nor does he recall any memorable gaffes. He did introduce Barbra Streisand, Bill Cosby, Flip Wilson and Joan Rivers to stardom and the exposure to his vast audience.

He does recognize the problem of musical guests, wherein celebrities take their turns appearing with him, Merv Griffin, Dick Cavett and, earlier, Joey Bishop.

"We try to find new people all the time, but it isn't easy," he said. "Doing the show really isn't easy."

A MULTI-MILLIONAIRE, Carson is economically pressed into agonizing through an ad lib show every night, five nights a week.

"If this is your job and you enjoy doing it," Carson said, "then you stick with it. You grow old very quickly when you retire. If I didn't enjoy the show I'd quit."

"I could play Vegas and do six specials a year and do some writing. But that wouldn't be enough. I have to stay occupied."

Show time was approaching and the adrenalin was flowing. Johnny Carson gradually would build up a head of steam until Ed McMahon bellowed "Here's Johnnie." And the freckled comedian would step into the spotlight — at the head of the pack.

Trimming The Turkey!

The star of the Thanksgiving dinner table will always be the traditionally favorite roast turkey. But the trimmings can be artfully varied to add fresh interest to the menu.

Today's menu combines traditional elegance with new variations such as Harvard Beets and Onions, Apricot-Nut Bread and Pumpkin Ice Cream Bombe with Orange Rum Sauce.

To make sure everyone gets a generous serving of turkey, figure 1 1/2 pound per person when choosing the bird. If it's an already stuffed turkey, allow 1 1/2 to 2 pounds. This guide also allows for later snacks and next day dishes.

To insure the best possible flavor, carefully follow the thawing and roasting directions inside this section.

Harvard Beets and Onions

- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 1/2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 1/4 cup vinegar
- 1/4 cup water
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 1 medium onion, peeled, sliced into rings, 1/4 inch thick
- 5 medium sized beets, cooked, peeled and sliced 1/4 inch thick

In a saucepan, mix sugar and cornstarch. Add vinegar and water. Bring to a boil stirring constantly until sauce becomes clear and slightly thickened. Turn off heat. Then melt butter in a small skillet and saute onion rings. Add onion rings, butter and beets to vinegar-sugar mixture in saucepan. Let stand at least 30 minutes. Just before serving bring to boiling point and serve immediately. Yield: 6 servings.

Apricot-Nut Bread

- 3/4 cup dried apricots
- 1/2 cup shortening
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 egg
- 2 cups sifted flour
- 1 tablespoon baking powder
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1 cup chopped nuts

Wash apricots. Cover with hot water. Let stand 1/2 hour. Drain. Cut into small pieces. Cream shortening, sugar and salt together in large bowl. Add egg, beating well. Sift flour with baking powder. Add alternately with milk to shortening-sugar mixture. Stir only enough to blend ingredients well. Add apricots and nuts. Pour into a well greased 9 by 5 by 3-inch loaf pan. Bake in a 350 degree oven for about 1 hour. Yield: 9 by 5 by 3-inch loaf.

Pumpkin Ice Cream Bombe

- 1/2 gallon vanilla ice cream
- 2 cups pumpkin
- 1 cup packed brown sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 cups graham cracker crumbs
- 1 stick (1/2 cup) margarine, melted

Scoop ice cream into large mixing bowl to soften. In a small mixing bowl, blend pumpkin, sugar and seasonings. Fold seasoned pumpkin mixture into softened ice cream. Spoon into 3 quart mold. Place into freezer until ice cream sets or hardens. Meanwhile combine graham cracker crumbs and melted margarine. Remove mold from freezer. Gently pack down crumb mixture over ice cream in mold to form a crust. Place mold in freezer at least 24 hours. Unmold by setting into a pan of warm tap water. Invert onto chilled plate. Cover and return to freezer 2 or 3 hours. For easy slicing, place pumpkin bombe into refrigerator to temper about 15 minutes before serving. Garnish with whole pecans, if desired. Serve with Orange-Rum Sauce. Yield: 3 quart mold.

Orange-Rum Sauce

- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 4 teaspoons cornstarch
- 3/4 cup freshly squeezed orange juice (2 oranges)
- 1/4 cup water
- 1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon rum extract
- 1 cup orange sections

In a saucepan, combine sugar and cornstarch. Slowly add orange juice and water, stirring constantly for a smooth blend. Cook over medium heat stirring constantly until sauce becomes clear and begins to thicken. Continue to cook gently approximately 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add rum extract and orange sections. Mix gently. Serve warm or cold over Pumpkin Ice Cream Bombe.

Note: If rum is used instead of rum extract, substitute 1/4 cup rum for 1/4 cup water and eliminate the extract completely. Yield: 2 cups.

Mrs. Bert Johnson

Her turkey soup makes hearty meal

by LOIS SEILER

When the Thanksgiving feast is over, leftovers pose no problem for the Bert Johnson family of Mount Prospect. After the guests have departed, Bert pitches in and helps Dorothy by removing the meat from the turkey carcass and packaging it for the freezer. Then the Johnsons can look forward to one of their favorite meals, turkey soup, which Dorothy usually makes the next day.

She revised a recipe to suit her taste, cooking the turkey skin and bones with celery, carrots and onions, plus peppercorns, a bay leaf and cloves for seasoning.

Two hours later, the broth is strained and chilled. Then Dorothy skims off the fat and returns the broth to the stove adding rice, turkey and more vegetables, simmering them until tender.

This is a hearty and nourishing soup which is served as a complete meal. A salad and hard rolls, crackers or Swedish hardtack may be used as accompaniments.

THESE ACCOMPANIMENTS may also be served with another of Dorothy's meal-in-one specialties called Five Decker Dinner. The ingredients, which include bacon, beef patties, onions, potatoes, carrots and green pepper are assembled in layers in a skillet then simmered in a little water until done. Filling and flavorful, this is an ideal meal for the fall and winter months.

For the coming holiday season, Dorothy suggests a Swedish family favorite called Lingonberry Whip. While lingonberries are often served on rice pudding for a Christmas smorgasbord, the Whip is a little different and is used for dessert.

It simply consists of cooked, sweetened lingonberries, whipped cream and graham crackers, combined just before serving. The dessert tastes as good as it looks, according to Dorothy.

AS A "PICK-ME-UP" for the busy season ahead, Dorothy suggests a popular California drink called Orange Julius. She revised the recipe to make it low calorie, combining frozen orange juice, artificial sweetener, skimmed milk, water and ice cubes in a blender.

Blended until the ice is fine, the drink is frosty in texture and mellow in flavor. It is a tasty and nutritional afternoon or evening snack.

Home for the holidays to enjoy the family's Thanksgiving dinner and subsequent turkey soup are the Johnsons' daughter, Jennifer, a Wheaton College junior, and son, Tad, a freshman at Bethel College in Minnesota, as well as daughter, Julie, a junior at Prospect High.

In addition to enjoying cooking, Dorothy also likes to can several jams and chili sauce each year. Knitting, sewing and craft projects are among her other interests.

Rice stuffing offers unique flavor

Every year, the creative homemaker looks for new ways to serve traditional favorites at holiday time. Whole roast turkey is one of the most popular main dish selections.

Modern turkeys aren't anything like the smaller, tougher critter our pilgrim forefathers had to flush out of the bushes. But just for extra pizzazz, why not try it stuffed with a special mixture of rice, walnuts, eggs and cheese?

This recipe originated in southern Europe where rice stuffings are favorites for poultry. It calls for an unusual — but delicious — combination of ingredients in case you're looking for something new.

For a spectacular finish to the meal, bring on the pumpkin dessert. Old-fashioned pumpkin pie was good — but this year, add cream cheese and sour cream topping, garnish with pecans, and watch their eyes light up when you serve it. The Pumpkin-Cheese Pie can easily be prepared a day in advance.

Turkey and pumpkin pie — old favorites people look forward to when they're prepared in exciting new ways.

To roast turkey see directions this section.

PUMPKIN-CHEESE PIE

½ recipe Butter Pastry Shell
2 3-ounce packages cream cheese
¼ cup sugar
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground ginger
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
¼ teaspoon allspice
2 eggs
1 1-pound can pumpkin
Sour Cream Topping
12 pecan halves
Butter Pastry Shell

Combine 1½ cups all-purpose flour (unbleached) with 3 tablespoons sugar and ½ cup butter or margarine, cut in chunks. Rub mixture with your fingers until it's even textured and butter lumps are no longer distinguishable. Stir in 2 egg yolks until blended, then work dough with your hands until it holds a smooth ball. Press dough evenly over the bottom and sides of a 9 inch cake pan with removable bottom. Bake in a 300 degree oven for about 30 minutes or until a pale gold. Cool.

Filling

Beat cream cheese smoothly with the sugar and spices. Blend in eggs; then add pumpkin. Mix thoroughly. Pour filling into baked pastry shell and bake in a 325 degree oven for about 35 minutes or until the center no longer looks liquid when the pan is gently shaken. Remove pie from oven and spread sour cream topping evenly over the filling; return to oven and bake 10 minutes longer. Cool, then cover and chill thoroughly. Remove pan sides, garnish with pecan halves around outer edge, and serve. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

Sour Cream Topping
Mix together 1 cup dairy sour cream with 6 tablespoons sugar and 1 teaspoon vanilla.

SPANISH RICE STUFFING

¾ cup butter or margarine
2/3 cup coarsely chopped walnuts
1 medium-sized onion, chopped
1 cup thinly sliced celery
1 6-ounce package seasoned long grain and wild rice
2 cups water
1 cup chopped prunes
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 10-ounce package frozen chopped spinach, thawed and drained
1 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
2 eggs, lightly beaten

In a Dutch oven, melt the butter over medium high heat. Add onion and celery and cook, stirring, for about 5 minutes. Add the rice and seasonings in the package and stir until rice is coated with butter. Add the water, prunes, and nutmeg; bring to simmering. Cover and cook until most of the water is absorbed (about 20 minutes). Cool, then stir in walnuts, spinach, cheese and eggs. Yield: about 7 cups.

Young turkey best buy

Part of the holiday tradition is to buy a turkey so big that it barely fits into the oven. But a young bird, under 20 pounds when purchased, is a better nutritional buy than a mature bird, according to the Family Economics Bureau. A young bird, dressed before it is 24 weeks old, has 16 per cent more protein than a 28 or 30 pound turkey, which has had eight to ten more weeks to grow. Also, a young turkey typically contains one-fourth the fat and provides one-half the calories of a bigger bird.

Nutritionists prefer turkey meat because it is high in protein and B-vitamin content and low in saturated fat. Hospitals, schools and other institutions, which serve turkey year around, now purchase nearly half of the nation's annual turkey production. Ten years ago, 80 per cent of the turkeys grown during the year were sold in the last 60 days of the year — when holiday demand was at its peak. But now, only 47 per cent of the turkey crop is sold during the holidays, and birds mature for market every week of the year.

Turkey meat provides about 16 per cent more protein per pound than U.S. Choice sirloin, and significantly fewer calories and less saturated fat.

Imaginative flavors vary turkey dressings

Though laden with tradition, the Thanksgiving turkey often plays second to the stuffing when it comes to flavor. The dressing or stuffing accompanying your turkey offers an opportunity to create a memorable flavor accent.

Old-fashioned bread stuffings have broadened to include such tidbits as oysters, sausage, chestnuts, apples, mushrooms, shrimp and nuts. Selective seasonings such as sage, tarragon, basil, dill and nutmeg afford additional flavor variety. Convenient seasoned bread crumbs eliminate the process of drying bread and can be used as is or varied to suit your taste. Many cooks have chosen cornbread or rice as the basis for "something different" in the way of stuffing.

ALWAYS WAIT to stuff the turkey until just before roasting. Though this may not be convenient, it is the safest procedure. Contamination is frequent in pre-stuffed fowl, for even when the dressing is refrigerated, the cold may not fully penetrate it.

A general guide in judging the amount of stuffing needed is to allow ½ cup of stuffing for each pound of bird. Fill the turkey only three-fourths full, as the dressing will expand. Should there be extra dressing that does not fit the cavity, cook it separately in a greased baking dish.

If you're cooking a turkey breast, bake the dressing in a casserole. Place it in the oven about 30 minutes before you remove the turkey, and let it finish baking while the turkey "rests" before carving.

There is no set rule for the proportion of ingredients in the popular bread dressing. It should be palatable, light and slightly moist, well flavored but bland.

The following recipe may be used as a basic one. Chopped green peppers, sautéed mushrooms, cooked, chopped giblets and drained or slightly sautéed oysters may be added. Stock, milk or oyster liquor

Franfare

by Fran Heckart

uld may be used to moisten the ingredients.

OLD-FASHIONED BREAD STUFFING

1 cup chopped onion
1 to 1½ cups chopped celery
2/3 cup melted butter
7 cups dry bread crumbs
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1½ teaspoons rubbed sage
¼ teaspoon poultry seasoning
1 1/3 cups milk
1½ cups turkey broth (or canned chicken broth)
2 eggs, slightly beaten
Simmer onion and celery in butter until soft, but do not brown. Combine with bread crumbs and seasonings. Add milk, broth and eggs; toss lightly. Stuff loosely into cavities of bird. Makes 6½ cups stuffing — enough for a 10 to 12 pound turkey.

Sauce for vegetables

Enliven the flavor of vegetable dishes with this delicious butter sauce. In a small saucepan melt ½ cup (1 stick) butter over medium heat. Stir occasionally until it is a light amber color. Add 1½ tablespoons lemon juice, ½ teaspoon marjoram, ¼ teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper. Just before serving add ½ cup of coarsely crushed soda crackers. Pour over cooked cauliflower and asparagus. The butter sauce is sufficient for 10-12 servings of vegetables.

Roasting Directions for Turkey

TO BUY: Allow about one pound of turkey per serving to be sure there is plenty for seconds and leftovers.

TO THAW: Leave turkey in its original plastic bag and use one of the following three methods:

- Place turkey on tray in refrigerator and allow 3 to 4 days;
- Place turkey in heavy, brown paper sack, close ends and thaw at room temperature. Allow one hour per pound of turkey;
- Put turkey into sink or pan and cover with cold water (changing water frequently). Allow 1/2-hour per pound. Refrigerate or cook turkey as soon as thawed.

TO PREPARE AND STUFF: Remove plastic bag; remove neck and giblets from cavities; rinse turkey and wipe dry. Cook neck and giblets for broth for flavoring dressing, and for giblet gravy. Prepare desired stuffing and stuff both neck and body cavities loosely, allowing about 1/2 cup stuffing per pound of oven-ready weight. Fasten down legs either by tying or tucking under skin hand. Neck skin should be skewered to back and wings twisted akimbo.

TO ROAST: Place turkey, breast up, on rack in shallow roasting pan. Brush with butter, margarine or cooking oil, if desired. If roast-meat thermometer is used, insert into thick part of thigh. Bulb should not touch bone. Roast in preheated 325-degree oven. Time chart below is guide to length of roasting time. A "tent" of foil placed loosely over turkey keeps it from browning too fast. It can be removed from time to time in order to baste turkey. Remove foil for last half hour for final browning.

TO TEST DONENESS:

- Roast-meat thermometer registers 180-185 degrees.
- Thick part of drumstick feels soft when pressed with thumb and forefinger.
- Drumstick and thigh move easily.

TIME CHART FOR ROASTING TURKEY IN PREHEATED 325 DEGREE OVEN

Ready-to-Cook Weight	Approximate Cooking Time	Thermometer
6 to 8 lbs.	3 - 3 1/2 hours	All at 180 - 185 degrees.
8 to 12 lbs.	3 1/2 to 4 1/2 hours
12 to 16 lbs.	4 1/2 to 5 1/2 hours
16 to 20 lbs.	5 1/2 to 6 1/2 hours
20 to 24 lbs.	6 1/2 to 7 hours

NOTE: Because turkeys vary from one another, cooking times can only approximate; therefore, it would be well to allow an extra half hour of roasting time in case your turkey requires it.

Leftovers pose no problem when used in creative ways

It's only natural that after a big Thanksgiving dinner with second and even third helpings, some of your family may be feeling slightly mischievous about more turkey. However, with plenty of leftovers staring you in the face and the price of food being what it is, this is the time for creative meals built around leftovers.

For a start, here are two new innovative recipes featuring leftover turkey.

Club Turkey Casserole is something like a sandwich only it's better. It has layers of turkey, tomato, cheese and chopped bacon, nestled on a base of hot, white, fluffy mashed potatoes. As the casserole bakes, the bacon gets crispy and the drippings permeate the rest of the dish, resulting in a terrific flavor.

Old-Time Turkey Bake is another family pleaser. Two mixes, one for turkey gravy and the other for a corn bread topping, lighten the load for you. Yet the end result is eminently hearty and delicious.

Serve either of these recipes with cole slaw, muffins, lemon sherbet topped with fruit cocktail, and milk or coffee. This will provide you with foods from each of the four food groups needed daily for good health.

CLUB TURKEY CASSEROLE

- 1 envelope (5 servings) instant mashed potato granules
- 1 cup finely diced cooked turkey

- 1/4 cup mayonnaise
- 1 tomato, sliced
- 1/2 cup shredded Cheddar or American cheese
- 2 slices uncooked bacon, chopped

Prepare potatoes following directions on package, except reduce water to 1 1/4 cups; spread in bottom of buttered 1 1/2-quart casserole. Combine turkey and mayonnaise; spread over potatoes. Arrange tomato slices on top of turkey mixture. Sprinkle with cheese and chopped bacon. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes, until casserole is hot and bacon is cooked. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

OLD-TIME TURKEY BAKE

- 1 1/2 cups milk
 - 1 envelope (7/8-oz.) turkey gravy mix
 - 2 cups diced cooked turkey
 - 1 package (10-oz.) frozen peas, partially thawed
 - 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
 - 1 package (9 or 10-oz.) corn bread or muffin mix
 - 1 teaspoon parsley flakes
- Combine milk and contents of gravy mix envelope in saucepan; bring to a boil, stirring frequently. Stir in turkey, peas and pimiento. Spoon into ungreased 2-quart shallow casserole. Prepare corn bread or muffin batter as directed on package; stir in parsley flakes. Drop by tablespoonsful around edge of casserole. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes until golden brown. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

Turkey makes good 'cents'

From an economy standpoint, now is a good time to try turkey. U.S. Department of Agriculture marketing specialists say cold storage holdings of turkey are at a record level for this time of year. Holdings are one-third more than a year ago and one-half more than the 1971-73 average.

Turkey teams well with other foods. Some combinations you might try include curried turkey wings on rice; turkey legs deboned, stuffed, and baked; fried turkey wings with tender, light dumplings; lemon barbecued wings with noodles. And these suggestions are just a few of the many ways turkey parts can be served.

For a different variety dish, try this recipe:

STROGANOFF TURKEY WINGS

- 1/3 cup flour

- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- 6 turkey wings
- 1/4 cup fat or oil
- 1 1/4 cup water
- 1 envelope onion soup mix
- 3 cups cooked noodles
- 1/2 cup sour cream
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic salt, if desired

Mix flour, salt, and paprika. Use to coat turkey wings. Brown turkey in fat or oil. Remove excess fat. Add water and onion soup mix. Cover tightly and simmer until tender, about 1 1/4 hours. Place turkey on cooked noodles and keep warm. Remove excess fat from sauce in the pan. Blend sour cream and garlic salt with sauce. Heat slightly and pour over turkey.

Popular favorites in one easy pie

If the holiday pie-baking season finds you debating the relative popularity of such American favorites as apple pie vs. pumpkin pie, why not offer both in one properly spicy pie?

You will see from the following recipe that this pie is easily made. Richly fragrant with pumpkin pie spice, it calls for a can of pie-sliced apples to line two pie shells and enough spiced pumpkin custard to cover the two apple-layered crusts. In other words, these two pies should make a dozen or more Thanksgiving dinner guests very happy.

If you need another kind of traditional holiday pie, try the Spiced Cranberry Pie. The characteristic tartness of cranberries is cut by the sweetness of crushed pineapple, making it possible to use less sugar. Cinnamon, allspice and grated orange rind give it delightful aroma. If you're a born lily-gilder, you can serve this cranberry pie as a mode with a scoop of vanilla ice cream.

APPLE-PUMPKIN PIE

- 1 1/3 cups firmly packed brown sugar
- 3 tablespoons pumpkin pie spice
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 can (1 lb. 14 oz.) solid pack pumpkin
- 6 eggs, lightly beaten
- 2 cups half and half cream or milk
- 1 tablespoon vanilla extract
- 1 can (1 lb. 4 oz.) pie sliced apples, drained
- 2 9-inch unbaked pastry shells

In a large mixing bowl combine sugar, pumpkin pie spice and salt; mix well. Add pumpkin, eggs, half and half and vanilla extract; blend well. Place apples evenly over bottoms of pastry shells. Pour pumpkin mixture over apples. Bake in a preheated hot oven (425 degrees) 15 minutes. Reduce oven heat to slow (300 degrees) and bake 60 minutes.

Ways to sweeten with corn syrup

Responding to requests for ways to sweeten with corn syrup, the makers of Karo corn syrup have produced a folder of recipes and ideas called "Fifty Nifty Ways To Sweeten Without Sugar."

Since corn syrup is a liquid ingredient with less sweetening power than sugar, there is no one basic formula for converting recipes. More important is to use recipes developed especially for the use of corn syrup as a sweetener, particularly for baked products and candies. In beverages, bean dishes and other moist mixtures the amount of corn syrup is naturally more flexible. Readers may obtain a copy by writing to "Fifty Nifty Ways" Box SW 307, Coventry, CT 06238.

In the meantime, here is a recipe for Banana Nut Bread.

BANANA NUT BREAD

- 1 cup dark corn syrup
- 1/2 cup margarine
- 2 eggs
- 2 cups unsifted flour
- 1 tablespoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup mashed, ripe banana
- 1 cup chopped nuts

Grease 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Stir together corn syrup and margarine until blended. Add eggs; continue beating until light. Stir together flour, baking powder and salt. Add to syrup mixture alternately with banana. Stir in nuts. Turn batter into prepared pan. Bake in 375 degree oven 60 to 65 minutes or until golden brown and cake tester inserted in center comes out clean.

Serve parsnips as tasty change

When was the last time you served parsnips?

Parsnips once were a staple in Europe and were grown and cooked by American Indians. The fall of the year and the holidays find parsnips generally in good supply. Parsnips have a sweet nutty flavor and marry well in flavor with apples in a candied parsnip dish which goes well with traditional holiday fare.

CANDIED PARSNIPS AND APPLES

- 2 pounds parsnips, pared and diagonally sliced
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 apples, cored and sliced (do not pare)
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1/4 cup honey
- 1 teaspoon grated fresh lemon rind
- 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ginger

Place pared parsnips in one inch boiling salted water in saucepan, cover and simmer 20 minutes or until tender. Drain. In large skillet melt butter, add parsnips and apples, and stir in remaining ingredients. Cover and cook over low heat 10 to 15 minutes or until apples are tender. Makes 4 servings.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

longer or until a knife inserted into center comes out clean. Cool. Serve with whipped cream, if desired. Yield: two 9-inch pies.

SPICE CRANBERRY-PINEAPPLE PIE

- 1 pound (4 cups) fresh cranberries
- 1 can (8 1/4 oz.) crushed pineapple
- 1 1/4 cups sugar
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 tablespoon grated orange peel
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon ground allspice
- 1/8 teaspoon salt

Pastry for 2-crust 9-inch pie
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

In a large bowl thoroughly combine cranberries, pineapple, sugar, flour, orange peel, cinnamon, allspice and salt. Line a 9-inch pie plate with pastry. Fill with cranberry mixture. Dot with butter. Cover with remaining pastry rolled to fit top. Press edges to seal. Cut slits in top of pastry to allow steam to escape. Bake in a preheated hot oven (400 degrees) for 1 hour or until pastry is golden. Serve with vanilla ice cream, if desired. Yield: one 9-inch pie.

Holiday menu with tradition, ease

Today's homemaker wants traditional elegance without having to spend the entire holiday in the kitchen. Surprisingly, the traditional turkey itself may turn out to be the easiest part. Today's turkeys have 50 per cent more meat per bone weight than turkey a few years back. They are so tender, roasting times are about half as long as they used to be. The abundance of white breast meat makes turkeys easier to carve.

Turkeys are cleaned, inspected, fresh-frozen, and protected by snug, vacuum packed bags. You just thaw, remove neck and giblets from the body cavity, rinse and wipe dry. Turkey is oven ready.

Stuff the turkey just before it is to be cooked. Double Trent Stuffing is a mixture of celery, onions, spices, and cornbread stuffing mix — the cook's easy way out. Many excellent stuffing mixes come prepackaged for super convenience.

Sliced apple rings make a perfect foil for roast turkey. They make a quick-to-prepare garnish for the turkey platter as well.

To top off the Thanksgiving meal, try individual pumpkin tarts filled with a mixture of canned pumpkin, vanilla pudding, and nuts and dates. It's a hint of tradition with a delicious new look.

A creative cook today can use convenience foods to turn out a festive holiday feast that satisfies everybody's nostalgic longings yet gives a new zest to tradition.

4 tablespoons butter or margarine
4 tablespoons honey
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons lemon juice, freshly squeezed
4 medium apples, unpeeled (Golden Delicious, Pippen)
In medium skillet, melt butter or margarine. Add honey, ginger, cinnamon, and lemon juice. Cook for 3 to 5 minutes. Wash, core and slice apples in 1/2-inch rings. Cook in honey-butter mixture about 4 to 5 minutes, turning twice. Serve with roast turkey as garnish or accompaniment. Yield: About 16 apple rings.

DOUBLE TREAT STUFFING

1 square butter or margarine
1 1/2 cups chopped celery
1 cup minced onion
2 tablespoons minced parsley
1 teaspoon dried sage
2 8-ounce packages cornbread-stuffing mix
1 15- or 16-ounce can cream-style corn

In a large skillet, saute celery and onions in butter until transparent. Add parsley and sage, mixing well and cooking for 2 minutes. Mix in cornbread-stuffing mix, blending thoroughly. Add corn and mix until moistened. Yield: Enough stuffing for 14-pound turkey. Note: Stuffing can be baked in a greased casserole at 350 degrees for about 30 minutes.

GINGERY APPLE RINGS

HOLIDAY PUMPKIN TARTS

1 1/2 cups milk
1 5 1/2-ounce package vanilla instant pudding and pie filling 1 1/2 cups canned pumpkin
1 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
1 cup prepared whipped topping mix
1/4 cup chopped nuts
1/4 cup chopped dates
8 baked 3-inch pastry shells, cooled or 1 baked 9-inch pie shell, cooled
Combine milk, pie filling, mix, pumpkin, spice, and whipped topping in a deep bowl. Beat at lowest speed of electric mixer for 1 minute. Fold in nuts and dates. Fill tart shells or pie shell. Chill until set, at least 3 hours. Garnish with additional whipped topping and nuts, if desired. Yield: 8 tart shells or 1 pie.

Tortilla cheese snacks offer friendly welcome

Hot cheese snacks offer a cheery welcome to friends who gather after a football game or for any occasion on a crisp fall afternoon. These two recipes find special favor at our house.

Cheese Crisps is an American-Mexican recipe, served as an appetizer at most Mexican restaurants, but easily made at home. To save time and energy purchase a package of flour tortillas in the refrigerated foods section at your supermarket. Choose the 10-inch size, packaged by the dozen. Any leftover will keep at least a month if sealed and refrigerated.

Shred a good quality longhorn cheese onto wax paper. Four ounces is about what you'll need for each crisp. Heat oven to 400 degrees. Brush one side of flour tortilla with melted butter, put on a cookie sheet and bake until tortilla begins to puff.

Take sheet from oven, turn tortilla, brush lightly with butter and cover thoroughly with the shredded cheese. Return to oven and bake until cheese is melted and tortilla is crisp when lifted with a fork. Slide onto a cutting board and cut into serving pieces and serve at once. Because they cool rather quickly, make one or two at a time.

CHEESE BREAD is a recipe I developed several years ago after sampling similar products in a number of good Italian restaurants. Use a long stick of French bread and slice laterally (in 2 if loaf is thin, in 3 pieces if loaf is thick). Place bread slices on a large cookie sheet. In a small saucepan melt 1/4-pound butter. Remove from heat and add 1/4 cup dry burgundy wine and garlic powder to taste, stirring thoroughly. Brush bread with mixture.

Cover bread with slices of sharp Cheddar cheese, then top with slices of mozzarella and aged Swiss. Brush with wine and butter sauce and sprinkle with grated Parmesan. Preheat broiler to 550 degrees and place about 3 inches from heat source.

When cheese begins to bubble and brown, brush again with wine-butter sauce and sprinkle on more grated Parmesan. When the whole surface area of the cheese is brown and bubbly, remove and slice into serving pieces. Serve immediately. This bread has unusual flavor and I've never encountered anyone who didn't like it.

Mostly for men

Different stew with flank steak

Although flank steak is no longer the most inexpensive of beef cuts, it still is a lean cut that stretches to serve several persons. For a different beef stew, roll a beef flank steak around a layer of fresh herbs, onion and bacon. Simmer slowly until done and combine cooked vegetables with the sliced steak for a different beef stew.

PINWHEEL FLANK STEAK

1 beef flank steak
1 cup finely chopped parsley
1 tablespoon minced onion
2 thick slices bacon, chopped
2 tablespoons cooking oil
2 (14-ounce) cans beef broth
1 teaspoon salt
1 bay leaf
1/2 cup celery leaves
Choice of vegetables*

Lay the steak flat on cutting board. Mix parsley, onion and uncooked bacon. Spread over steak, roll jelly roll fashion and fasten with skewers securely. Cut roll into 2 pieces. Brown in oil in large soup pot. Add broth, salt, bay leaf and celery leaves. Cover. Simmer 50 minutes or until tender. Skim off fat. Meanwhile cook vegetables in boiling salted water until barely tender. Remove beef from broth; and cut into slices. Arrange beef pinwheels in casserole or individual bowls with vegetables. Heat broth to boiling. Pour over beef and vegetables. Makes 6 servings.

*Small unpeeled potatoes, onions, carrot strips, green beans, or other vegetables.

'The Early American Cookbook'Recipes created by Colonial cooks

by FRANK HECKART

The bounteous generosity of the land, the cultural contributions of many nations — not the least of whom are the Indians — and the remarkable ingenuity of Colonial cooks are credited with the creation of a distinctly American cuisine.

"The Early American Cookbook" by Hyla O'Connor (Prentice-Hall, $8.95) displays achievements of the earliest American cooks. The ingenuity Colonial women applied to their cooking was born of necessity. Working at first under extremely difficult conditions with a limited variety of food available, settlers became adept at finding many different ways to prepare the basic foodstuffs.

An introduction by Mimi Koren offers insight into the close relationship between culture and the evolution of recipes. She points out that many of the new dishes colonial cooks developed were based on what they learned from the Indians. Without this help, the settlers might have starved to death, she adds.

WITH SCANT resources of their own, the first colonists were dependent on the food the Indians could give them and on the native crops the Indians could teach them to grow.

Perhaps the Indians' greatest gift was the knowledge of corn, according to Mimi Koren. It quickly became a basic staple and remained so for more than a hundred years until it was displaced by wheat. The native American beans, including green beans, lima, kidney beans and black-eyed peas, were also gifts from the Indians. They joined corn as sources of hearty nourishment in pre-revolutionary days.

Cumbersome cooking implements, difficulties in preserving food and primitive sources of cooking heat posed hardships for Colonial cooks. However, by 1700 most Americans had risen above the subsistence level and their meals grew more elaborate and varied.

DINNER, SERVED at two or three in the afternoon, was the most important meal of the day. It might include for the well-to-do a lavish menu featuring several large cuts of meat, game birds, seafood dishes and meat casseroles, plus vegetables and a variety of desserts.

"The Early American Cookbook" offers a collection of recipes typical of food eaten throughout the original 13 colonies. The historical introduction sets the stage for the truly old-fashioned offerings. Some are representative of the times when life became easier and cooks had the time and means to prepare more complicated dishes — and write them down. Others, such as hasty pudding, date back to the earliest settlers.

HYLA O'CONNOR has adapted the recipes for our modern measuring cups and thermostatically controlled ovens. Precise measurements, oven temperatures and cooking times have been added for convenience. Traditional cooking methods have been followed, and only the ingredients available to Colonial cooks have been used for authenticity. Though a recipe may call for packaged baking soda instead of homemade potash, it's the same ingredient in a different form.

The recipes, gathered from original Colonial manuscripts and rare printed books, are simple and elegant. All are hearty and satisfying. They offer modern cooks a glimpse of history through recreation of meals enjoyed by our Colonial forebears.

Included among the recipes are delightful offerings such as fried salt pork, Williamsburg Chicken 'n Ham, dandelion wine, Anadama Bread, Gooseberry Cat-sup and roast venison.

PUMPKIN SOUP
Pumpkins were one of the Indians'

many gifts to the settlers. The cheery orange vegetables were baked in the ashes, stewed, made into puddings and into the pumpkin pie that has become a Thanksgiving tradition. They were also — less familiar to us now — made into a hearty soup.

1 small pumpkin
1/3 cup butter, divided
1 quart chicken or beef stock
1 tablespoon sugar
Salt and pepper to taste
Pinch of ground allspice
Milk or light cream

Peel, seed and cut pumpkin in small chunks. There should be about 1 quart of pumpkin wedges or pieces. Place in a saucepan with half the butter, the stock, sugar and 1 teaspoon salt. Bring to a boil, lower heat and simmer about 35 minutes, or until pumpkin is tender. Press through sieve and return pulp to saucepan. Season with pepper and allspice and additional salt if necessary. Add remaining butter and enough milk to make a soup of the desired consistency. Heat, but do not boil. Serve with fried bread if desired. About 6 servings.

HOPPING JOHN
2 cups dried black-eyed peas

1/2 pound bacon, in one piece
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup long-grained rice

Pick over peas. Cover with cold water and let soak overnight. Put bacon in a kettle with 2 quarts water, bring to a boil, and simmer about 1 hour. Add drained peas and salt and return to a boil. Continue cooking gently about 30 minutes or until peas are almost tender. Add rice, bring to a boil and simmer 15 to 20 minutes, or until rice is tender. Remove bacon and reserve. Drain peas and rice and put in a warm oven for a few minutes until rice is fluffy. Slice the bacon and serve with the peas and rice, along with hot corn bread and butter. 6 servings.

BOURBON SWEET POTATOES

4 pounds sweet potatoes or yams
1/2 cup butter, melted
1/2 cup bourbon
1/3 cup orange juice
1/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon apple pie spice
1/2 cup chopped pecans

Scrub potatoes. Cook in boiling salted water to cover about 35 minutes, or just until tender. Drain; cool slightly and peel. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease a 6-cup baking dish. Place potatoes in a large bowl and whip with an electric beater. Add butter, bourbon, orange juice, brown sugar, salt and apple pie spice. Beat until fluffy. Spoon mixture into baking dish. Sprinkle nuts over top. Bake 45 minutes, or until hot and lightly browned. 8 servings.

Softie plays rugged role

Akins reaches goal in 'Movin' On'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Claude Akins, a character actor for years and a perennial guest star on television shows, has finally achieved his dream with a series of his own, "Movin' On."

Akins' rugged features and rock quarry voice make him the perfect stereotype villain.

But he's almost heroic as the tough truck driver in the new NBC show.

Ferocious as he may appear externally, Akins is essentially a softie who is family-oriented. He and his wife Therese (whom he calls Pie) have been married 23 years.

Their children are Claude Jr., 17, Wendy, 15, and Michelle, 13.

Each youngster excels in a different field. Claude Jr. is a top flight amateur golfer who hopes to turn professional one day. A high school senior, he has won several tournaments.

Wendy is a budding young artist whose oil canvases decorate the family home. And little Michelle is a ribbon winning swimmer.

Pie is an excellent tennis player while Akins tries to match his son on the golf course.

IT IS ONLY natural that then the Akins home in the San Fernando Valley is filled with trophies, ribbons and plaques. Until this year the lion's share of golf trophies in the family den belonged to Akins, but they have been surpassed by Claude Jr.'s prizes.

The ranch style house is comfortably have a dinner party, Pie tries a new recipe.

CLAUDE LIKES to barbecue and fancies himself a chef with roast pork on a spit, basted regularly with a mixture of orange juice, butter and honey. The juice is provided by oranges grown on his own property.

The Akins family pet is Skipper, a mixture of collie and golden retriever who body surfs when he is taken to the beach. Claude and Pie have survived their daughter's collection of tropical fish, rabbits, mice and parakeets in the past.

The entire clan attends the circus, ice shows, ball game and other attractions as a unit.

PAPA AKINS' delight at having his own show is tempered by the fact that he works entirely on location a thousand miles or more from home. Most of "Movin' On" is being shot in the Pacific Northwest.

He left home July 15 and won't return until next month. Akins eats all his meals in restaurants during production and has learned to call a variety of motels home during shooting of the peripatetic show.

HE WORKS 12 hours a day, from sun-up to sundown, six days a week.

With the children in school and a large house to run Pie has been unable to visit her husband on the endless locations.

For the fifth year Claude has been unable to accompany his family on summer vacations. Just when school lets out, Claude inevitably finds himself reporting to work in a movie or television show.

The actor is comfortable in denim and boots, but he most often can be found wearing golf togs, returning from or heading for the links. He is a member of the Hollywood Duffers who hold several tournaments a year for charity.

If any actor leads a typical Southern California existence — featured by indoor-outdoor living with plenty of sports thrown in — it is Claude Akins and family, and they wouldn't have it any other way.

Girl Scouts to escort Santa Claus to throne

An estimated 200 Girl Scouts, Brownies and Juniors will escort Santa Claus to his throne in Woodfield Shopping Center's Grand Court at 6:30 p.m. Friday.

Santa will be in "Cinderella's Castle," with its decor depicting Walt Disney's "Magic World of Christmas." All Disney characters, including Mickey Mouse and Snow White, will participate.

Girl Scouts will sing carols as they ride down the escalators near J. C. Penney's and will parade to the Grand Court area.

The scouts include nine troops from Elk Grove Village. The shopping center is at Golf Road and Ill. Rte. 53, Schaumburg.

How To Write A Best Seller...
A Result-Getting Want Ad!

You'll get the results you want with a properly written Want Ad.
Lots of people get confused when it comes to writing a Want Ad.
Do you? If so, here are a few simple rules to make ad writing easy. A good ad is just conversation in print. So when you're preparing to place an ad, just write it the way you'd tell your neighbors about it.

Don't leave your readers guessing! What do you want to sell?
If it's an appliance, what's the brand? What's the size or capacity?
Model? Year? Any accessories included? Does it need repair or is it ready to use? Now put yourself in your buyer's position. If you were reading this ad, what would you like to know? Price?
By all means, put that in. In nearly every ad, price is the most important information. Anything else missing? If so, fill in those blanks, too.

Ready to write? Please, no abbreviations. Studies of advertising show that abbreviations decrease readability. You want people to read and understand your message. Make it as easy for them as you can.

When your ad is finished, read it over. It's fine to eliminate a word here and there, but don't "edit" to the point where the reader may have to guess at the meaning. You might save a few pennies and lose dollars in results.

Response to complaints

Pollution probed at construction firm

by JOE FRANZ

Investigators from Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's office are following up on a complaint by Wheeling residents that the Rock Road Construction Co. is causing pollution from its materials yard.

Last summer, after several complaints from residents, the village board said it would seek an injunction against Rock Road and the Meyer Material Co. unless the firm cleaned up its operations. Since then village officials said both companies have taken steps to comply with village ordinances.

David Rosenbaum, chief investigator for the attorney general's Environmental Control section, said Wednesday, however, that residents complained about a week ago that the Rock Road plant still is causing pollution.

"We sent some investigators out there, but the matter still is under investigation," he said. "We have received a complaint, but are not sure if any violations exist."

Rosenbaum said if Rock Road should close its operation for the winter, his office may not be able to complete the investigation until spring.

LAST SUMMER, residents from the Dunhurst area complained that materials from the open stockpiles were blown into their yards, coating their homes and swimming pools with a gritty oil film. Residents said the problem has existed for several years.

The gritty oil film apparently reacted chemically with the paint on houses and damaged the wood. Village officials said the problem was most apparent in the Dunhurst area when there was a strong east wind.

They said Rock Road was exceeding the allowed height of stockpiles and was in violation of an ordinance that prohibits materials from being deposited on a lot in such a manner "that they may be transferred off the lot by natural causes or forces."

Village Mgr. George Passolt said Wednesday, however, that Rock Road, 231 McHenry Rd., has reduced the size of its stockpiles and taken steps to prevent the blowing of materials. The firm, he said, also has housed its conveyor belt and is attempting to reduce its noise output.

"There's more to be done, but I think by and large they have done everything they said they were going to do," Passolt said. "I feel they have acted in good faith and am satisfied."

The manager said that planting of trees and shrubbery on the Rock Road property is all that remains unfinished. He said the firm has said it will do the planting in the spring.

PASSOLT SAID the village has received no complaints from residents since Rock Road has cleaned up its operation.

A spokesman for Rock Road said Wednesday he was unaware of the investigation by the Atty. General's office and said the firm has received no complaints since taking the corrective action.

Public ownership weighed for Palwaukee Airport

The possibility of public acquisition of Palwaukee Airport to ensure its continued use as a public airfield is being explored by the Chicago Area Transportation Study (CATS), a regional planning agency.

CATS representatives presented details to members of the Northwest Municipal Conference Wednesday night in an attempt to stimulate interest in an acquisition study for nearby municipalities.

CATS representative David NewMyer said retention of Palwaukee is one of the key goals of the 1985 Transportation Plan as it relates to airports.

CHICAGOLAND AIRPORT near Lincolnshire is another of 10 airports CATS has designated for public acquisition.

NewMyer said salaries and economic benefits of the airport have to be weighed against loss of Palwaukee Airport from the tax rolls or loss of development of the property.

The Village of Wheeling has expressed an interest in acquiring the airport but owner George Priester has said he won't sell to the village.

Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt said Wednesday night that Priester had indicated an interest in an airport authority made up of several municipalities.

Control over flight paths might be minimal even under a municipal ownership, but airport owners can require minimum noise emission standards, NewMyer said.

CATS REPRESENTATIVE Andrew Plummer said there was no reason to wait for analysis of public ownership of the airport. He suggested that communities that are interested should get together in the next four to six weeks. CATS officials said they are eager to meet with the interested municipalities.

CATS estimated in 1973 that Palwaukee's price tag could exceed $10 million plus an additional $4 million in new construction costs. Current cost would be higher, officials said.

The Villages of Wheeling and Mount Prospect would be most likely to be interested in the acquisition feasibility study, although other communities could become involved.

The Village of Schaumburg has already begun steps for a feasibility study regarding acquisition of Schaumburg Airport.

Village park district sponsors turkey trot

The Wheeling Park District is sponsoring a turkey trot Thanksgiving Day at Heritage Park, 222 S. Wolf Rd.

Registration will start at 9 a.m. and a series of cross-country races will begin at 9:30 a.m. There will be races for boys and girls of all ages.

The races will range from 220 yards to 1.5 miles, depending on the age of the youngsters. There will be a two-mile race for 10th graders and older.

Prizes will be awarded to the first five finishers in each race. First place finishers will be given trophies and all others will receive ribbons.

For further information call the park district at 537-2222.

Vehicle stickers on sale Dec. 2

Wheeling's 1975 vehicle stickers will go on sale Dec. 2 at the municipal building, 235 W. Dundee Rd.

A village ordinance requires the stickers be displayed on all motor vehicles by Jan. 1, but officials said the deadline probably will be extended to correspond with state license plate deadline, which is usually Feb. 15.

The cost of the stickers is $10 for cars and $6 for motorcycles. Citizens who will be 65 or older as of Jan. 1 can purchase the stickers for $3. The village will require senior citizens to provide proof of age.

Motorists who do not display stickers will be fined $5, as well as being required to purchase one at regular price.

Village officials emphasized that the stickers are available to Wheeling residents only, and cannot be purchased by persons living in unincorporated areas which have a Wheeling postal address. Those residents must purchase Cook County vehicle stickers.

All households in Wheeling have been mailed one vehicle sticker application, but those seeking additional forms can obtain them from the police department or village clerk's office or by calling 537-2141.

No cheers, little applause for forensics competitors

by JUDY JOBBITT

Two chairs and a table set the stage.

Brushing off the nervous jitters, two freshmen take their stance in front of the table and explain the setting. And a humorous duet skit begins before an audience of 10 forensics competitors and a judge.

This scene is typical of many in forensics. Last weekend more than 400 students competed in 11 forensics events in a meet sponsored by Buffalo Grove and Wheeling high schools.

STUDENTS WHO enter forensics don't get the applause, tribute or recognition awarded fellow artists in dramatics.

Forensics participants perform as individuals and respond to critiques from judges rather than applause from audiences. They participate in forensics meets Saturday mornings and perform only before their competitors and a handful of interested friends.

Training for forensics comes from participating in meets, coaching from experienced forensics members and adults and from observing other forensics competitors.

'74 turkey supplies up, prices down

Butchers, stores may sell at a loss to keep customers interested

The cost of turkeys will gobble up a smaller chunk of the family's Thanksgiving food budget this year compared to 1973 prices. A glut of frozen gobblers and an ample supply of fresh birds are reported by area butcher shops and food store chains.

"Prices of turkeys are somewhat lower than they were last year," said Joe Burkhardt of the Dominick's Finer Foods chain. "I've seen them featured from 29 cents (a pound) and up." Turkey prices are a competitive tool for the food stores during the holiday season, Burkhardt said. He said stores may sell the birds at cost or below to attract customers.

The Herald reported Nov. 15, 1973 that the average retail price for turkeys was 41 cents a pound.

"Last year's turkey prices were abnormally high," a Jewel Food stores spokesman said. Prices this year dropped to a range of 39 cents to 69 cents a pound. Heavy sales of frozen turkeys will begin today and continue through next week, she said, adding that the stores may break even or take a loss on turkey sales.

"RIGHT NOW, turkey supplies are pretty heavy," said a spokesman for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's poultry division office in Chicago. He said government figures indicate 556 million pounds of turkey in storage compared to 450 million pounds a year ago.

WHY THE BIG increase in frozen turkeys? The USDA spokesman said increased production, less promotion of turkey sales and competition from heavy supplies of beef and chicken account for the buildup of frozen turkey inventories.

The glut of gobblers in the market will mean lower prices paid to producers and the possibility of an upward swing in prices by 1976, said John Big, a poultry buyer for A&P Food Stores in Chicago. "A great deal of money was made last year by growers," he said. "Consequently they thought every year would be the same." Increased production in 1974 led to great financial loss for the producers as feed, labor and transportation costs soared, Big said. Some producers are dropping out of the market, pointing to fewer turkeys and higher prices next year.

Fresh turkey prices are higher than the cost of frozen birds. Jim Howland, owner of Howland's Meat market in Arlington Heights, explains, "It all depends on what you want to put in your stomach." There is a definite taste difference between the fresh and frozen turkeys, Howland said. He charges 99 cents a pound for fresh hens or toms.

"There is no such thing as deals," echoes Tom Arzewski, owner of the John's Coach & Carriage Butcher Shop in Elk Grove Village. "You get more with the fresh turkeys, because they're not dehydrated." He sells the fresh-killed turkeys from the Howard Kaufman farm in Waterman, Ill. at 99 cents a pound for hens and 89 cents a pound for toms. The price last year was $1.09 a pound.

CONSUMER RESISTANCE to rising

prices has cut back on meat sales at some food stores this year, said John Sobut, assistant director of the Illinois Food Retailers Assn. "But somebody's going to buy those turkeys, by God, at 49 cents a pound — that's a bargain," he said.

When the heavy turkey sales promotions get under way, some retailers will sell frozen turkeys at a loss of $1 to $2 a bird, Sobut said. The stores hope to make up for the loss through sales of other holiday foods, he said. Sweet potatoes, cranberry sauce and nuts are among foods that will be featured at sale prices for the Thanksgiving season.

Sobut reported wholesale prices for turkeys ranging from a low of 51½ cents a pound for 18- to 20-pound birds to 55½ cents a pound for 6- to 10-pound birds on store brands. Butterball turkeys ranged from 57½ cents to 63½ cents a pound at the wholesale level this week. Ducks were priced wholesale at 78½ cents a pound and 22-ounce Cornish hens at 90½ cents a pound.

GOBBLER GROWER Elving Sennabond of Butterfield, Minn., stands among several thousand turkeys readied for Thanksgiving season sale.

A HUMOROUS DUET of "Dennis the Menace" is performed by Joyce Allendorf and John Bauman in a forensics meet Saturday at Buffalo Grove and Wheeling high schools. Duet dramatic skits and other events let students present short scenes and speeches. Rewards come from judges' critiques and rankings toward a team victory.

large role in preparing a team for competition. Their support is also needed to host a forensics meet where they can oversee extemporaneous speech preparation, act as guides and do much of the clerical work.

Students show the wear and tear of the preparation and anticipation towards a meet when they complete each performance. Signs of relief, giggles and smiles come from competitors after their event when they sit down to watch others perform.

Forensics often is misconstrued as debate or drama, but it is a field of its own. Also known as Individual Events, it covers a variety of speech forms including drama, original comedy, interpretation, radio broadcast and extemporaneous speech.

Whereas debate teams receive one topic per year to research and debate in various meets, forensics performers select their own work and wind up with material as different as the number of competitors.

PARTICIPANTS in extemporaneous events are most closely aligned with debate because they produce speeches within an hour on a current topic. Extemporaneous students keep files with clips from periodicals to use at forensics meets. They draw three questions, select one question to write a speech on and present the speech an hour later.

Students participating in radio must present a five-minute broadcast with news items no more than 24 hours old. The presentation must be within 10 seconds of the five-minute limit or the participant is disqualified.

Dramatics and interpretation competitors can prepare their presentation in advance and present the same work at later meets.

Students go through three rounds at a meet. Each round pairs them against different students in front of a different judge. They must stay to hear all their competitors and once an event begins, no one can enter or leave.

The judge ranks the participants in order of excellence. The ranks are tallied and the school with the most over-all points wins the meet.

Students at Buffalo Grove High School said many on the forensics team are drawn into the activity through the oral communications class required for freshmen.

Mary Beth Lee, Buffalo Grove forensics president, said she entered forensics because she wanted to get over her shyness. Through forensics she learned self-confidence and how to present herself to others, she said.

TO HELP NEW forensics members, separate meets are offered for varsity and novice. A novice is anyone who has participated in less than three contests.

Forensics members also change the events they participate in as they learn their abilities and limitations in presenting speeches.

Larry Doyle started in radio broadcast but has changed to original comedy where he writes and presents a comic sketch.

"At the beginning of the year I was really shaky," he said, looking back on his first tries with forensics last year. "By the end of the year I was OK."

JEAN CASEY, Buffalo Grove head forensics coach, said students must learn to strive for personal achievement rather than judge's rankings.

"If you aim to please the judges, you please everybody but yourself," she said. "There's the point where you forget about the audience and judge and concentrate on what you're doing," Larry said.

And as they concentrate on what they're doing, they learn self-composure and a mature presentation of themselves to others.

Buffalo Grove seeks ways to get Lake Michigan water

by JOHN MAES

Buffalo Grove officials "have the feelers out" for finding a possible method of supplying Lake Michigan water to the village within the next several years, William Balling, village administrative assistant, said Wednesday.

The village is looking to provide lake water for general use as a means of supplementing a five-well system, which is the source of village water.

Officials estimate Buffalo Grove may be using Lake Michigan water within the next six years.

Balling said expectations that the village will continue to grow make it necessary to find some supplementary water source, although the well system will continue to be the major supplier.

HE SAID THE water table has been dropping at a rate of several feet per year due in part to other villages "mining" water in the area.

Obtaining Lake Michigan water would call for the village to buy water from another system that extracts water from the lake.

Although figures were unavailable, Balling said officials are waiting for cost estimates telling how much the village would pay to include itself in each system and how much water could be supplied to Buffalo Grove.

Cost and amounts of water available are major factors in determining which way the village will go, he said. Buffalo Grove consumes an average of 1.9 million gallons of water daily. That total will increase by four times in the next several years, according to village estimates.

BUFFALO GROVE already has asked the Lake County Water District to include the village in preliminary plans to extend a main that would serve Libertyville, Gurnee and Mundelein.

The system already serves Zion and the Illinois Beach Park near Waukegan from a plant at Zion that extracts lake water.

That plan would be costly, Balling said, because extension of the main would entail construction costs and overhauls to the Zion pumping and filtration facility to meet the new needs.

"That's the kicker," he said. "Taking Lake Michigan water is not cheap — it's an expensive undertaking. Just the logistics of the thing would indicate cost."

Buffalo Grove also would have to pay a higher share of allocated costs because it is farther away from the water source than the other connecting towns and relies more heavily on its operation.

DAMP, A GROUP of representatives from Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine is investigating methods of obtaining water from Lake Michigan on a regional basis.

Under consideration also are possible plans with the Lake County Public Works Dept. Balling says the department is trying to devise a new system for supplying Lake Michigan water to area communities. That plan has been only roughly examined, he said.

Another method that has been considered would be arranging with Northbrook officials for a hookup with their water system. Balling said Northbrook has its own water plant system and treatment facility.

He even mentioned the possibility the village could join in such a venture with Wheeling as a means of cutting costs.

THE PLAN PROBABLY would be the cheapest, he said but a problem might arise when obtaining adequate amounts of water for village use.

No matter which route the village takes Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said large amounts of red tape will have to be straightened out before any project geared at tapping on Lake Michigan water can get under way.

Agreements exist regulating the amount of water that can be diverted from the lake for general use and the state will not permit more than 3,200 cubic feet of water to be pumped from the lake per second.

Man found innocent of attempted theft

'Wait Until Dark' at high school Dec. 4-5

An innocent young blind woman is terrorized by gangsters searching for a shipment of heroin in Wheeling High School's production of "Wait Until Dark" Dec. 4-5 at the school, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd.

The suspense-filled murder mystery by Frederick Knott pits the blind woman, Susy (Cory Niessner), against the deceptively calm psychotic murderer, Roat (Lee Jacobs). John Peters portrays Susy's husband, Sam.

Other cast members are Mat Knapp as Mike, Scott Lark as Carlino and Karen Shatz as Gloria. Jack Mongan directs, assisted by student director Marianne Schell. Leslie Vanderhoof is stage manager.

Tickets for both 8 p.m. performances are $1.50, available at the door.

The play is not frequently done in high schools, perhaps because of technical problems, said Joel Mattson, technical director. The script requires several operating kitchen appliances plus a working faucet and sink, he said.

Through a few cabinet additions to a sink donated by a student's family and a long length of garden hose the problem was solved, said Mattson.

The set was designed by a student, Barry Taylor.

State drops charges against Heights man

The state dropped two criminal charges against a Prospect Heights man Tuesday in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

The charges of battery and criminal trespass against Lee A. Vivirito, 25, of 417 Willow Rd., Prospect Heights, may be reinstated, however. The charges stemmed from an Oct. 13 incident at 575 Fairway View Dr., Wheeling. Police said Vivirito allegedly grabbed and slapped Kay Wroblewski of that address and refused to leave her apartment.

'Sunshine' reigns as world champion

by TONI GINETTI

When Diane Klotz decided to buy her husband, Karma, a horse for his birthday in August 1973, she never thought just a year later the couple would own the world's champion Appaloosa.

That's exactly what happened. The Hoffman Estates couple's brown-and-spotted steed, named Sunday Sunshine, took top honors in one of three classes of competition this month at the World Championship Appaloosa Show in Oklahoma City.

Sunshine's triumph after winning 14 first-place honors in approved horse show competitions throughout the nation has made the 2-year-old gelding worth about $7,000, Mrs. Klotz says.

Not a bad return on a $1,500 investment made only 11 months ago. But, says Mrs. Klotz, fame and fortune was not the reason the couple bought the horse.

"I thought he was beautiful," she said. "It was a completely illogical thing to do. He wasn't expected to do well in competitions, although his breeding is good."

THE KLOTZ VENTURE into the equine world began a year ago when Mrs. Klotz decided to get her husband a birthday present and satisfy a childhood love at the same time.

"I've always loved horses, but I'm from New York and you don't see too many out there," she said, smiling. "When it finally became financially able for us, we bought a horse. We started with a grade horse, an unregistered horse."

The purchase however, was a little one-sided.

"I'm the kind of person who does something and then comes home and says 'look what I bought,'" she said, laughing. "A girlfriend of mine had a horse, and we had been riding her. It was the kind of thing where I said 'let's spend a day looking at horses for sale,' and I bought one!"

The couple sold their first horse when they purchased Sunshine in January from the Stoneridge Farm stable in Dundee, where they had boarded their first horse.

THE STABLE RAISES and breeds Appaloosas, horses known for their beauty, versatility and endurance. Sunshine was purchased at an auction in Utah by the farm to be sold, she said.

"We didn't buy him to show, but it kind of snowballed. Then we couldn't afford to keep him out of competition."

The couple joined two Appaloosa horse clubs, the Blackhawk and the South Wisconsin clubs, hired Jim Marshall from Stoneridge to train the animal and entered the horse show competition circuit in May.

The horse's victories are catalogued in a room of the couple's Winston Knolls subdivision home. Dozens of prize ribbons for general competitions adorn one wall, while trophies from regulation Appaloosa club competitions line the fireplace mantel and shelves.

The trophies include 14 firsts, the Illinois and Missouri state championships, and seven grand championships, awards which are given in each competition to the best of all first place winners.

MRS. KLOTZ SAID her horse competes in the halter category, in which the animal is judged by its appearance, breed qualities and movement. Victories in grand-champion competition qualify a horse to go on to the world show.

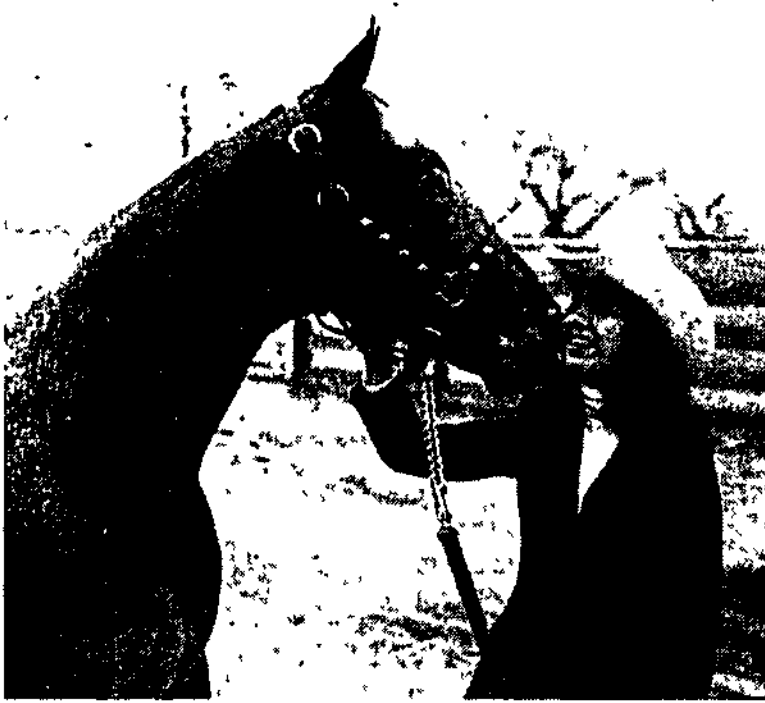

Winning the international competition, however, was an unexpected victory, she said, so much so that, although the Klotz' had traveled to most of the other shows, they didn't attend the major show.

"I was crying on the phone when they called to tell us we won," Mrs. Klotz said. "We thought it was out of the question."

For veteran horsemen, winning an international competition often never comes, but if their fellow club members are jealous of the Klotz' good luck, they haven't shown it.

"The people in the club are fantastic," she said. "We're novices and they've helped us a lot. It's very much a family type thing."

ODDLY ENOUGH, their "hobby" is not a moneymaking one for her husband, who works for Centex Homes Corp. The world champion medalion award, for example, carried with it only about $180 in prize money, she said, about enough to pay for one month's boarding fee.

Sunshine's board at the stable is $115 per month. Marshall's fee for a training period of one to three months is another $200. The couple also has two other horses, one is a riding horse and the other a yearling, also boarded at the stable.

"It's an expensive hobby, but when you have a horse like him, you can't not do it. It definitely takes money from your income."

There is a great deal of time involved in caring for the animal as well, and Mrs. Klotz said she and her two small sons spend at least four nights a week at the stable in addition to weekends.

But the time requirement would never be too much to make her give up the horses, Mrs. Klotz says firmly.

"I'd make time for it. I go to school part-time, I'm kind of a free lance photographer, and I have two children, too. But I would still make time for the horse."

Extortion, tax fraud

Hanover's ex-president pleads guilty

Former Village Pres. Richard H. Baker of Hanover Park pleaded guilty Wednesday to a total of 12 federal charges of extortion and income tax fraud.

Baker, 40, village president and liquor commissioner from 1969 to 1973, faces a maximum penalty of up to 48 years in federal prison and $30,000 in fines on seven counts of extortion and five counts of income tax fraud.

He will appear for sentencing Jan. 29 before U.S. District Court Judge Bernard M. Decker.

BAKER WAS INDICTED Aug. 15 by a federal grand jury on charges of extorting $10,000 from four liquor license applicants and $12,500 from Hanover Builders, Inc. and 3-H Homes, two major builders in Hanover Park.

Baker has been a controversial figure since he was elected to the Hanover Park village board in 1967 and resigned one year later for "business reasons."

Within five months of his resignation, Baker formed the People's Own Party and headed its slate in the April 1969 election defeating incumbent Village Pres. Eugene Domingue.

Baker's 1969 ticket backed an increased village water rate, supported a village master building plan and opposed a proposed 2,400 acre Metropolitan Sanitary District sludge farm in Hanover and Schaumburg townships.

HIS PROBLEMS began with a Better Government Assn. investigation of Hanover Park in 1972. The BGA charged Baker "played a questionable role" in development of the MSD plant and acted without village board approval.

The BGA report said citizens charged Baker was consistently acting against the best interests of residents and to the advantage of land developers and other special interests.

Citizen complaints included sinking homes, mud-filled driveways, poor roads, inadequate drainage and other construction problems.

$400 in audio gear stolen from school

Burglars took an estimated $400 worth of audio equipment from the Eugene Field School, 91 St. Armand Ln., Wheeling police said Tuesday.

Taken from the school were two tape recorders, two head sets, 41 tapes and two listening stations. Police said one of the listening stations was found in a nearby playground.

The burglary occurred sometime between 4 p.m. Friday and 8:15 a.m. Monday when the burglars broke through an escape window. Police said there also was damage to one chair, which was cut and smeared with hand lotion.

CHRYSLER CORP. officials are laying off 70,500 employees, or 64 per cent of the company's 110,000 hourly wage earners. A drop in sales and projected car orders prompted executives to wield a heavy ax. The No. 3 automaker has been criticized for its actions and one union official called top management "incompetent." Meanwhile, new cars remain in company parking lots.

64% out of work by December

Chrysler first to panic

by EDWARD S. LECHTIN

DETROIT (UPI) — Whether it's sloppy management, as the United Auto Workers union charges, or just bad luck, Chrysler Corp. executives have pushed the panic button harder than any of their competitors in the beleaguered auto industry.

Chrysler Chairman Lynn A. Townsend says it will be business as usual in December with no companywide shutdown. But nearly 64 per cent of the men and women who build Chrysler's cars won't be on the job the month before Christmas.

Faced with an early November sales report that showed a 34 per cent drop from last year's already depressed levels and a stock of unsold cars that could last four months, Chrysler executives began wielding a heavy ax Tuesday.

COMPARED TO General Motors' layoffs just before Christmas last year when 137,000 workers were idled in one short shutdown, Chrysler's numbers aren't that large — another 43,900 workers added to 26,600 already idled.

For a company with 110,000 hourly workers, idling 64 per cent of the work force the month before Christmas is dramatic.

Chrysler won't say how many of its 39,800 salaried workers have been trimmed or will be let go in the belt-tightening.

Chrysler is the No. 3 automaker and, with just under 14 per cent of the new car market so far this year, it has no room for bad guesses.

Top management apparently didn't read the signals right and built too many small cars at a time when the swing was back to the larger models.

Chrysler has 385,000 cars, part of an industry backlog of 1.65 million cars, or an 80-day supply. But the Chrysler stockpile is overweighted in small cars, with enough Valiants on hand to last more than 130 days.

AT THIS TIME last year, the automakers were pushing their small car plants to capacity and making plans to convert large car plants to building small models.

Then the market turned around in the summer, and small cars are a drag on the market.

During the depths of the energy crisis-induced sales slump last winter, when 113,000 auto workers were on indefinite layoffs and a like number on shorter periods of idleness, Chrysler management was criticized

Increase unemployment benefits to idled workers, UAW urges

The Illinois General Assembly should immediately increase state unemployment benefits by 30 per cent because of the shutdown of Chrysler's Belvidere assembly plant, United Auto Workers regional director Robert Johnston says.

Johnston said the Belvidere shutdown, to begin Wednesday and continue to Jan. 8, also will affect thousands of workers who supply automotive parts to Chrysler.

"The way to start equalizing the hardship of a recession is to help its victims," Johnston said in a statement.

A bill increasing unemployment benefits already has been passed by the Illinois House, but legislative leaders have said they don't plan to take final action on the measure until January.

THE LEGISLATURE reconvenes today and Johnston urged Senate Pres. William Harris and Senate Minority Leader Cecil Pardee to call the House bill up as soon as possible during the session and amend it so benefits would be increased by 30 per cent.

"Since the legislature last increased unemployment compensation payments in 1972, the cost of living has increased over 20 per cent while the average compensation payments for a married worker with a family of four remains at $90 a week," Johnston said.

He said that was slightly more than one-third the average weekly wage of persons who work for "Big Three" auto companies.

Although most auto workers with one year's seniority are guaranteed 90 per cent of their pay through a combination of unemployment benefits and company payments, those who work for smaller firms don't have such guarantees, Johnston said. He said mass layoffs in the auto industry probably will lead to an ultimate reduction in benefits.

Johnston said all 5,500 workers at the Belvidere Chrysler plant will be off for the duration of the shutdown, and 600 will be on indefinite layoff. (UPI) for not having a subcompact to rival the Vega or Pinto.

One executive wryly admitted: "No matter what we do, sometimes you just can't seem to win."

ALTHOUGH HE'S an adversary, UAW Vice Pres. Douglas A. Fraser usually restrains his comments on the business acumen of Chrysler management. But within minutes of Chrysler's announcement of new layoffs Tuesday, Fraser called top management incompetent.

Fraser says Chrysler has been producing sales at 130 per cent of sales, resulting in a huge stockpile, while Ford has produced only 102 per cent of sales.

"That is really sloppy management," Fraser said. "It's irresponsible. It's picking the workers' pockets."

Fraser said he asked Chrysler executives why they hadn't scheduled layoffs one or two weeks at a time like the other auto companies. The question went unanswered, he said.

WITH THE NEW MODEL year off to the poorest start in a decade, top Chrysler and UAW executives have banded together to demand action from Washington.

The union has taken up the automaker's pleas for relief from future safety and emission standards, to Washington Tuesday, calling for Chrysler Pres. John Riccardo went government to help restore consumer confidence so people will buy cars, and easing of credit so they can afford the higher prices.

UAW Pres. Leonard Woodcock warns that the plight of the auto industry may spread quicker than some economists believe.

"Unless something is quickly done to turn around the basic industry, the accumulating effect of what is happening in autos will drag this country not simply to a recession but down to the reaches of a depression," Woodcock said.

THE VIEW from the tollway. Chrysler Corp. plant in Belvidere is visible from the Northwest Tollway but work on new cars will not be as 5,500 workers are being laid off Wednesday. Only about 1,000 persons may be rehired in 1975.

Calls up 47% in October

It's been a hectic year for the village firemen

Wheeling firemen have been busier this year, responding to 47 per cent more calls in October alone.

Statistics released this week show 168 calls in October this year, compared with 114 calls the previous October. During the fiscal year, which starts May 1, firemen have responded to 848 calls, up 17 per cent from the same period last year.

In October, there were 39 actual fires in the village and another 14 outside the village but within the fire district. The comparable figures for last year were 10 fires in the village and another seven in the district.

The total fire damage for October was estimated at $69,875, a large increase from the estimated $8,530 damage in October 1973.

There have been 123 actual fires in the village and 58 in the fire district since

May 1. The fires were a 48 per cent increase from the same period in 1973.

Fire damage for the two years to date is about the same, with the exception of the June 8, 1974 arson of the Wheeling High School library which caused an estimated $300,000 damage. Not counting the school damage, this year's fire loss total stands at $133,425 which compares with $137,340 for the same period last year.

The number of ambulance calls totaled 93 in October, a 28 per cent increase, while the year's ambulance runs stood at 464, an increase of 17 per cent.

One interesting statistic shows 19 field fires in October this year, while there were none in October of last year. There have been 37 field fires since May 1, an increase of 164 per cent from last year's number.

Back parents' objections

Boycott bus company for field trips: union

The Des Plaines Dist. 62 teachers' union called Wednesday for a boycott of United Motor Coach Co. buses for field trips, echoing complaints by parent groups that UMC buses are unsafe for transporting elementary school children.

Teacher representatives of the district's 13 schools unanimously approved a resolution asking teachers "to schedule future field trips through bus companies providing adequate safety for children as outlined in state school bus transportation guidelines."

The teachers' group also asked teachers to cancel bus trips unless drivers are certified by the state.

The resolution was aimed at curtailing use of United Motor Coach buses which technically are commercial carriers and subject only to specifications set by the Illinois Commerce Commission. The more stringent state school bus regulations, required of all yellow buses, are optional for commercial lines.

STATE REGULATIONS require school buses to be bright yellow with "School Bus" signs. Each bus also must have a stop arm that swings out when children are boarding and getting off the bus.

State equipment specifications for school buses also include flashing front and rear lights, first aid kit, fire extinguisher, automatic buzzer for emergency door and other safety features. School bus drivers are expected to observe stricter regulations operating the vehicle.

Teachers approved the resolution after meeting with North School parents Karen Dykstra and Sandy Gannon, organizers of a campaign to get yellow buses for the district. Mrs. Dykstra said she wanted teachers to know UMC buses "are not yellow school buses and aren't subject to the same laws."

"There can be a child hanging out the window or children standing and there's nothing we can do. It's public transportation and there are no laws," she said.

"I was going to ask you to use yellow buses for all field trips, but I've been told it's district policy to use United Motor Coach," she added.

MARIAN HUFF, an Iroquois Junior High School teacher, said she has had bad experiences with UMC charter buses. "I refuse to schedule any field trips until we get other transportation," she said.

Dennis Anderson, president of the Des Plaines Education Assn., said yellow bus transportation is more expensive. Teachers also expressed concerns that canceling field trips would create bad feelings among teachers, parents and students.

"Our thinking is too political. We've got to think of safety," Anderson said. "We've got to think what might happen tomorrow."

THE DIST. 62 administration is preparing a report on yellow school bus service for its Dec. 16 board meeting. School officials also are studying formation of a bus committee composed of parents, board members and administrators similar to one in East Moline Dist. 63.

In East Moline, the bus committee draws up requirements for district bus service. The committee seeks bids from local bus companies and parents enter into a gentlemen's agreement with the bus company.

Evicted tenant out on $1,000 bond

Patricia Bunnar, 40, of 259 Dover Dr., who was arrested Tuesday and charged with criminal trespass, was released on $1,000 bond late Tuesday. She was released several hours after she refused a niece's attempt to pay the bond.

Police said Mrs. Bunnar finally agreed to accept the bond and she and her four children, who had been evicted from their home in the morning, were released.

The woman had not paid two months' rent for her apartment and she was served an eviction notice by Sheriff's deputies on behalf of the Lubin Management Corp. Mrs. Bunnar was arrested when she opened a window to get back into the apartment to retrieve her belongings.

Mrs. Bunnar said she and her children were due to move into an apartment in Mount Prospect Wednesday and she had asked sheriff's officials to allow her to stay in the apartment through Tuesday night.

She is scheduled to appear in the Des Plaines branch of Circuit Court Jan. 9.

Housing panel approves U.S. grant application

The Des Plaines Housing Commission voted Wednesday night to recommend to the city council that it apply for 10 per cent of funds the city is entitled to receive under the federal Housing and Community Development Act.

The commission's recommendation, which came in a 4-3 vote, will be presented to the city council for action Dec. 2.

The recommendation was restricted to the question of applying for 10 per cent of the $129,000 in first year funds the city (because of its size) is entitled to under the program. The 10 per cent money, $12,900, would be used to prepare an application for the entire first year amount.

MICHAEL RICHARDSON, city director of planning and zoning, told the commission the money would be used to hire additional staff personnel or consultants to assist him in preparing the grant application.

Commission members defeated a proposed amendment which would have required that the city council allow the commission to review the completed grant application and make a further study of whether the city should submit the application.

Harold Harvey, commission member who offered the amendment, said he wanted it include do make clear to the council that the city's application for the 10 per cent money is not to be construed as a commitment to apply for the full grant.

The amendment was defeated by a 4-3 vote.

Comr. Ted Sherwood, who voted against both the amendment and the motion, said he thought the U. S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), which will review all grant applications, has not provided enough information about the program to give communities a perspective on how they should proceed.

"I find it appalling to proceed with no facts and we're being forced to do so only because the federal government has imposed a ridiculous timetable on us," Sherwood said.

SHERWOOD WAS REFERRING to a HUD requirement which calls for all applications to be submitted by April 15.

To qualify for the funds the city must develop a housing assistance plan showing the housing needs of low and moderate-income families in the city and solutions for those needs.

Funds may not be used to construct housing, but must in some way be applied to benefit low and moderate-income families or to remove or prevent community blight.

Comr. Ralph Martin, who offered the motion, said the city should move ahead with application for the 10 per cent funding because it would help determine the community's needs.

'Human computers' help city run more smoothly

by STEVE BROWN

There aren't any shiny, sophisticated data-retrieval systems in the Des Plaines City Clerk's office, just a couple of human computers keeping the records straight.

Indexed and cross-referenced, possibly every action by the city council and other official documents are catalogued for future reference.

City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach, who started the system 10 years ago, said her methodology allows her, Deputy Clerk Marilyn Trost and Donna Valencia to obtain information for residents and other city officials.

"I think the biggest benefit to the public, the system offers, is the savings in time," she explained, adding that it can be very expensive to have an employee spend several hours looking for a particular document.

THE DES PLAINES system is essentially encyclopedic in nature — organized by subject and arranged alphabetically.

Not only has the system proved popular among Des Plaines city officials, but clerks in other communities have begun to sing the praises of the program.

The filing system along with other suggestions for operating a clerk's office has become part of a "bestselling" book compiled by Mrs. Rohrbach and several other local clerks.

The manual suggests methods for conducting elections, licensing, preparation of special assessment ordinances, purchasing and other forms of record keeping.

The book was prepared for the Municipal Clerks of Illinois. Mrs. Rohrbach's efforts also have drawn attention outside the state. Wednesday, she took her expertise to Wisconsin to address a gathering of municipal clerks from that state.

IN ADDITION to the publication, Mrs. Rohrbach has also been active in a statewide training program conducted by the University of Illinois.

Participation in the program allows the clerks to become certified by the International Institute of Municipal Clerks.

"This was my baby," Mrs. Rohrbach said, speaking with pride of the program which offers a comprehensive training program for clerks throughout the state.

She explained that many clerks win election to their office and then do not have any idea of what they have to do.

"Several clerks have called to say that the book and the institute have been a lifesaver for them," she added.

REMEMBERING WHEN she was a newcomer to the post, Mrs. Rohrbach said that her approach at first was much like "taking the piles and putting it into files," but over the years a detailed system has been developed.

In addition to dealing with current records, Mrs. Rohrbach has also been working to organize old city records into her system.

Simple, but organized might be the key to the operation, or, as Mrs. Rohrbach said, "my idea is not to try and keep every fact in my mind but rather just remember where it is filed."

'74 turkey supplies up, prices down

Butchers, stores may sell at a loss to keep customers interested

GOBBLER GROWER Elving Sennabond of Butterfield, Minn., stands among several thousand turkeys readied for Thanksgiving season sale.

The cost of turkeys will gobble up a smaller chunk of the family's Thanksgiving food budget this year compared to 1973 prices. A glut of frozen gobblers and an ample supply of fresh birds are reported by area butcher shops and food store chains.

"Prices of turkeys are somewhat lower than they were last year," said Joe Burkhardt of the Dominick's Finer Foods chain. "I've seen them featured from 29 cents (a pound) and up." Turkey prices are a competitive tool for the food stores during the holiday season, Burkhardt said. He said stores may sell the birds at cost or below to attract customers.

The Herald reported Nov. 15, 1973 that the average retail price for turkeys was 81 cents a pound.

"Last year's turkey prices were abnormally high," a Jewel Food stores spokesman said. Prices this year dropped to a range of 39 cents to 69 cents a pound. Heavy sales of frozen turkeys will begin today and continue through next week, she said, adding that the stores may break even or take a loss on turkey sales.

"RIGHT NOW, turkey supplies are pretty heavy," said a spokesman for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's poultry division office in Chicago. He said government figures indicate 556 million pounds of turkey in storage compared to 450 million pounds a year ago.

WHY THE BIG increase in frozen turkeys? The USDA spokesman said increased production, less promotion of turkey sales and competition from heavy supplies of beef and chicken account for the buildup of frozen turkey inventories.

The glut of gobblers in the market will mean lower prices paid to producers and the possibility of an upward swing in prices by 1976, said John Big, a poultry buyer for A&P Food Stores in Chicago.

"A great deal of money was made last year by growers," he said. "Consequently they thought every year would be the same." Increased production in 1974 led to great financial loss for the producers as feed, labor and transportation costs soared, Big said. Some producers are dropping out of the market, pointing to fewer turkeys and higher prices next year.

Fresh turkey prices are higher than the cost of frozen birds. Jim Howland, owner of Howland's Meat market in Arlington Heights, explains, "It all depends on what you want to put in your stomach." There is a definite taste difference between the fresh and frozen turkeys, Howland said. He charges 99 cents a pound for fresh hens or toms.

"There is no such thing as deals," echoes Tom Astewski, owner of the John's Coach & Carriage Butcher Shop in Elk Grove Village. "You get more with the fresh turkeys, because they're not dehydrated." He sells the fresh-killed turkeys from the Howard Kaufman farm in Waterman, Ill. at 99 cents a pound for hens and 89 cents a pound for toms. The price last year was $1.09 a pound.

CONSUMER RESISTANCE to rising

prices has cut back on meat sales at some food stores this year, said John Sobut, assistant director of the Illinois Food Retailers Assn. "But somebody's going to buy those turkeys, by God, at 49 cents a pound — that's a bargain," he said.

When the heavy turkey sales promotions get under way, some retailers will sell frozen turkeys at a loss of $1 to $2 a bird, Sobut said. The stores hope to make up for the loss through sales of other holiday foods, he said. Sweet potatoes, cranberry sauce and nuts are among foods that will be featured at sale prices for the Thanksgiving season.

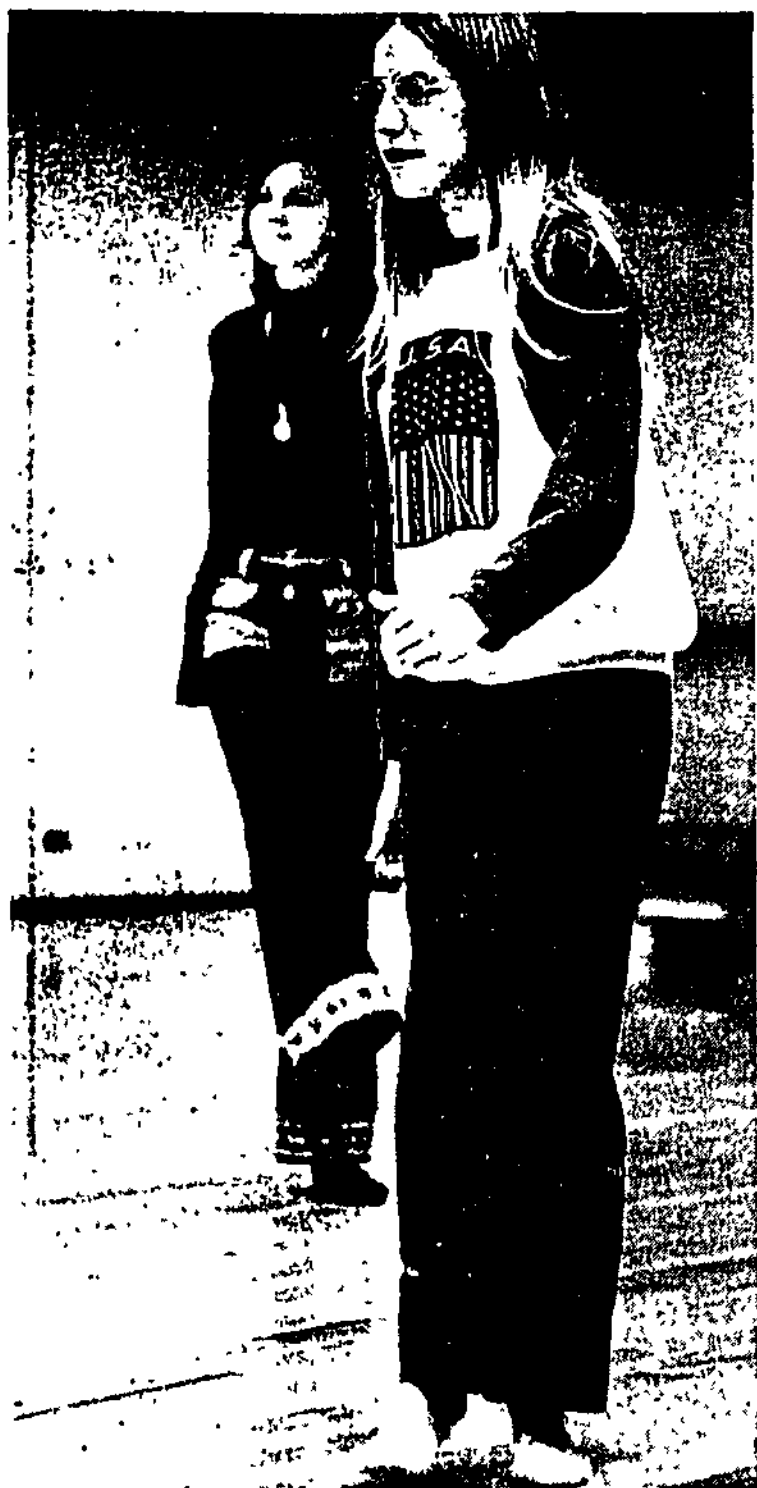

Sobut reported wholesale prices for turkeys ranging from a low of 51½ cents a pound for 12- to 20-pound birds to 55½ cents a pound for 6- to 10-pound birds on store brands. Butterball turkeys ranged from 57½ cents to 63½ cents a pound at the wholesale level this week. Ducks were priced wholesale at 78½ cents a pound and 22-ounce Cornish hens at 90½ cents a pound.

Church slates craft classes in December

Classes for the First Congregational Church's December craft project — a cornhusk wreath and doll — will be held Dec. 5-6.

The classes will meet at 1:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. both days at the church, 700 Graceland Ave. Babysitting service will be provided for the afternoon sessions for 50 cents.

A kit includes a wreath, wire, corn husks and ribbon and will be available for $6. Persons who attend the class should bring scissors and a box or bag. To reserve a place in the class call 824-1544.

Wreath-making class offered here

Persons who wish to take part in the Des Plaines Historical Society craft class for making a Christmas wreath should register today by calling 297-4912.

The class, which will be conducted Wednesday at 10 a.m. in the meeting room of the society's museum, 777 Lee St., is limited to 20. Cost to members is $8.50; $9.50 for nonmembers.

The wreath is made from freshly dried fern, cornhusks and straw and will be completed during the class period. All materials will be furnished.

Park district wrapup

Panel to examine land for district headquarters

The Des Plaines Park District will examine several properties for sale in the city to determine if any of them could be used for a new park district headquarters complex.

Two areas in particular are the property at Miner Street and River Road owned by Robert Dooley and the 26-acre Walgreen Co. property, 140 E. Touhy Ave.

Park district commissioners Kermit Smith and Ferdinand Arndt were appointed to a committee to investigate the cost and feasibility of purchasing part of the properties, although park officials conceded there is little money available in the budget to allow any type of costly land purchase.

This stipulation was asked because the work will be done in cold weather and park board members want assurances that the job will be done satisfactorily. The asphalt will not be laid in temperatures lower than 45 degrees.

A third contract for a chain-link backstop and side fencing for the ball field at Rand Park was awarded to Cowger Fence Co., Niles, at a bid of $2,490.

Vehicle, paving bids OK'd

The district board Tuesday approved several bids for the purchase of vehicles and for various construction projects for parks.

The board approved the purchase of two cars and a truck from Cass Ford, Des Plaines, at a cost of $13,848. A bid for asphalt paving work submitted by the Paveway Construction Co., Des Plaines, for $142,000 also was accepted by the board. The contract is for paving 10 tennis courts, several basketball courts and various patching jobs at several parks.

The bid, the only one received on the project, was accepted on the condition that the company guarantee the materials and workmanship for one year.

Bandshell by spring?

Park Director Robert Kunkel said the bandshell at Lake Park should be completed by late spring and ready for concert scheduling by early summer.

Comr. Edward Keane suggested the park district attempt to make the first year of the bandshell season as successful as possible by booking groups such as symphonies.

Winter programs roll

The winter Learn to Swim program will begin Nov. 30 and persons who wish to register for classes should call the park district office at 296-6106. An adult floor-hockey program also is under way through January and interested persons who wish to play at the Rand Park gym on Monday evenings should contact the park district.

Park officials said winter ice rinks should be ready for skating around Dec. 15.

Oakton College scrupulousNaval officer to head campus building unit

A retired naval officer who served with the Civil Engineer Corps will supervise planning and construction of Oakton Community College.

The Oakton Board of Trustees Tuesday hired John E. Parsons Jr. of Deerfield as director of facilities planning and construction at an annual salary of $20,500.

Parsons, who served 30 years in the Navy and Naval reserve, will work on the college's permanent campus, where construction is scheduled to begin next year.

The campus is along the Des Plaines River between Central and Golf roads in Moline Township. College officials recently completed purchase of the land.

Later hours for election?

The Oakton board of trustees has decided to try to convince all school districts in Moline and Niles townships to keep their polls open until 8 p.m. for the next school board election.

The board decided to try to convince the districts, which usually have closed the polls at 7 p.m., to extend the closing time one hour to allow Jewish voters to cast ballots after sundown. The election will be Saturday, April 12, the Jewish sabbath.

In taking the action, the Oakton board rejected a suggestion from Niles Township Elementary Dist. 68 that the election be changed from the traditional Saturday date to Tuesday, April 2, the alternative school election date allowed by law.

Each year, Oakton faces the problem of having polls for elementary and high school elections in Niles Township closing at 8 p.m., while polls in Moline Township ordinarily close at 7 p.m. Oakton ordinarily cuts down on the cost of elections by sharing election judges with elementary and high schools, but cannot share judges if polls for the various school districts close at different times.

Township adopts 1st official seal

Maine Township has adopted its first official seal, designed by Arthur R. Wettler, 901 E. Villa Dr., who was named the winner of a township-wide design contest conducted earlier this year.

The seal was adopted to commemorate the township's 125th anniversary next year. The emblem includes three elements: an oak tree, symbolic of the forests which originally thrived in the area; a plow, depicting agriculture, and wavy lines, which symbolize the Des Plaines River.

Wettler will receive a $50 U. S. Savings Bond as his first place prize at the township's Dec. 10 meeting.

The seal will be used on township stationery, documents, vehicle stickers for unincorporated areas and other official purposes.

Use of the new seal will be a phased-in project, said James J. Dowd, township supervisor, who added that all existing materials without the seal will be used up before new material with the seal is prepared.

New post office bids to be taken beginning Dec. 16

U.S. Postal Service officials will begin taking bids Dec. 16 for the new $2.6 million post office in Des Plaines.

Des Plaines Postmaster John Kouletas said Wednesday the bids will be opened by regional postal service officials Jan. 30.

Kouletas said he hopes construction can begin shortly after the bids are opened. He indicated that at least three qualified bids must be received, according to postal service regulations.

Preliminary outlines for the facility, which has been in the planning stages since 1969, call for the building to contain 57,000 square feet.

Kouletas said he hopes to have plans for the facility next week. Postal service officials hope to consolidate the entire Des Plaines operation into the central station, which will be at Oakton Street and Executive Way. Presently the postal service operates in three offices in Des Plaines and a fourth substation in Rosemont.

Kouletas said construction should take about 390 days. If the builders can maintain the schedule, the operation should move into the new facility by mid-1976.

Nearly homeowners had complained in 1969 that the office might disturb the surrounding residential area. Postal officials said they plan to landscape the site so it will not be a nuisance to the neighbors.

History Week marked by 21-star flag

The Des Plaines Historical Society will mark Illinois History Week, which begins Tuesday, by flying a 21-star flag at the museum, Dec. 3 is Illinois Statehood Day.

Illinois became the 21st state to be admitted to the union in 1818.

The museum, 777 Lee St. is open Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. and is open for group tours Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons.

Mailboxes vandalized

Two cases of damaged or missing mailboxes were reported to Des Plaines police Tuesday.

Robert Largent, 21, of 285 Bellair Ave., told police his mailbox was dug out from its spot apparently by using a shovel.

Diane Lindeman, 680 Potter Rd., reported her mailbox was pulled out of its place, thrown over some bushes and into a nearby creek. The woman said it was the fifth time in the last 10 days her mailbox has been vandalized.

Equipment for handicapped

Bowling is an opportunity for both children and adults to develop skills and motor coordination as well as have fun. The Maine-Niles Assn. of Recreation for the Handicapped is now able to offer individuals with even the most severe motor and physical disabilities an opportunity to participate in the game.

Classic Bowl in Morton Grove has contributed funds which have allowed the association to purchase such special equipment as a handle-grip bowling ball and a bowling ramp. In an effort to allow even more residents within the community to enjoy bowling, the association will leave its adaptive equipment at the bowling alley. The equipment will be available to any handicapped individual wishing to use it.

For more information about how to use the bowling equipment, call 674-1500, extension 35.

Thieves strike again at Des Plaines Lumber

The Des Plaines Lumber Co., First Avenue and Thacker Street, reported to police that 50 lumber boards were missing from its yard Tuesday. The lumber is valued at $200.

Police said the boards, measuring 2 inches by 8 inches by 20 feet, were probably taken by using a pick-up truck which was brought into the yard along the Soo Line tracks. Police said tire marks were left in the mud.

The theft was the fourth such incident at the lumber yard within the past two weeks.

Mount Prospect agrees to bid on Weller Creek

Mount Prospect will go along with Des Plaines if the city decides to accept the only bid on the Weller Creek bank stabilization project.

Mount Prospect trustees said they would be willing to accept the only bid submitted for the project, although it will cost about $33,000 more than the original $50,000 estimate for the village's share of the project.

The only bid received for the project came from the George W. Kennedy Construction Co. of Antioch at $217,431. The cost is to be shared between Mount Prospect and Des Plaines, with $50,000 provided by the state.

While the Des Plaines City Council is not scheduled to consider the bid until Nov. 25, Mount Prospect Trustee O. T. Gustus said Des Plaines officials indicated the bid will be accepted because of the urgency of the project.

The creek improvement project calls for stone-filled wire baskets to be placed along the side of the creek from School Street in Mount Prospect east to the Washington Street Bridge in Des Plaines.

More than $3 million already has been spent on various creek improvement projects since 1958.

Revised schedules called for the work to begin in the winter months, but it is unknown whether that timetable will be observed.

Akers and his partner competed against 60 colleges to win the tournament. He also placed sixth in the individual speaker awards. He is the son of Mrs. Lucille Hertel of Des Plaines.

Estimates 'out of line' with construction costs

Centex home permits issued—with a warning

by JERRY THOMAS

Building Comr. Thomas Rottenbacher of Elk Grove Village has issued 53 disputed building permits for new Centex Homes Corp. houses, but put the company "on notice" that future permit fees will be pegged for "more realistic" construction cost estimates.

Rottenbacher withheld permits two weeks ago because he contended that estimated construction costs were too low. Centex officials raised their estimates and Rottenbacher released the permits, saying that he still believed the estimates were not in line with true construction costs.

He denied Centex complaints that the he was badgering the company. Rottenbacher also rejected suggestions that the delays were being used to pressure the company into remedying the furnace problem in more than 1,700 homes in the village.

Building-permit fees are pegged to the value of the construction project.

"I DENIED THE building permits earlier because I felt the builder in his first application for the permits was underestimating by almost 100 per cent, the construction value of the home it plans to build," he said.

"I think the builder's construction cost estimates, which are the determining factor in setting a permit fee, are still a little low, but I have agreed to allow the start of construction of the new section that will eventually have about 200 homes," he added.

Centex at first estimated the construction cost of the homes, which will sell for $45,990, at $14,000, the same figure used two years ago. When the dispute arose, Centex raised its cost estimate estimates to $21,708.

Building permits cost $4 for every $1,000 estimated construction costs.

RETENBACHER SAID Tuesday that the cost estimates should be closer to $26,000.

"Weeks ago, I denied the builder permits for a new area of construction, because I felt the construction value they stated had to be a gross mistake or an attempt to obtain lesser building fees," Rottenbacher said.

During two weeks of discussions, Centex increased the construction costs.

"When they apply for the next group of permits, they better have more realistic construction costs and the paperwork to back up their claims," Rottenbacher said.

He had estimated the village stood to lose about $8,000 in building-permit fees because of the lower cost estimates.

"Marketing experts and Building Officials Code Administration facts and figures show the construction costs for that type of house to be close to $27,000," Rottenbacher said.

RETENBACHER SAID he is accepting the builders lower construction cost estimates "for now."

"I've also put them on notice that future applications for permits must take next year's construction costs into consideration and be more realistic, and expect the builder substantiate his estimates not just use the same figures year after year," Rottenbacher said.

Centex officials were unavailable for comment Wednesday but earlier said, "When we come up with a construction cost the village approves of we will get the building permits."

Village awaits word on Centex furnace testing

Elk Grove Village officials are still awaiting Centex Homes Corp.'s announcement on how and when a massive testing and correction program will start in an estimated 1,700 Centex-built homes with defective furnaces.

Centex vice president Will Liebow said Wednesday, "We are still negotiating with furnace experts who have designed a test for us and plan to begin house to house inspections as soon as possible."

Liebow said the firm will notify village officials of the start of the testing program and ask the village for help in notifying residents when inspection crews are in the area.

The Herald disclosed last June that defective furnaces that may be leaking deadly fumes are installed in Centex homes built in 1965 and 1967.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS were alerted to the situation in the spring of 1972 by local heating contractors who noticed an alarmingly high incidence of hazardous leaks in furnace heat exchangers.

Since The Herald disclosure of the furnace problem Centex and village officials have been arguing responsibility. The village first expressed confidence that the builder would find a solution to the problem and later demanded its cooperation.

Liebow announced Oct. 3 that the firm will start testing and corrections immediately.

Liebow later postponed the inspections. The firm is still attempting to iron out details of the program, he said.

Centex has pledged to share furnace repair costs and is asking residents who have their furnaces repaired before the testing or correction program begins to save defective parts.

Liebow said Wednesday "We are asking residents to be patient. We are working as fast as we can to get things fixed."

Nurses' 'closet' offers sickroom supplies free

The Elk Grove Village Nurses Assn. operates a "lending closet" that offers free sickroom supplies to village residents.

"The name closet is a misnomer really since we stock so many sickroom supplies that range from hospital beds to bedpans that they would never fit in anyone's closet," said Lori Lange, association president.

Elk Grove Village residents who need the use of any sick room supply may contact Mrs. Lange, 437-2490.

The sick room supplies are items like waterproof bedding, hospital beds, wheelchairs, commodes, walkers, crutches, whirlpool baths and numerous bedside equipment.

Mrs. Lange said the supplies are loaned out free of charge, however, a small deposit is required for large items like the hospital beds or wheelchairs.

The nurses' association is composed of more than 60 area nurses who meet monthly in the Alexian Brothers Medical Center to hear speakers in the medical profession. "This is part of the club's goal to keep in touch with medicine today," said Mrs. Lange.

The club accepts donations and holds a fund-raising activity yearly for the purchase of more equipment to stock the lending closet. "However, we stress the fact that the lending closet is free to any resident who needs the supplies," said Mrs. Lange.

Delay fare-hike hearings until spring

A 15 per cent fare increase request on the Milwaukee Road commuter line has been postponed until March 20, when public hearings can be conducted by the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The railroad had asked that the increase be effective Dec. 1, 1974.

C. C. Dilley, the railroad's general manager for passenger services, said suburban service for 30,000 daily passengers is expected to lose $2.8 million in 1974.

ON THE LINE. Chrysler employees worked the assembly line at the big plant in Belvidere, Ill. until the huge automaker decided to lay off workers.

Did Chrysler act too soon? What effects will the layoff have? Stories on the impact of the Belvidere shutdown and attempts by the UAW to increase benefits are on Page 6.

'74 turkey supplies up, prices down

Butchers, stores may sell at a loss to keep customers interested

GOBBLER GROWER Elving Sennaband of Butterfield, Minn., stands among several thousand turkeys readied for Thanksgiving season sale.

The cost of turkeys will gobble up a smaller chunk of the family's Thanksgiving food budget this year compared to 1973 prices. A glut of frozen gobblers and an ample supply of fresh birds are reported by area butcher shops and food store chains.

"Prices of turkeys are somewhat lower than they were last year," said Joe Burkhardt of the Dominick's Finer Foods chain. "I've seen them featured from 29 cents (a pound) and up." Turkey prices are a competitive tool for the food stores during the holiday season, Burkhardt said. He said stores may sell the birds at cost or below to attract customers.

The Herald reported Nov. 15, 1973 that the average retail price for turkeys was 31 cents a pound.

"Last year's turkey prices were abnormally high," a Jewel Food stores spokesman said. Prices this year dropped to a range of 39 cents to 69 cents a pound. Heavy sales of frozen turkeys will begin today and continue through next week, she said, adding that the stores may break even or take a loss on turkey sales.

"RIGHT NOW, turkey supplies are pretty heavy," said a spokesman for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's poultry division office in Chicago. He said government figures indicate 558 million pounds of turkey in storage compared to 450 million pounds a year ago.

WHY THE BIG increase in frozen turkeys? The USDA spokesman said increased production, less promotion of turkey sales and competition from heavy supplies of beef and chicken account for the buildup of frozen turkey inventories.

The glut of gobblers in the market will mean lower prices paid to producers and the possibility of an upward swing in prices by 1976, said John Big, a poultry buyer for A&P Food Stores in Chicago. "A great deal of money was made last year by growers," he said. "Consequently they thought every year would be the same." Increased production in 1974 led to great financial loss for the producers as feed, labor and transportation costs soared, Big said. Some producers are dropping out of the market, pointing to fewer turkeys and higher prices next year.

Fresh turkey prices are higher than the cost of frozen birds. Jim Howland, owner of Howland's Meat market in Arlington Heights, explains, "It all depends on what you want to put in your stomach." There is a definite taste difference between the fresh and frozen turkeys, Howland said. He charges 99 cents a pound for fresh hens or toms.

"There is no such thing as deals," echoes Tom Aszewski, owner of the John's Coach & Carriage Butcher Shop in Elk Grove Village. "You get more with the fresh turkeys, because they're not dehydrated." He sells the fresh-killed turkeys from the Howard Kaufman farm in Waterman, Ill. at 98 cents a pound for hens and 89 cents a pound for toms. The price last year was $1.09 a pound.

CONSUMER RESISTANCE to rising

prices has cut back on meat sales at some food stores this year, said John Sobut, assistant director of the Illinois Food Retailers Assn. "But somebody's going to buy those turkeys, by God, at 49 cents a pound — that's a bargain," he said.

When the heavy turkey sales promotions get under way, some retailers will sell frozen turkeys at a loss of $1 to $2 a bird, Sobut said. The stores hope to make up for the loss through sales of other holiday foods, he said. Sweet potatoes, cranberry sauce and nuts are among foods that will be featured at sale prices for the Thanksgiving season.

Sobut reported wholesale prices for turkeys ranging from a low of 51½ cents a pound for 18- to 20-pound birds to 55½ cents a pound for 6- to 10-pound birds on store brands. Butterball turkeys ranged from 57½ cents to 63½ cents a pound at the wholesale level this week. Ducks were priced wholesale at 78½ cents a pound and 22-ounce Cornish hens at 90½ cents a pound.

INDIVIDUAL EFFORT goes into a good performance by a forensics team member. This student gets in some last-minute practice before performing in front of a judge and his fellow students. In his event, interpretation, he is allowed to use a script because he must present three different selections for each competitive round.

No applause for these competitors

by JUDY JOBBITT

Two chairs and a table set the stage. Brushing off the nervous fitters, two freshmen take their stance in front of the table and explain the setting. And a humorous duet skit begins before an audience of 10 forensics competitors and a judge.

This scene is typical of many in forensics. Last weekend more than 400 students competed in 11 forensics events in a meet sponsored by Buffalo Grove and Wheeling high schools.

STUDENTS WHO enter forensics don't get the applause, tribute or recognition awarded fellow artists in dramatics.

Forensics participants perform as individuals and respond to critiques from judges rather than applause from audiences. They participate in forensics meets Saturday mornings and perform only before their competitors and a handful of interested friends.

Training for forensics comes from participating in meets, coaching from experienced forensics members and adults and from observing other forensics competitors.

PARENTS AND other adults play a large role in preparing a team for competition. Their support is also needed to host a forensics meet where they can oversee extemporaneous speech preparation, act as guides and do much of the clerical work.

Students show the wear and tear of the preparation and anticipation towards a meet when they complete each performance. Sighs of relief, giggles and smiles come from competitors after their event when they sit down to watch others perform.

Forensics often is misconstrued as debate or drama, but it is a field of its own. Also known as Individual Events, it covers a variety of speech forms including drama, original comedy, interpretation, radio broadcast and extemporaneous speech.

Whereas debate teams receive one topic per year to research and debate in various meets, forensics performers select their own work, can change it through the year and wind up with material as different as the number of competitors.

PARTICIPANTS IN extemporaneous events are most closely aligned with debate because they produce speeches within an hour on a current topic. Extemporaneous students keep files with clips from periodicals to use at forensics meets. They draw three questions, select one question to write a speech on and present the speech an hour later.

Students participating in radio must present a five-minute broadcast with news items no more than 24 hours old. The presentation must be within 10 seconds of the five-minute limit or the participant is disqualified.

Dramatics and interpretation competitors can prepare their presentation in advance and present the same work at later meets.

Students go through three rounds at a meet. Each round pairs them against different students in front of a different judge. They must stay to hear all their competitors and once an event begins, no one can enter or leave.

The judge ranks the participants in order of excellence. The ranks are tallied and the school with the most over-all points wins the meet.

Students at Buffalo Grove High School said many on the forensics team are drawn into the activity through the oral communications class required for freshmen.

Mary Beth Lee, Buffalo Grove forensics president, said she entered forensics because she wanted to get over her shyness. Through forensics she learned self-confidence and how to present herself to others, she said.

TO HELP NEW forensics members, separate meets are offered for varsity and novice. A novice is anyone who has participated in less than three contests.

Forensics members also change the events they participate in as they learn their abilities and limitations in presenting speeches.

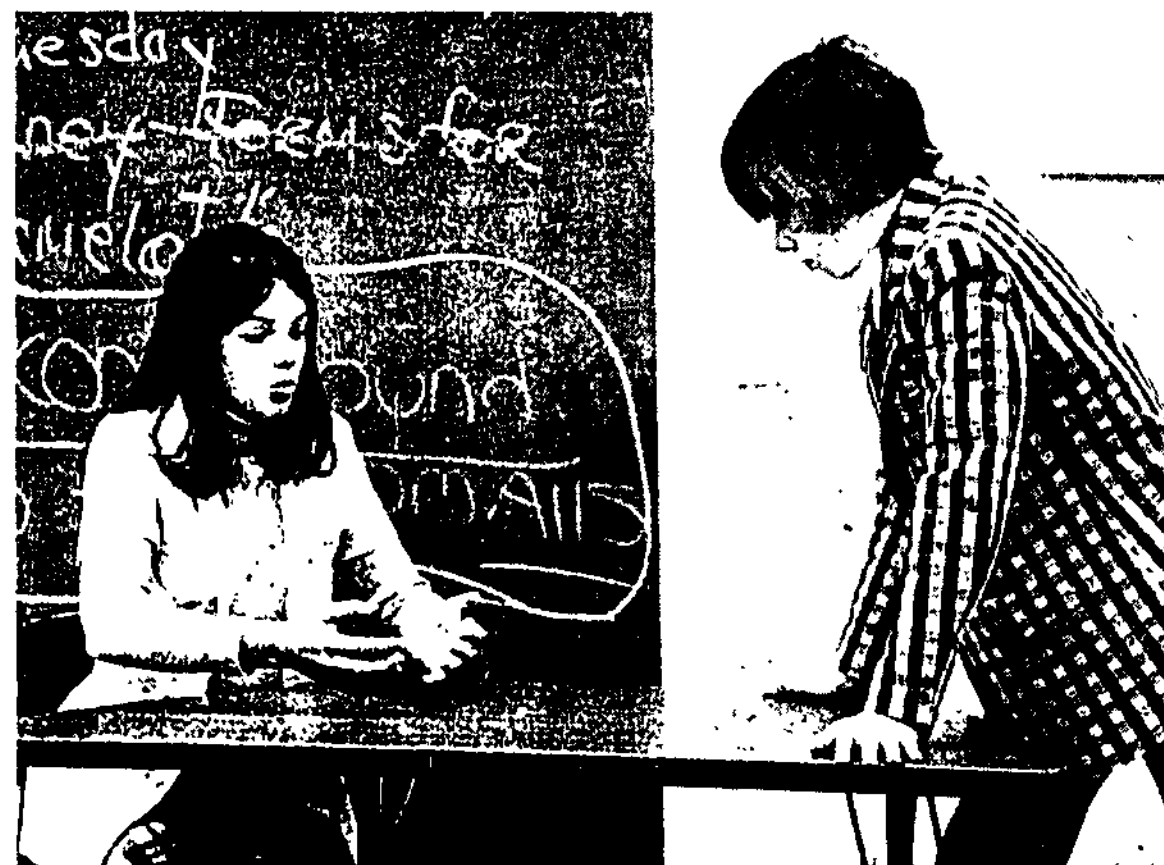

Larry Doyle started in radio broadcast but has changed to original comedy where he writes and presents a comic sketch.

"At the beginning of the year I was really shaky," he said, looking back on his first tries with forensics last year. "By the end of the year I was OK."

JEAN CASEY, Buffalo Grove head forensics coach, said students must learn to strive for personal achievement rather than judge's rankings.

"If you aim to please the judges, you please everybody but yourself," she said. "There's the point where you forget about the audience and judge and concentrate on what you're doing," Larry said.

And as they concentrate on what they're doing, they learn self-composure and a mature presentation of themselves to others.

A HUMOROUS DUET of "Dennis the Menace" is performed by Joyce Allendorf and John Bauman in a forensics meet Saturday at Buffalo Grove and Wheeling high schools. Duet dramatic skits and other events let students present short scenes and speeches. Rewards come from judges' critiques and rankings toward a team victory.

State probing pollution at area construction firm

by JOE FRANZ

Investigators from Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's office are following up on a complaint by Wheeling residents that the Rock Road Construction Co. is causing pollution from its materials yard.

Last summer, after several complaints from residents, the village board said it would seek an injunction against Rock Road and the Meyer Material Co. unless the firm cleaned up its operations. Since then village officials said both companies have taken steps to comply with village ordinances.

David Rosenbaum, chief investigator for the attorney general's Environmental Control section, said Wednesday, however, that residents complained about a week ago that the Rock Road plant still is causing pollution.

"We sent some investigators out there, but the matter still is under investigation," he said. "We have received a complaint, but are not sure if any violations exist."

Rosenbaum said if Rock Road should close its operation for the winter, his office may not be able to complete the investigation until spring.

LAST SUMMER, residents from the Dunhurst area complained that materials from the open stockpiles were blown into their yards, coating their homes and swimming pools with a gritty oil film. Residents said the problem has existed for several years.

The gritty oil film apparently reacted chemically with the paint on houses and damaged the wood. Village officials said the problem was most apparent in the Dunhurst area when there was a strong east wind.

They said Rock Road was exceeding the allowed height of stockpiles and was in violation of an ordinance that prohibits materials from being deposited on a lot in such a manner "that they may be transferred off the lot by natural causes or forces."

Village Mgr. George Passolt said Wednesday, however, that Rock Road, 231 McHenry Rd., has reduced the size of its stockpiles and taken steps to prevent the blowing of materials. The firm, he said, also has housed its conveyor belt and is attempting to reduce its noise output.

"There's more to be done, but I think by and large they have done everything they said they were going to do," Passolt said. "I feel they have acted in good faith and am satisfied."

The manager said that planting of trees and shrubbery on the Rock Road property is all that remains unfinished. He said the firm has said it will do the planting in the spring.

PASSOLT SAID the village has received no complaints from residents since Rock Road has cleaned up its operation.

A spokesman for Rock Road said Wednesday he was unaware of the investigation by the Atty. General's office and said the firm has received no complaints since taking the corrective action.

'Sunshine' reigns as tops in horse world

by TONI GINETTI

When Diane Klotz decided to buy her husband, Karme, a horse for his birthday in August 1973, she never thought just a year later the couple would own the world's champion Appaloosa.

That's exactly what happened. The Hoffman Estates couple's brown-and-spotted steed, named Sunday Sunshine, took top honors in one of three classes of competition this month at the World Championship Appaloosa Show in Oklahoma City.

Sunshine's triumph after winning 14 first-place honors in approved horse show competitions throughout the nation has made the 2-year-old gelding worth about $7,000, Mrs. Klotz says.

Not a bad return on a $1,500 investment made only 11 months ago. But, says Mrs. Klotz, fame and fortune was not the reason the couple bought the horse.

"I thought he was beautiful," she said. "It was a completely illogical thing to do. He wasn't expected to do well in competitions, although his breeding is good."

THE KLOTZ VENTURE into the equine world began a year ago when Mrs. Klotz decided to get her husband a birthday present and satisfy a childhood love at the same time.

"I've always loved horses, but I'm from New York and you don't see too many out there," she said, smiling. "When it finally became financially able for us, we bought a horse. We started with a grade horse, an unregistered horse."

The purchase however, was a little one-sided.

"I'm the kind of person who does something and then comes home and says 'look what I bought,'" she said, laughing. "A girlfriend of mine had a horse, and we had been riding hers. It was the kind of thing where I said 'let's spend a day looking at horses for sale,' and I bought one!"

The couple sold their first horse when they purchased Sunshine in January from the Stoneridge Farm stable in Dundee, where they had boarded their first horse.

THE STABLE RAISES and breeds Appaloosas, horses known for their beauty, versatility and endurance. Sunshine was purchased at an auction in Utah by the farm to be sold, she said.

"We didn't buy him to show, but it kind of snowballed. Then we couldn't afford to keep him out of competition."

The couple joined two Appaloosa horse clubs, the Blackhawk and the South Wisconsin clubs, hired Jim Marshall from Stoneridge to train the animal and entered the horse show competition circuit in May.

The horse's victories are catalogued in a room of the couple's Winston Knolls subdivision home. Dozens of prize ribbons for general competitions adorn one wall, while trophies from regulation Appaloosa club competitions line the fireplace mantle and shelves.

The trophies include 14 firsts, the Illinois and Missouri state championships, and seven grand championships, awards which are given in each competition to the best of all first place winners.

MRS. KLOTZ SAID her horse competes in the halter category, in which the animal is judged by its appearance, breed qualities and movement. Victories in grand-champion competition qualify a horse to go on to the world show.

Winning the international competition, however, was an unexpected victory, she said, so much so that, although the Klotz' had traveled to most of the other shows, they didn't attend the major show.

"I was crying on the phone when they called to tell us we won," Mrs. Klotz said. "We thought it was out of the question."

For veteran horsemen, winning an international competition often never comes, but if their fellow club members are jealous of the Klotz' good luck, they haven't shown it.

CHRYSLER CORP. officials are laying off 70,500 employees, or 64 per cent of the company's 110,000 hourly wage earners. A drop in sales and projected car orders prompted executives to wield a heavy ax. The No. 3 automaker has been criticized for its actions and one union official called top management "incompetent." Meanwhile, new cars remain in company parking lots.

64% out of work by December

Chrysler first to panic

by EDWARD S. LECHTZN

DETROIT (UPI) — Whether it's sloppy management, as the United Auto Workers union charges, or just bad luck, Chrysler Corp. executives have pushed the panic button harder than any of their competitors in the beleaguered auto industry.

Chrysler Chairman Lynn A. Townsend says it will be business as usual in December with no companywide shutdown. But nearly 64 per cent of the men and women who build Chrysler's cars won't be on the job the month before Christmas.

Faced with an early November sales report that showed a 34 per cent drop from last year's already depressed levels and a stock of unsold cars that could last four months, Chrysler executives began wielding a heavy ax Tuesday.

COMPARED TO General Motors' layoffs just before Christmas last year when 137,000 workers were idled in one short shutdown, Chrysler's numbers aren't that large — another 43,900 workers would be let go already idled.

For a company with 110,000 hourly workers, idling 64 per cent of the work force the month before Christmas is dramatic.

Chrysler won't say how many of its 39,800 salaried workers have been trimmed or will be let go in the belittling.

Chrysler is the No. 3 automaker and, with just under 14 per cent of the new car market so far this year, it has no room for bad guesses.

Top management apparently didn't read the signals right and built too many small cars at a time when the swing was back to the larger models.

Chrysler has 385,000 cars, part of an industry backlog of 1.65 million cars, or an 80-day supply. But the Chrysler stockpile is overweighted in small cars, with enough Valiants on hand to last more than 130 days.

AT THIS TIME last year, the automakers were pushing their small car plants to capacity and making plans to convert large car plants to building small models.

Then the market turned around in the summer, and small cars are a drag on the market.

During the depths of the energy crisis-induced sales slump last winter, when 113,000 auto workers were on indefinite layoffs and a like number on shorter periods of idleness, Chrysler management was criticized

Increase unemployment benefits to idled workers, UAW urges

The Illinois General Assembly should immediately increase state unemployment benefits by 30 per cent because of the shutdown of Chrysler's Belvidere assembly plant, United Auto Workers regional director Robert Johnston says.

Johnston said the Belvidere shutdown, to begin Wednesday and continue to Jan. 6, also will affect thousands of workers who supply automotive parts to Chrysler.

"The way to start equalizing the hardship of a recession is to help its victims," Johnston said in a statement.

A bill increasing unemployment benefits already has been passed by the Illinois House, but legislative leaders have said they don't plan to take final action on the measure until January.

THE LEGISLATURE reconvenes today and Johnston urged Senate Pres. William Harris and Senate Minority Leader Cecil Pardee to call the House bill up as soon as possible during the session and amend it so benefits would be increased by 30 per cent.

He said that was slightly more than one-third the average weekly wage of persons who work for "Big Three" auto companies.

Although most auto workers with one year's seniority are guaranteed 90 per cent of their pay through a combination of unemployment benefits and company payments, those who work for smaller firms don't have such guarantees, Johnston said. He said mass layoffs in the auto industry probably will lead to an ultimate reduction in benefits.

Johnston said all 5,500 workers at the Belvidere Chrysler plant will be off for the duration of the shutdown, and 600 will be on indefinite layoff.

(UPI)

for not having a subcompact to rival the Vega or Pinto.

One executive wryly admitted: "No matter what we do, sometimes you just can't seem to win."

ALTHOUGH HE'S an adversary, UAW Vice Pres. Douglas A. Fraser usually restrains his comments on the business acumen of Chrysler management. But within minutes of Chrysler's announcement of new layoffs Tuesday, Fraser called top management incompetent.

Fraser says Chrysler has been producing sales at 135 per cent of sales, resulting in a huge stockpile, while Ford has produced only 102 per cent of sales.

"That is really sloppy management," Fraser said. "It's irresponsible. It's picking the workers' pockets."

Fraser said he asked Chrysler executives why they hadn't scheduled layoffs one or two weeks at a time like the other auto companies. The question went unanswered, he said.

WITH THE NEW MODEL year off to the poorest start in a decade, top Chrysler and UAW executives have banded together to demand action from Washington.

The union has taken up the automaker's pleas for relief from future safety and emission standards.

Chrysler Pres. John Riccardo went to Washington Tuesday, calling for government to help restore consumer confidence so people will buy cars, and easing of credit so they can afford the higher prices.

UAW Pres. Leonard Woodcock warns that the plight of the auto industry may spread quicker than some economists believe.

"Unless something is quickly done to turn around the basic industry, the accumulating effect of what is happening in autos will drag this country not simply to a recession but down to the reaches of a depression," Woodcock said.

Final payout made for park district bus

The Elk Grove Village Park District bus, now fully paid for, was at work transporting passengers while park district and Lions Club officials held a "final payment" ceremony in its honor recently.

Irv Svoboda, Lions Club member, said the Lions Club made its final payment this month on a $10,465 loan it had with the Bank of Elk Grove for the bus it purchased in June 1973.

The bus, which has a capacity of 64 persons, was donated to the park district. Lions Pres. Ron Foster said "the purchase and donation of the bus to the park district was made possible through our fund-raising activities such as our annual rummage sale and Fourth of July celebration. We sincerely thank our citizens and appreciate their continued support of our projects."

Hanover Park's ex-mayor pleads guilty to extortion

Former Village Pres. Richard H. Baker of Hanover Park pleaded guilty Wednesday to a total of 12 federal charges of extortion and income tax fraud.

Baker, 40, village president and liquor commissioner from 1969 to 1973, faces a maximum penalty of up to 48 years in federal prison and $30,000 in fines on seven counts of extortion and five counts of income tax fraud.

He will appear for sentencing Jan. 29 before U.S. District Court Judge Bernard M. Decker.

torting $10,000 from four liquor license applicants and $12,500 from Hanover Builders, Inc. and 5-11 Homes, two major builders in Hanover Park.

Baker has been a controversial figure since he was elected to the Hanover Park village board in 1967 and resigned one year later for "business reasons."

Within five months of his resignation, Baker formed the People's Own Party and headed its slate in the April 1969 election defeating incumbent Village Pres. Eugene Domingue.

Baker's 1969 ticket backed an increased village water rate, supported a village master building plan and opposed a proposed 2,400 acre Metropolitan Sanitary District sludge farm in Hanover and Schaumburg townships.

HIS PROBLEMS began with a Better Government Assn. investigation of Hanover Park in 1972. The BGA charged Baker "played a questionable role" in development of the MSD plant and acted without village board approval.

The BGA report said citizens charged Baker was consistently acting against the best interests of residents and to the advantage of land developers and other special interests.

Citizen complaints included sinking homes, mud-filled driveways, poor roads, inadequate drainage and other construction problems.

Fire district debt estimated at $150,000

The Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District is expected to be at least $150,000 in debt when the village assumes all fire-fighting responsibilities, it was announced Wednesday night.

William Brillanti, fire district board president, said an audit released Wednesday showed the district was about $151,700 in debt as of April 30, 1974. He estimated that the HEFPD would be in debt by the same amount if it were in existence in April 1975 and did not have to hire six men for the new fire station or pay back $38,000 to be provided by the village during the 1974-75 fiscal year.

Village Mgr. George Longmeyer, who also serves as HEFPD's treasurer, said it was a matter of interpretation whether the $38,000 in federal-revenue sharing funds would have to be returned. He said some officials considered it a grant and others a loan.

HOWEVER, IT WOULD cost the village considerably more than the $151,000 figure to assume fire-fighting duties. Six new men would have to be hired. Earlier in the year Brillanti had estimated that the district would suffer an $18,000 deficit from hiring new personnel and maintenance of the new station.

Steps have been taken by village and fire district officials to have firefighting services transferred by the end of the year.

Brillanti said the deficit on April 30, 1973 was $115,800. So the debt collected during the 1973-74 fiscal year was about $36,000.

IN SEPTEMBER, district trustees had predicted a $240,000 deficit. Village trustees prepared for assumption of the debt by passing a 5-per-cent municipal utility tax to be levied starting Jan. 1.

Brillanti explained that the debt had been accruing over a 10-year period and was caused because the district "maintained a level of protection in the village beyond what the state statute (tax rate) allows."

He cited ambulance service as protection not provided for in traditional corporate tax funding for fire districts and that the cost of manning ambulances and training had snowballed since the service was started in 1957. Brillanti added that the debt would not be so large if local voters had approved a referendum last year calling for a maximum tax rate of 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation for ambulance service.

In the service transition, the village will assume all district debts, liabilities and its bond issue tax rates. Amounts still due on fire station bonds are $30,000 for Fire Station No. 1, $220,000 for No. 2, and $480,000 for No. 3.

Railroad fare-hike hearing postponed

A 15 per cent fare increase request on The Milwaukee Road commuter line has been postponed until March 20, when public hearings can be conducted by the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The railroad had asked that the increase be effective Dec. 1, 1974.

C. C. Dille, the railroad's general manager for passenger services, said suburban service for 30,000 daily passengers is expected to lose $2.8 million in 1974.

AN ADMIRING glance from Diane Klotz goes to her winner, Sunday Sunshine. The Appaloosa recently won international honors for his breed and this year also was chosen

Illinois and Missouri state champion. The Klotz' who reside in Hoffman Estates, have been horse owners for only a year.

Gift horse 'Sunshine' reigns as world champ

by TONI GINETTI

When Diane Klotz decided to buy her husband, Karme, a horse for his birthday in August 1973, she never thought just a year later the couple would own the world's champion Appaloosa.

That's exactly what happened. The Hoffman Estates couple's brown-and-spotted steed, named Sunday Sunshine, took top honors in one of three classes of competition this month at the World Championship Appaloosa Show in Oklahoma City.

Sunshine's triumph after winning 14 first-place honors in approved horse show competitions throughout the nation has made the 2-year-old gelding worth about $7,000, Mrs. Klotz says.

Not a bad return on a $1,500 investment made only 11 months ago. But, says Mrs. Klotz, fame and fortune was not the reason the couple bought the horse.

"I thought he was beautiful," she said. "It was a completely illogical thing to do. He wasn't expected to do well in competitions, although his breeding is good."

THE KLOTZ VENTURE into the equine world began a year ago when Mrs. Klotz decided to get her husband a birthday present and satisfy a childhood love at the same time.

"I've always loved horses, but I'm from New York and you don't see too many out there," she said, smiling. "When it finally became financially able for us, we bought a horse. We started with a grade horse, an unregistered horse."

The purchase however, was a little one-sided.

"I'm the kind of person who does something and then comes home and says 'look what I bought,'" she said, laughing. "A girlfriend of mine had a horse, and we had been riding hers. It was the kind of thing where I said 'let's spend a day looking at horses for sale,' and I bought one!"

The couple sold their first horse when they purchased Sunshine in January from the Stoneridge Farm stable in Dundee, where they had boarded their first horse.

THE STABLE RAISES and breeds Appaloosas, horses known for their beauty, versatility and endurance. Sunshine was purchased at an auction in Utah by the farm to be sold, she said.

"We didn't buy him to show, but it kind of snowballed. Then we couldn't afford to keep him out of competition."

The couple joined two Appaloosa horse

He will appear for sentencing Jan. 29 before U.S. District Court Judge Bernard M. Decker.

BAKER WAS INDICTED Aug. 15 by a federal grand jury on charges of extorting $10,000 from four liquor license applicants and $12,500 from Hanover Builders, Inc. and 3-H Homes, two major builders in Hanover Park.

Baker has been a controversial figure since he was elected to the Hanover Park village board in 1967 and resigned one year later for "business reasons."

'74 turkey supplies up, prices down

Butchers, stores may sell at a loss to keep customers interested

The cost of turkeys will gobble up a smaller chunk of the family's Thanksgiving food budget this year compared to 1973 prices. A glut of frozen gobblers and an ample supply of fresh birds are reported by area butcher shops and food store chains.

"Prices of turkeys are somewhat lower than they were last year," said Joe Burkhardt of the Dominick's Finer Foods chain. "I've seen them featured from 29 cents (a pound) and up." Turkey prices are a competitive tool for the food stores during the holiday season, Burkhardt said. He said stores may sell the birds at cost or below to attract customers.

The Herald reported Nov. 15, 1973 that the average retail price for turkeys was 41 cents a pound.

"Last year's turkey prices were abnormally high," a Jewel Food stores spokesman said. Prices this year dropped to a range of 39 cents to 69 cents a pound. Heavy sales of frozen turkeys will begin today and continue through next week, she said, adding that the stores may break even or take a loss on turkey sales.

"RIGHT NOW, turkey supplies are pretty heavy," said a spokesman for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's poultry division office in Chicago. He said government figures indicate 536 million pounds of turkey in storage compared to 450 million pounds a year ago.

WHY THE BIG increase in frozen turkeys? The USDA spokesman said increased production, less promotion of turkey sales and competition from heavy supplies of beef and chicken account for the buildup of frozen turkey inventories.

The glut of gobblers in the market will mean lower prices paid to producers and the possibility of an upward swing in prices by 1976, said John Big, a poultry buyer for A&P Food Stores in Chicago.

"A great deal of money was made last year by growers," he said. "Consequently they thought every year would be the same." Increased production in 1974 led to great financial loss for the producers as feed, labor and transportation costs soared, Big said. Some producers are dropping out of the market, pointing to fewer turkeys and higher prices next year.

Fresh turkey prices are higher than the cost of frozen birds. Jim Howland, owner of Howland's Meat market in Arlington Heights, explains, "It all depends on what you want to put in your stomach." There is a definite taste difference between the fresh and frozen turkeys, Howland said. He charges 99 cents a pound for fresh hens or toms.

"There is no such thing as deals," echoes Tom Aszewski, owner of the John's Coach & Carriage Butcher Shop in Elk Grove Village. "You get more with the fresh turkeys, because they're not dehydrated." He sells the fresh-killed turkeys from the Howard Kaufman farm in Waterman, Ill. at 98 cents a pound for hens and 89 cents a pound for toms. The price last year was $1.09 a pound.

CONSUMER RESISTANCE to rising

prices has cut back on meat sales at some food stores this year, said John Sobut, assistant director of the Illinois Food Retailers Assn. "But somebody's going to buy those turkeys, by God, at 49 cents a pound — that's a bargain," he said.

When the heavy turkey sales promotions get under way, some retailers will sell frozen turkeys at a loss of $1 to $2 a bird, Sobut said. The stores hope to make up for the loss through sales of other holiday foods, he said. Sweet potatoes, cranberry sauce and nuts are among foods that will be featured at sale prices for the Thanksgiving season.

Sobut reported wholesale prices for turkeys ranging from a low of 51½ cents a pound for 18- to 20-pound birds to 55½ cents a pound for 6- to 10-pound birds on store brands. Butterball turkeys ranged from 57½ cents to 63½ cents a pound at the wholesale level this week. Ducks were priced wholesale at 78½ cents a pound and 22-ounce Cornish hens at 90½ cents a pound.

GOBLER GROWER Elving Sennaband of Butterfield, Minn., stands among several thousand turkeys readied for Thanksgiving season sale.

PRIVACY IS NOT impossible in an emergency room, says Dr. Bernard Moore, left, chairman of the emergency medicine department at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village. New facilities at the hospital designed with consideration for patients and their families will be open to the public between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. They are part of a $13 million hospital addition.

All part of new Alexian emergency room

Comfort, service, privacy, dignity...

by JILL BETTNER

The distraught mother of a teen-aged son strung out on drugs rushes him to the hospital. It's a family problem — something the whole town doesn't need to know about. But the woman is forced to explain the situation to a desk clerk in the middle of a crowded emergency room.

An elderly gentleman suddenly slumps in his chair, a heart attack sending him into cardiac arrest. A young child waiting across from him for a penicillin shot watches in terror as a frantic team of doctors and nurses seizes the man, throws him on a nearby cart and zaps him with electric shocks to restart his heartbeat.

A man brings in his pregnant wife who is hemorrhaging. She knows a pelvic examination is necessary, but as a modest woman, she is further upset that only a flimsy curtain separates her from a stranger in the next cubicle.

These kinds of situations are everyday occurrences in hospital emergency rooms across the country. But privacy is not impossible in an emergency room if there is adequate planning, says Dr. Bernard Moore, chairman of the emergency medicine department at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

THE NEW EMERGENCY room that is part of a $13 million addition to the local hospital has been designed to eliminate as much of the trauma as possible connected with emergency hospital visits, Moore said.

For the mother of the teen-aged drug overdose victim, there is a private room where she can give the facts of the case to someone in confidence.

There are two trauma-cardiac arrest treatment rooms where heart patients can get immediate care away from the eyes of children who might be frightened by the sight of a doctor using a defibrillator or taking other measures to save a life.

Instead of white cotton curtains between treatment cubicles, the new emergency room at Alexian Brothers is divided by heavy folding doors for complete privacy.

"There's a big controversy going on between doctors about emergency rooms right now," Moore said. "Some say they like the curtained cubicles because they want to see every patient every minute, but I just don't agree. Only about 10 per cent of all emergency room cases are true emergencies that require constant monitoring."

FOR THOSE 10 PER cent, Moore said two new observation rooms in the emergency department will be used. The rooms have one glass wall making patients visible to the nursing station in the center of the emergency area at all times.

Moore pointed to a family-conference room where relatives of a dead patient go on arriving at the hospital to meet with their pastor as another example of an intent to meet emotional as well as medical needs.

There also is a soundproof room away from the immediate emergency room area to accommodate psychiatric patients who might disturb or be further disturbed themselves by others.

The new department, scheduled to go into full operation in about two weeks, is much larger than the old emergency room at Alexian Brothers and Moore says the care will be faster and more efficient.

"We estimate that there is a 55-minute wait in the emergency room. We think we can get that down with the new facilities," he said.

Nantucket gets tentative OK

Schaumburg plans commissioners have given tentative approval to the first two quadrominium phases of Miller Builders' Nantucket Cove but asked the village engineer to review open space calculations in the 141-acre project at Roselle and Wise roads.

At the plan commission's Tuesday night meeting, Jerry DeGrazia, director of planning for Miller Builders, said "minor" changes in the development plan were made, explaining that units at the end of buildings have had their entrances relocated. This could possibly change open space figures, officials said.

DeGrazia said changes did not alter the number of units, bedrooms, land cover, parking or traffic circulation in the development.

Annexation and zoning for the project were granted in 1972. It will contain 541 apartments, 303 townhouses, 384 four-unit condominiums, 44 single-family homes and a 16-acre shopping center.

RUSSELL PARKER, zoning board chairman, told DeGrazia the original site plan is part of the ordinance granting zoning and annexing the land. The developer is prevented from making any changes unless they are authorized by the village board, he added.

Last week, at the request of the plans commission, DeGrazia appeared before the village board and received trustees' approval subject to plans commission review. However, at this week's plans commission meeting, it was learned that the village engineering department had not calculated open space in the revised Miller plan but merely reviewed unit changes.

Under Schaumburg's planned unit development guidelines, a developer must maintain 50 per cent open space in a project. When Nantucket Cove was approved two years ago, Miller Builders agreed to maintain 50 per cent open space in each phase of the development.

Park board petitions available Dec. 1

Petitions for three Hoffman Estates Park Board seats will be available beginning Dec. 1 at the Village Administration Center, 650 W. Higgins Rd.

Two 6-year and one 2-year terms will be up for election April 1. Petitions can be filed from Jan. 13-27.

Terms expire for commissioners Fred Weaver and George Seaver. Shirley Gibbons was appointed to fill the board seat left vacant with the resignation of Claude Crase until the next election.

None of the three commissioners have indicated if they will run for reelection.

Jones Road now will lie only in Hoffman Estates

Jones Road soon will be completely within the Village of Hoffman Estates. Schaumburg plans commissioners will ask the village board Tuesday to approve disconnection of areas of Jones Road north of Higgins Road, completing years of negotiations between the two towns.

While portions of Jones Road lie in each community, major users are Hoffman Estates residents. Recently both villages participated in the $289,332 cost of total reconstruction of the road, with the understanding that Schaumburg officials would allow Hoffman Estates to assume ownership.

The eastern half of the road completely adjoins Hoffman Estates; the other side provides access to the Churchill and Knightbridge subdivisions of Schaumburg and to the northeastern edge of Hoffman Estates High Point.

Schaumburg will disannex its portions of Jones Road north from Higgins Road to Heather Lane, said Assistant Village Engr. Vincent Wroblewski. Hoffman Estates is expected to annex those areas at its Dec. 2 village board meeting, he added.

Originally, a swap of Jones Road to Hoffman Estates for Hillcrest Road to Schaumburg was discussed by officials of the two villages. Hoffman Estates later reconsidered and officials said they would not give up the one-quarter mile Hillcrest Road which runs west from Roselle Road to Hillcrest Boulevard.

Items worth $1,200 stolen from car

Thieves broke into a Schaumburg man's car and stole an estimated $1,200 in items, police were told Tuesday.

Joseph Decla, whose address police would not release because he is a policeman for another village, told authorities two sets of golf clubs, a tool box, an engine tuneup kit and power tools were taken.

Entry to the car trunk was made by punching a hole in the lock, police said.

County board OKs Bode improvement

The County Board has agreed to plans that will provide for improvement of a stretch of Bode Road in Hoffman Estates.

Work is expected to begin in the spring, Village Mgr. George Longmeyer said Wednesday. Bids for the work now are being let, he added.

The work is to include resurfacing of the road, with the village and the county sharing the cost. The village has pledged $30,000 toward its share of the work.

A county contract was let in June for the portion from Barrington Road to the S-curves just east of Springguth Road. The portion from the S-curves east to Roselle Road will be improved jointly by the village and county.

'Turkey Shoot' set Tuesday

About 200 pounds of turkey will be offered as prizes Tuesday in the Schaumburg Park District "Turkey Shoot" at Jane Addams Junior High School, 700 Springguth Rd.
 The event is not for bird hunters, but for parents and their children who enjoy shooting baskets. Competition will be offered for different parent-child combinations — father-son, father-daughter, mother-son and mother-daughter.
 Age divisions for the children — half of the two-person teams are 6-year-olds; 7- and 8-year-olds; 12-year-olds, and 13-year-olds and up.
 Sixteen 12-pound turkeys will be awarded to the first-place finishers in each of the 16 classifications. The fee is 50 cents per team, and the shoot will be from 7 to 9:30 p.m.
 Winners will be determined by the total number of baskets made in the four mandatory events — free throws, jumpshots, "around the world" shots and side shots to the basket.
 No advance registration will be required. Fees will be taken at the door.

From township funds

Library to seek $119,300

A $119,300 allotment from the township's remaining revenue-sharing funds will be sought tonight by the Schaumburg Township Library.

The request, set by library board members at a meeting Wednesday night, is the largest amount ever sought by the library from the township and will be earmarked for materials and books.

At the same time the board agreed to delay a decision to purchase Hoffman Estates' Fire Station No. 2 for a branch library. The move, which library board members agreed to keep under consideration, was tabled when Board Pres. Robert Lyons said the cost of the station is still unknown.

LYONS SAID THE cost may be about $110,000, according to preliminary information he has received from an audit of the fire district, but he added the figure is not definite.
 He said other cost factors, including the expense of servicing the branch, also would have to be considered.

Village officials have not yet decided whether the station will be made available for purchase. That decision will not come until the takeover of the fire district by the village is completed, a move which now appears unlikely until the first of the year.

The $119,300 which the board will seek from the township will include costs for adult and children's books, reference works and the business-services section. THE LIBRARY ASKED for $80,000 last year but was given only $30,000 by the township. The library has received a total of about $75,000 in revenue-sharing from the township since the federal money grant program began in 1972.

The figure is about 30 per cent of all revenue-sharing which the township has allocated.

The only agency to receive more from the township has been the mental health services department, which is run by the township.

An estimated $210,000 is left in the township revenue-sharing purse, Librarian Michael Madden estimated. He told the board the total sum being requested will almost certainly not be granted, but a detailing of the funds being requested would enhance the library's chances of obtaining as much money as possible.

THE LIBRARY will be vying with a number of other agencies for a cut of the revenue-sharing account. They will likely include the mental health services and the township bus service for the elderly, which is expected to ask for funds for another bus.

CHRYSLER CORP. officials are laying off 70,500 employees, or 64 per cent of the company's 110,000 hourly wage earners. A drop in sales and projected car orders prompted executives to wield a heavy ax. The No. 3 automaker has been criticized for its actions and one union official called top management "incompetent." Meanwhile, new cars remain in company parking lots.

64% out of work by December

Chrysler first to panic

by EDWARD S. LECHTIZIN

DETROIT (UPI) — Whether it's sloppy management, as the United Auto Workers union charges, or just bad luck, Chrysler Corp. executives have pushed the panic button harder than any of their competitors in the beleaguered auto industry.

Chrysler Chairman Lynn A. Townsend says it will be business as usual in December with no companywide shutdown. But nearly 64 per cent of the men and women who build Chrysler's cars won't be on the job the month before Christmas.

Faced with an early November sales report that showed a 34 per cent drop from last year's already depressed levels and a stock of unsold cars that could last four months, Chrysler executives began wielding a heavy ax Tuesday.

COMPARED TO General Motors' layoffs just before Christmas last year when 137,000 workers were idled in one short shutdown, Chrysler's numbers aren't that large — another 43,900 workers added to 26,500 already idled.

For a company with 110,000 hourly workers, idling 64 per cent of the work force the month before Christmas is dramatic.

Chrysler won't say how many of its 39,800 salaried workers have been trimmed or will be let go in the belt-tightening.

Chrysler is the No. 3 automaker and, with just under 14 per cent of the new car market so far this year, it has no room for bad guesses.

Top management apparently didn't read the signals right and built too many small cars at a time when the swing was back to the larger models.

Chrysler has 365,000 cars, part of an industry backlog of 1.65 million cars, or an 80-day supply. But the Chrysler stockpile is overweighted in small cars, with enough Valiants on hand to last more than 130 days.

AT THIS TIME last year, the automakers were pushing their small car plants to capacity and making plans to convert large car plants to building small models.

Then the market turned around in the summer, and small cars are a drag on the market.

During the depths of the energy crisis-induced sales slump last winter, when 113,000 auto workers were on indefinite layoffs and a like number on shorter periods of idleness, Chrysler management was criticized

Increase unemployment benefits to idled workers, UAW urges

The Illinois General Assembly should immediately increase state unemployment benefits by 30 per cent because of the shutdown of Chrysler's Belvidere assembly plant, United Auto Workers regional director Robert Johnston says.

Johnston said the Belvidere shutdown, to begin Wednesday and continue to Jan. 6, also will affect thousands of workers who supply automotive parts to Chrysler.

"The way to start equalizing the hardship of a recession is to help its victims," Johnston said in a statement.

A bill increasing unemployment benefits already has been passed by the Illinois House, but legislative leaders have said they don't plan to take final action on the measure until January.

THE LEGISLATURE reconvenes today and Johnston urged Senate Pres. William Harris and Senate Minority Leader Cecil Parson to call the House bill up as soon as possible during the session and amend it so benefits would be increased by 30 per cent.

"Since the legislature last increased unemployment compensation payments in 1972, the cost of living has increased over 20 per cent while the average compensation payments for a married worker with a family of four remains at $90 a week," Johnston said.

He said that was slightly more than one-third the average weekly wage of persons who work for "Big Three" auto companies.

Although most auto workers with one year's seniority are guaranteed 90 per cent of their pay through a combination of unemployment benefits and company payments, those who work for smaller firms don't have such guarantees, Johnston said. He said mass layoffs in the auto industry probably will lead to an ultimate reduction in benefits.

Johnston said all 5,500 workers at the Belvidere Chrysler plant will be off for the duration of the shutdown, and 600 will be on indefinite layoff.

question went unanswered, he said. WITH THE NEW MODEL year off to the poorest start in a decade, top Chrysler and UAW executives have banded together to demand action from Washington.

The union has taken up the automaker's pleas for relief from future safety and emission standards. to Washington Tuesday, calling for Chrysler Pres. John Riccardo to urge government to help restore consumer confidence so people will buy cars, and easing of credit so they can afford the higher prices.

UAW Pres. Leonard Woodcock warns that the plight of the auto industry may spread quicker than some economists believe.

"Unless something is quickly done to turn around the basic industry, the accumulating effect of what is happening in autos will drag this country not simply to a recession but down to the reaches of a depression," Woodcock said.

Fraser said he asked Chrysler executives why they hadn't scheduled layoffs one or two weeks at a time like the other auto companies. The are jealous of the Klotz' good luck, they haven't shown it. "The people in the club are fantastic," she said. "We're novices and they've helped us a lot. It's very much a family type thing."

ODDLY ENOUGH, their "hobby" is not a moneymaking one for her husband, who works for Centex Homes Corp. The world champion medallion award, for example, carried with it only about $180 in prize money, she said, about enough to pay for one month's boarding fee.

Sunshine's board at the stable is $115 per month. Marshall's fee for a training period of one to three months is another $200. The couple also has two other horses; one is a riding horse and the other

"It's an expensive hobby, but when you have a horse like him, you can't not do it. It definitely takes money from your income."

There is a great deal of time involved in caring for the animal as well, and Mrs. Klotz said she and her two small sons spend at least four nights a week at the stable in addition to weekends.

But the time requirement would never be too much to make her give up the horses, Mrs. Klotz says firmly.

"I'd make time for it. I go to school part-time, I'm kind of a free lance photographer, and I have two children, too. But I would still make time for the horse."

Township VFW plans to install firearms range

A firearms range planned by Schaumburg Township VFW Post 6080 could benefit police in Hoffman Estates but probably will come too late to assist Schaumburg.

A target range to accommodate 22-cal. rifles and 38-cal. pistols will be located in the basement of a two-story Golf Road building planned by the post, Charles J. DePaul, post commander, said this week.

"I'd be happy to use anybody's range," Hoffman Estates Police Chief John J. O'Connell said Wednesday. O'Connell said he has been asking the village to budget funds for a range for several years but has not "gotten any money yet" for the facility.

Schaumburg Chief Martin J. Conroy could not be reached for comment but funds for a range have been provided in the $2.5 million construction cost of a new Schaumburg Road police station.

DePAUL TOLD Schaumburg plans commissioners the VFW is planning a $150,000 brick or precast concrete building on 1 1/2 acres being donated to the post by Jack Rohs, owner of a local stone and gravel company.

DePaul and Mrs. Jack Rohs asked Schaumburg plans commissioners to approve subdivision of the entire five-acre Rohs site. They said the property is east of Village-in-the-Park apartment complex and explained it now contains a Ponderosa Steak House and Rohs' business. There is no present potential buyer for one lot which will remain after the VFW building is constructed, they added.

Assistant Village Engineer Vincent Wroblewski told commissioners he is concerned about access to Golf Road when the entire Rohs parcel is developed and said he believes the land should have been subdivided before the restaurant was built.

DePaul agreed to meet with Wroblewski to work out details of the proposed subdivision and said he would return to the Dec. 3 plans commission meeting with specific plans for the VFW building.

Woman, 20, arrested for stealing coat

A 20-year-old Chicago woman was arrested for allegedly stealing a $269 man's full-length coat from Sears, Roebuck and Co., in the Woodfield Shopping Center, Schaumburg.

Joyce Moore was charged with theft of more than $150. She was released after posting $3,000 bond pending an appearance Nov. 27 in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

Sears security agents detained her after she was observed putting the rabbit's fur coat under her coat, police said.

Money sought by library

The revenue-sharing committee of Schaumburg Township Board of Auditors will meet Thursday and is expected to hear a request from township library officials for additional funds.

The money is being sought to fill out the library's current budget and to help plan for expansion. The meeting begins 7:30 p.m. in the conference room of the township offices, 105 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg.

ECKANKAR to hold lecture

The third in a series of lectures and discussions on ECKANKAR, the Path of Total Awareness, will be held Nov. 27 at the Schaumburg Township Public Library, 32 W. Library Ln., Schaumburg.

Karma and reincarnation, man's existence and soul, the inner and outer master and techniques in soul travel will be topics of conversation for the session at 8 p.m.

The public is invited.

The horse's victories are catalogued in a room of the couple's Winston Knolls subdivision home. Dozens of prize ribbons for general competitions adorn one wall, while trophies from regulation Appaloosa club competitions line the fireplace mantel and shelves.

The trophies include 14 firsts, the Illinois and Missouri state championships, and seven grand championships, awards which are given in each competition to the best of all first place winners.

MRS. KLOTZ SAID her horse competes in the halter category, in which the animal is judged by its appearance, breed qualities and movement. Victories in grand-champion competition qualify a horse to go on to the world show.

Winning the International competition, however, was an unexpected victory, she said, so much so that, although the Klotz' had traveled to most of the other shows, they didn't attend the major show.

"I was crying on the phone when they called to tell us we won," Mrs. Klotz said. "We thought it was out of the question."

For veteran horsemen, winning an international competition often never comes, but if their fellow club members are jealous of the Klotz' good luck, they haven't shown it.

"The people in the club are fantastic," she said. "We're novices and they've helped us a lot. It's very much a family type thing."

'Not in trouble yet'

Low funds may force city to cut spending

by NANCY COWGER

Rolling Meadows finances have long been the envy of neighboring communities, but the city now is in a position where it will have to "bite the bullet" to control spending, said Treasurer Robert B. Cole.

Cole and City Mgr. James Watson are preparing a report for the Tuesday meeting of the city council to project as accurately as possible revenue and expenditures for the rest of the fiscal year which ends April 30.

The analysis was requested by city aldermen in a closed session after the council meeting Nov. 12 partially because of concern over sales tax revenues that have dropped below last year's receipts.

COLE SOUNDED what he called a note of "cautious optimism" for coming city expenditures. "I don't think we're in trouble," he said, although there may be a need for "temporary curtailment" of capital expenditures.

Aldermen generally describe the city's finances as tight. They told public works department heads this week "the cash just isn't there" when they deferred budgeted equipment purchases and flatly denied a purchase of trucks that were not budgeted.

Watson is listing anticipated expenditures by priorities, and low priority expenses may wait until next year. The city is accepting an interest-free loan from a developer for $50,000 for a sewer installation to service the new development, because the city does not have the money on hand.

Some of the taxes that might have been reduced in other years perhaps should not be next year, said Cole.

IN FOUR OF THE first six months of this year, sales tax distributions from the state have been smaller than they were last year, said Watson. They were higher for the other two months, he said, but he is projecting a 10 to 15 per cent decline in sales tax for next year. Because of the poor health of the national economy, said Watson, the city probably will experience a decline in motor fuel and state income tax revenue and in federal revenue sharing receipts.

The sales tax check for November was about $84,000, said Cole. The city has averaged more than $100,000 per month since 1970, and the average for calendar year 1973 was just under $120,000 per month.

The 1974-75 budget, under which the city now is operating, projected a 12-month total sales tax figure slightly higher than the total receipts for calendar 1973.

Sales tax is the largest source of revenue for the city. It contributes 36 cents of every dollar in city income, according to charts in the city budget.

BY WAY OF COMPARISON, property taxes contribute 25 cents and the water department accounts for 13 cents of the revenue dollar. No other revenue source exceeds 7 cents of the income dollar.

Sales taxes become part of the city's general corporate fund once they are received. That fund supplies money necessary to operate street, garbage and other major departments of the city. Of a total city payroll of $144,000 per month, the general corporate fund contributes $84,000 per month.

If sales taxes return to their previous $100,000-per-month level, there would only be $16,000 left from that revenue source each month after paying employee salaries for the city to cover operating expenses in street and garbage departments. When the sales tax income drops to $84,000, it just covers salaries.

300,000 gallons a day

$800,000 in city water going down drain

Rolling Meadows will lose $80,000 worth of water this year.

City Engineer James Muldowney told a city council committee this week that the city is losing about 300,000 gallons of water a day. The loss figure represents the difference between the amount of water that meters indicate is pumped from city wells and the amount for which the city can bill residents based on metered indications of use.

The city will lose about 127 million gallons by the end of 1974. At the city's billing rate of 63 cents per thousand gallons, the revenue loss is $80,000 for the year, Muldowney said. In 1973, the loss was about 90 million gallons, he said, indicating that the figure has grown steadily in recent years.

THE LOSS COULD result from several factors. The city has had a number of major water main breaks this year, Muldowney said. One was an underground break, permitting no means of determining how long the main had been broken.

Although several aldermen noted there have been major fires in the city this year, Muldowney said their impact would be minimal. Very large fires might consume up to five million gallons of water, but the fires in Rolling Meadows have not been even that large, he said.

Old water meters, which may not be listing usage accurately, could be an important factor, Muldowney said. The city has approved a program of replacement of old meters.

Another step which should help reduce the problem will be the appointment of meter readers. The city still is handling its meter reading and billing by mail, with the homeowner reading his own meter. Public works department spokesmen said they had been waiting for more specific directions from the city council, but now would proceed with appointments as quickly as possible.

BUT THE STEP Muldowney feels will be most important in eliminating the water loss is a total inspection of the water system.

Muldowney recommended dividing the city into sections and surveying each water main to locate breaks. Water could be seeping from mains into the ground, into storm sewers or into Salt Creek, he suggested. The inspections, requiring about three days for each section of the city, should identify points of major seepage which then could be repaired, he added.

The aldermen agreed and the program is to begin soon.

Parks want to annex Tall Oaks subdivision

Rolling Meadows Park District wants to annex the Tall Oaks subdivision, an area of 22 houses between Richwood Lane and Tall Oaks Lane just south of Dawn-gate subdivision.

Tall Oaks is in the Palatine Rural Park District but is a part of the City of Rolling Meadows. Supt. Stephen Person WORKMEN INSTALL new sewer lines along Algonquin Road between Plum Grove Bank and Mr. Steak restaurant. The sewer will relieve flooding in the area and will be paid for by businesses that hook into the new sewer system.

of the Rolling Meadows Park District said the district wants to annex Tall Oaks before the Palatine Rural district merges with the Palatine Park District this spring.

Person said petitions soon will be passed around Tall Oaks for homeowners' signatures. If more than 50 per cent of the homeowners favor the annexation the district will approach the Palatine Rural Park District for dis-annexation. "I'm anticipating they'll go along with it," Person said.

Person added that he had talked with several residents of Tall Oaks who said they were "very much in favor" of the move to the Rolling Meadows Park District.

As part of Palatine Rural Park District, Tall Oaks residents are paying a tax rate of 18 cents per $100 assessed valuation. When the rural district merges with Palatine Park District, the tax rate will go up, but park officials are not sure what that new rate will be.

Rolling Meadows Park District's rate is 43 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

'74 turkey supplies up, prices down

Butchers, stores may sell at a loss to keep customers interested

GOBBLER GROWER Elving Sennaband of Butterfield, Minn., stands among several thousand turkeys readied for Thanksgiving season sale.

The cost of turkeys will gobble up a smaller chunk of the family's Thanksgiving food budget this year compared to 1973 prices. A glut of frozen gobblers and an ample supply of fresh birds are reported by area butcher shops and food store chains.

"Prices of turkeys are somewhat lower than they were last year," said Joe Burkhardt of the Dominick's Finer Foods chain. "I've seen them featured from 29 cents (a pound) and up." Turkey prices are a competitive tool for the food stores during the holiday season, Burkhardt said. He said stores may sell the birds at cost or below to attract customers.

The Herald reported Nov. 15, 1973 that the average retail price for turkeys was 41 cents a pound.

"Last year's turkey prices were abnormally high," a Jewel Food stores spokesman said. Prices this year dropped to a range of 39 cents to 60 cents a pound. Heavy sales of frozen turkeys will begin today and continue through next week, she said, adding that the stores may break even or take a loss on turkey sales.

"RIGHT NOW, turkey supplies are pretty heavy," said a spokesman for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's poultry division office in Chicago. He said government figures indicate 556 million pounds of turkey in storage compared to 450 million pounds a year ago.

WHY THE BIG increase in frozen turkeys? The USDA spokesman said increased production, less promotion of turkey sales and competition from heavy supplies of beef and chicken account for the buildup of frozen turkey inventories.

The glut of gobblers in the market will mean lower prices paid to producers and the possibility of an upward swing in prices by 1976, said John Big, a poultry buyer for A&P Food Stores in Chicago.

"A great deal of money was made last year by growers," he said. "Consequently they thought every year would be the same." Increased production in 1974 led to great financial loss for the producers as feed, labor and transportation costs soared, Big said. Some producers are dropping out of the market, pointing to fewer turkeys and higher prices next year.

Fresh turkey prices are higher than the cost of frozen birds. Jim Howland, owner of Howland's Meat market in Arlington Heights, explains. "It all depends on what you want to put in your stomach." There is a definite taste difference between the fresh and frozen turkeys, Howland said. He charges 89 cents a pound for fresh hens or toms.

"There is no such thing as deals," echoes Tom Aszewski, owner of the John's Coach & Carriage Butcher Shop in Elk Grove Village. "You get more with the fresh turkeys, because they're not dehydrated." He sells the fresh-killed turkeys from the Howard Kaufman farm in Waukegan, Ill., at 98 cents a pound for hens and 89 cents a pound for toms. The price last year was $1.09 a pound.

CONSUMER RESISTANCE to rising

prices has cut back on meat sales at some food stores this year, said John Sobut, assistant director of the Illinois Food Retailers Assn. "But somebody's going to buy those turkeys, by God, at 49 cents a pound — that's a bargain," he said.

When the heavy turkey sales promotions get under way, some retailers will sell frozen turkeys at a loss of $1 to $2 a bird, Sobut said. The stores hope to make up for the loss through sales of other holiday foods, he said. Sweet potatoes, cranberry sauce and nuts are among foods that will be featured at sale prices for the Thanksgiving season.

Sobut reported wholesale prices for turkeys ranging from a low of 51½ cents a pound for 18- to 20-pound birds to 55½ cents a pound for 6- to 10-pound birds on store brands. Butterball turkeys ranged from 57½ cents to 63½ cents a pound at the wholesale level this week. Ducks were priced wholesale at 78½ cents a pound and 22-ounce Cornish hens at 90½ cents a pound.

Don't push child into reading, teachers urge

by MARILYN McDONALD

If you've been tempted to urge books on your toddler in the name of reading readiness, think twice about it. Letting children be children is the best way to prepare them to be good readers.

That was the advice given by Mary Ann Larson, a first-grade teacher at Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15's Lake Louise School and Mini Reeb, part-time reading consultant for Arlington Heights Dist. 23 and a teacher at Windsor School. The two teachers met with nearly 20 parents this week as part of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library series on children's books, "Go Ask Alice."

Although some current writings encourage parents to start gearing their children for reading as young as 11 months old, the two teachers disagree.

WHILE URGING caution on early reading, the two teachers had faint praise for television programs like "Sesame Street" and "The Electric Company" which may have 2-year-olds chanting the alphabet with little understanding or readiness for reading. The teachers also noted that these programs encourage short attention spans with their brief, flashy segments. "You really have to ham it up in the classroom to keep their attention," Mrs. Reeb said.

"The most important thing to have is an experience to relate to," said Mrs. Larson, who encouraged parents of preschoolers to help their children discover the world around them. "Children need to have an idea of what it's like to do this or that, to feel this way or that way," she said. Children can then relate their experience to the stories they'll begin to read and say "Oh, yeah!"

"Children have a tremendous sense for anxiety feelings," said Mrs. Reeb, who encouraged parents to avoid pushing their children into reading or comparing their skills to other children's abilities.

"I don't want a neurotic first-grader!" Mrs. Larson said. Both teachers enthusiastically urged parents to read aloud to their children.

Youngsters get a sense of sentence patterns, rhymes and vocabulary in very enjoyable way that the family can share, they said.

ONCE THE CHILD begins reading, both teachers suggested that parents keep reading aloud, moving on to more difficult stories that may stimulate their youngster's desire to read better.

"If you can read to your child, they get to hear words and develop a listening vocabulary. They get a feeling about words that is good," Mrs. Reeb said. "Don't feel that you have to read simple stories at their level, though. They can always ask for an explanation."

"Don't restrict them to books that they can easily read by themselves. They'll get something out of anything they really want to look at," Mrs. Reeb said.

Mrs. Reeb said Americans as a whole do not have "the reading habit." When a child sees his parent reading and enjoying books, the seed is sown.

"Give them a feeling that books are not just for information. Stress enjoyment, too. Share your enthusiasm."

TWO GRADE teachers, Mimi Reeb, left, and Mary Ann Larson discuss how parents could best prepare their children to read as part of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library's series on children's books, "Go Ask Alice." The program was the third of six weekly presentations.

Extortion, tax fraud

Hanover's ex-president pleads guilty

Former Village Pres. Richard H. Baker of Hanover Park pleaded guilty Wednesday to a total of 12 federal charges of extortion and income tax fraud.

Baker, 40, village president and liquor commissioner from 1969 to 1973, faces a maximum penalty of up to 46 years in federal prison and $30,000 in fines on seven counts of extortion and five counts of income tax fraud.

He will appear for sentencing Jan. 29 before U.S. District Court Judge Bernard M. Decker.

BAKER WAS INDICTED Aug. 15 by a federal grand jury on charges of extorting $10,000 from four liquor license applicants and $12,500 from Hanover Builders, Inc. and 3-H Homes, two major builders in Hanover Park.

Baker has been a controversial figure since he was elected to the Hanover Park village board in 1967 and resigned one year later for "business reasons."

Within five months of his resignation, Baker formed the People's Own Party and headed its slate in the April 1969 election, defeating incumbent Village Pres. Eugene Domingue.

Baker's 1969 ticket backed an increased village water rate, supported a village master building plan and opposed a proposed 2,400 acre Metropolitan Sanitary District sludge farm in Hanover and Schaumburg townships.

HIS PROBLEMS began with a Better Government Assn. investigation of Hanover Park in 1972. The BGA charged Baker "played a questionable role" in development of the MSD plant and acted without village board approval.

Richard H. Baker

The BGA report said citizens charged Baker was consistently acting against the best interests of residents and to the advantage of land developers and other special interests.

Citizen complaints included sinking homes, mud-filled driveways, poor roads, inadequate drainage and other construction problems.

Memorial plaque honors firemen

A plaque in memory of Warren Ahlgrim, Richard Freeman and John Wilson was presented Wednesday to the families of the three firemen killed in the Ben Franklin Store fire Feb. 24, 1973.

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones presented the plaque at the Village of Palatine annual recognition dinner at Birchwood Park. The Ahlgrim, Freeman, Wilson commendation master plaque will be placed in the village hall. In the future the plaque will be given to persons who show outstanding personal sacrifice and bravery in assisting others or protecting life or property.

Palatine Fire Chief Orville Helms helped present the plaque and was himself recognized for 37 years of service with the village. Jones presented Helms with a plaque depicting a horse drawn fire engine.

Deputy Village Clerk June Boston also was recognized for 20 years of service. Awards were presented to more than 40 persons for service to the village.

The Mayor's Valor Award was presented to Palatine Patrolman Jack McGregor for his "outstanding bravery" in attempting to rescue a family from a fire Oct. 17 in the Lake Louise subdivision. McGregor rescued three children from the roof of a burning house and then went into the house after a window exploded in his face to save other family members. He administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation on family members until the Palatine Fire Dept. and paramedics arrived.

Ogilvie discussed '73 track dates before OK

Former Illinois Racing Board chairman Alexander MacArthur testified Wednesday that former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie discussed the 1973 racing schedule with him just before the board adopted it.

MacArthur's testimony before the present racing board conflicts with previous testimony by Ogilvie, who said he never discussed details of the 1973 racing schedule with any board member.

MacArthur, of Barrington Hills, also testified that he came close to resigning several times because of interference in racing matters from some of Ogilvie's top aides.

The board is investigating whether $110,000 in contributions from racing associations influenced the awarding of 1973 racing dates. The board says racing associations connected with Sportsman's Park gave the money in 1971 and 1972 for the campaigns of Ogilvie and Edmund Kucharski, unsuccessful candidate for secretary of state in 1972.

Board chairman Anthony Sciarano said Wednesday he would try to get Ogilvie to appear at the hearing to explain the difference in testimony. MacArthur told the board he had breakfast with Ogilvie shortly before the governor was to leave office, and Ogilvie asked for a compromise racing schedule that wouldn't make any waves.

MacArthur said he rejected a suggestion that the board adopt a similar schedule to the one approved when William S. Miller was chairman of the racing board. The board later adopted a controversial 1973 schedule that MacArthur opposed. He later resigned.

pay for state employees and raise state unemployment benefits, particularly to aid victims of the Chrysler Corp. layoffs.

A spokesman for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees urged legislators to restore the $100 pay raises for state employees, which Gov. Daniel Walker cut in half.

The United Auto Workers asked for legislation now, during the legislature's veto session, to raise unemployment benefits 30 per cent.

Quadruplegic sues hospital

A 19-year-old quadruplegic who charged that he suffered permanent damage after being dropped on the floor of Chicago's Holy Cross Hospital is seeking $3 million in a suit filed in Cook County Tuesday.

The suit charges that John T. Kleinick, who was hospitalized in 1971 for a paralyzing football injury, might have regained some movement of the upper part of his body if the hospital accident had not occurred. Kleinick's attorney said the youth was under routine treatment for a broken cervical vertebra when he was turned improperly, allowing him to fall to the floor. The suit contains several other detailed charges that Kleinick's treatment was "negligent." Doctors named in the suit are Jonas G. Byla and Frank Devincenzo.

State Fair spending cut

All State Fair spending has been shut off this week pending a decision on the legality of up to $3 million in vouchers for fair-related expenses.

Comptroller George Lindberg closed off spending because fair manager Paul King may have illegally authorized the expenditures, a spokesman for Lindberg said. Atty. Gen. William J. Scott has been asked to issue an opinion on King's authority.

Jim Williams, Lindberg's press secretary, said the issue arose because King has not been confirmed as fair manager by the Illinois Senate. King has been acting manager since January.

Phone strike ends

Employees of the General Telephone Co. in West Frankfort and Springfield will return to their jobs Monday after a one-month strike that involved 2,900 workers. The statewide strike by two locals of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers affected 430,000 customers, although management kept operator stations functioning. Details of the two-year pact were to be released later, officials said.

Strike at Caterpillar?

Union and company officials of the Caterpillar Tractor Co. in Peoria are meeting to head off a strike approved by members of United Auto Workers Local 974.

A strike could occur before Thanksgiving if grievances including pay rates for new job classifications aren't resolved.

Elderly tax relief due?

Pay raises and old-age tax relief vetoed by Gov. Daniel Walker are scheduled to receive special attention this week by the Illinois General Assembly.

State Rep. James Washburn, R-Morris, chairman of the appropriations committee, said he intends to seek an override of Walker's cut in the state employee raise, which was trimmed from $100 to $30. Other representatives also will seek to override cuts in salary hikes for employees of the University of Illinois and Board of Regents universities.

The Senate will consider Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan's sales tax relief plan, which involves spending $30 million in old-age state grants to offset sales tax on food, clothing, medicine and fuel. The bill has passed the House.

The Senate also has pay raise bills pending for judges, high-level state officials and legislators. The legislative pay hike would boost salaries from $17,500 to $22,500 a year.

Gunmen invade convent

Three gunmen injured one nun and stole $70 after forcing their way into St. Clotilde Convent in Chicago Tuesday.

Police said three men forced their way in after the nuns answered the door. One of the men drew a gun and demanded all the money in the convent. Sister Mary Hannon gave them the money from the community purse, but the gunman hit her on the wrist with his pistol. She was released from Roseland Community Hospital after treatment.

Repair firms face suit

Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott has filed suit against officials of 12 home-repair construction firms in the Chicago area, charging them with failure to perform work after accepting payment.

Scott is asking that the firms be prohibited from doing business until they answer subpoenas. He said the firms received subpoenas several months ago but have not taken records in for inspection, as ordered.

The firms are United Enterprises, Tinley Park; Edward Bukala & Sons, Palos Park; A.R.R. CHRYSLER CORP. officials are laying off 70,500 employees, or 64 per cent of the company's 110,000 hourly wage earners. A drop in sales and projected car orders prompted executives to wield a heavy ax. The No. 3 automaker has been criticized for its actions and one union official called top management "incompetent." Meanwhile, new cars remain in company parking lots.

64% out of work by December

Chrysler first to panic

by EDWARD S. LECHTIN

THE VIEW from the tollway. Chrysler Corp. plant in Belvidere is visible from the North-west Tollway but work on new cars will not be as 5,500 workers are being laid off Wednesday. Only about 1,000 persons may be rehired in 1975.

DETROIT (UPI) — Whether it's sloppy management, as the United Auto Workers union charges, or just bad luck, Chrysler Corp. executives have pushed the panic button harder than any of their competitors in the beleaguered auto industry.

Chrysler Chairman Lynn A. Townsend says it will be business as usual in December with no companywide shutdown. But nearly 64 per cent of the men and women who build Chrysler's cars won't be on the job the month before Christmas.

Faced with an early November sales report that showed a 34 per cent drop from last year's already depressed levels and a stock of unsold cars that could last four months, Chrysler executives began wielding a heavy ax Tuesday.

COMPARED TO General Motors' layoffs just before Christmas last year when 137,000 workers were idled in one short shutdown, Chrysler's numbers aren't that large — another 43,900 workers added to 26,600 already idled.

For a company with 110,000 hourly workers, idling 64 per cent of the work force the month before Christmas is dramatic.

Chrysler won't say how many of its 39,800 salaried workers have been trimmed or will be let go in the belt-tightening.

Chrysler is the No. 3 automaker and, with just under 14 per cent of the new car market so far this year, it has no room for bad guesses.

Top management apparently didn't read the signals right and built too many small cars at a time when the swing was back to the larger models.

Chrysler has 385,000 cars, part of an industry backlog of 1.65 million cars, or an 80-day supply. But the Chrysler stockpile is overweighted in small cars, with enough Valiants on hand to last more than 130 days.

AT THIS TIME last year, the automakers were pushing their small car plants to capacity and making plans to convert large car plants to building small models.

Then the market turned around in the summer, and small cars are a drag on the market.

During the depths of the energy crisis-induced sales slump last winter, when 113,000 auto workers were on indefinite layoffs and a like number on shorter periods of idleness, Chrysler management was criticized

Increase unemployment benefits to idled workers, UAW urges

The Illinois General Assembly should immediately increase state unemployment benefits by 30 per cent because of the shutdown of Chrysler's Belvidere assembly plant, United Auto Workers regional director Robert Johnston says.

Johnston said the Belvidere shutdown, to begin Wednesday and continue to Jan. 6, also will affect thousands of workers who supply automotive parts to Chrysler.

"The way to start equalizing the hardship of a recession is to help its victims," Johnston said in a statement.

A bill increasing unemployment benefits already has been passed by the Illinois House, but legislative leaders have said they don't plan to take final action on the measure until January.

THE LEGISLATURE reconvenes today and Johnston urged Senate Pres. William Harris and Senate Minority Leader Cecil Partee to call the House bill up as soon as possible during the session and amend it so benefits would be increased by 30 per cent.

"Since the legislature last increased unemployment compensation payments in 1972, the cost of living has increased over 20 per cent while the average compensation payments for a married worker with a family of four remains at $90 a week," Johnston said.

He said that was slightly more than one-third the average weekly wage of persons who work for "Big Three" auto companies.

Although most auto workers with one year's seniority are guaranteed 90 per cent of their pay through a combination of unemployment benefits and company payments, those who work for smaller firms don't have such guarantees, Johnston said. He said mass layoffs in the auto industry probably will lead to an ultimate reduction in benefits.

Johnston said all 5,500 workers at the Belvidere Chrysler plant will be off for the duration of the shutdown, and 600 will be on indefinite layoff.

for not having a subcompact to rival the Vega or Pinto.

One executive wryly admitted: "No matter what we do, sometimes you just can't seem to win."

ALTHOUGH HE'S an adversary, UAW Vice Pres. Douglas A. Fraser usually restrains his comments on the business acumen of Chrysler management. But within minutes of Chrysler's announcement of new layoffs Tuesday, Fraser called top management incompetent.

Fraser says Chrysler has been producing sales at 136 per cent of sales, resulting in a huge stockpile, while Ford has produced only 102 per cent of sales.

"That is really sloppy management," Fraser said. "It's irresponsible. It's picking the workers' pockets."

Fraser said he asked Chrysler executives why they hadn't scheduled layoffs one or two weeks at a time like the other auto companies. The question went unanswered, he said.

WITH THE NEW MODEL year off to the poorest start in a decade, top Chrysler and UAW executives have banded together to demand action from Washington.

The union has taken up the automaker's pleas for relief from future safety and emission standards. to Washington Tuesday, calling for Chrysler Pres. John Riccardo went government to help restore consumer confidence so people will buy cars, and easing of credit so they can afford the higher prices.

UAW Pres. Leonard Woodcock warns that the plight of the auto industry may spread quicker than some economists believe.

"Unless something is quickly done to turn around the basic industry, the accumulating effect of what is happening in autos will drag this country not simply to a recession but down to the reaches of a depression," Woodcock said.

'Sunshine' reigns as world champion

by TONI GINETTI

When Diane Klotz decided to buy her husband, Karme, a horse for his birthday in August 1973, she never thought just a year later the couple would own the world's champion Appaloosa.

That's exactly what happened. The Hoffman Estates couple's brown-and-spotted steed, named Sunday Sunshine, took top honors in one of three classes of competition this month at the World Championship Appaloosa Show in Oklahoma City.

Sunshine's triumph after winning 14 first-place honors in approved horse show competitions throughout the nation has made the 2-year-old gelding worth about $7,000, Mrs. Klotz says.

Not a bad return on a $1,500 investment made only 11 months ago. But, says Mrs. Klotz, fame and fortune was not the reason the couple bought the horse.

"I thought he was beautiful," she said. "It was a completely illogical thing to do. He wasn't expected to do well in competitions, although his breeding is good."

THE KLOTZ VENTURE into the equine world began a year ago when Mrs. Klotz decided to get her husband a birthday present and satisfy a childhood love at the same time.

"I've always loved horses, but I'm from New York and you don't see too many out there," she said, smiling. "When it finally became financially able for us, we bought a horse. We started with a grade horse, an unregistered horse."

The purchase however, was a little one-sided.

"I'm the kind of person who does something and then comes home and says 'look what I bought,'" she said, laughing. "A girlfriend of mine had a horse, and we had been riding hers. It was the kind of thing where I said 'let's spend a day looking at horses for sale,' and I bought one!"

The couple sold their first horse when they purchased Sunshine in January from the Stoneridge Farm stable in Dundee, where they had boarded their first horse.

THE STABLE RAISES and breeds Appaloosas, horses known for their beauty, versatility and endurance. Sunshine was purchased at an auction in Utah by the farm to be sold, she said.

"We didn't buy him to show, but it kind of snowballed. Then we couldn't afford to keep him out of competition."

The couple joined two Appaloosa horse clubs, the Blackhawk and the South Wisconsin clubs, hired Jim Marshall from Stoneridge to train the animal and entered the horse show competition circuit in May.

The horse's victories are catalogued in a room of the couple's Winston Knolls subdivision home. Dozens of prize ribbons for general competitions adorn one wall, while trophies from regulation Appaloosa club competitions line the fireplace mantel and shelves.

The trophies include 14 firsts, the Illinois and Missouri state championships, and seven grand championships, awards which are given in each competition to the best of all first place winners.

MRS. KLOTZ SAID her horse competes in the halter category, in which the animal is judged by its appearance, breed qualities and movement. Victories in grand-champion competition qualify a horse to go on to the world show.

Winning the international competition, however, was an unexpected victory, she said, so much so that, although the Klotz' had traveled to most of the other shows, they didn't attend the major show.

"I was crying on the phone when they called to tell us we won," Mrs. Klotz said. "We thought it was out of the question."

For veteran horsemen, winning an international competition often never comes, but if their fellow club members are jealous of the Klotz' good luck, they haven't shown it.

"The people in the club are fantastic," she said. "We're novices and they've helped us a lot. It's very much a family type thing."

ODDLY ENOUGH, their "hobby" is not a moneymaking one for her husband, who works for Centex Homes Corp. The world champion medalion award, for example, carried with it only about $180 in prize money, she said, about enough to pay for one month's boarding fee.

Sunshine's board at the stable is $115 per month. Marshall's fee for a training period of one to three months is another $200. The couple also has two other horses, one is a riding horse and the other a yearling, also boarded at the stable.

"It's an expensive hobby, but when you have a horse like him, you can't not do it. It definitely takes money from your income."

There is a great deal of time involved in caring for the animal as well, and Mrs. Klotz said she and her two small sons spend at least four nights a week at the stable in addition to weekends.

But the time requirement would never be too much to make her give up the horses, Mrs. Klotz says firmly.

"I'd make time for it. I go to school part-time, I'm kind of a free lance photographer, and I have two children, too. But I would still make time for the horse."

AN ADMIRING glance from Diane Klotz goes to her winner, Sunday Sunshine. The Appaloosa recently won international honors for his breed and this year also was chosen

Illinois and Missouri state champion. The Klotz' who reside in Hoffman Estates, have been horse owners for only a year.

Police probe Inverness shooting

Palatine detectives are investigating a shooting incident in Inverness late Tuesday night.

Police said a bullet shattered a second floor bedroom window at the Alvin Ruck home, 109 Hallikirk Circle. No one was reported injured.

No bullets have been recovered, but police said the damage was the result of a gunshot. There is no known motive for the shooting, police said.

State probing pollution at area construction firm

by JOE FRANZ

Investigators from Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's office are following up on a complaint by Wheeling residents that the Rock Road Construction Co. is causing pollution from its materials yard.

Last summer, after several complaints from residents, the village board said it would seek an injunction against Rock Road and the Meyer Material Co. unless the firm cleaned up its operations. Since then village officials said both companies have taken steps to comply with village ordinances.

David Rosenbaum, chief investigator for the attorney general's Environmental Control section, said Wednesday, however, that residents complained about a week ago that the Rock Road plant still is causing pollution.

"We sent some investigators out there, but the matter still is under investigation," he said. "We have received a complaint, but are not sure if any violations exist."

Rosenbaum said if Rock Road should close its operation for the winter, his office may not be able to complete the investigation until spring.

LAST SUMMER, residents from the Dunhurst area complained that materials from the open stockpiles were blown into their yards, coating their homes and swimming pools with a gritty oil film. Residents said the problem has existed for several years.

The gritty oil film apparently reacted chemically with the paint on houses and damaged the wood. Village officials said the problem was most apparent in the Dunhurst area when there was a strong east wind.

They said Rock Road was exceeding the allowed height of stockpiles and was in violation of an ordinance that prohibits materials from being deposited on a lot in such a manner "that they may be transferred off the lot by natural causes or forces."

Village Mgr. George Passolt said Wednesday, however, that Rock Road, 231 McHenry Rd., has reduced the size of its stockpiles and taken steps to prevent the blowing of materials. The firm, he said, also has housed its conveyor belt and is attempting to reduce its noise output.

"There's more to be done, but I think by and large they have done everything they said they were going to do," Passolt said. "I feel they have acted in good faith and am satisfied."

The manager said that planting of trees and shrubbery on the Rock Road property is all that remains unfinished. He said the firm has said it will do the planting in the spring.

PASSOLT SAID the village has received no complaints from residents since Rock Road has cleaned up its operation.

A spokesman for Rock Road said

Wednesday he was unaware of the investigation by the Atty. General's office and said the firm has received no complaints since taking the corrective action.

Must pay child support

If a person is laid off work and is not receiving a pay check, is he still obligated to make child support payments?

Yes, anyone required by a court decree to make support payments will be obligated to make the payments until the decree is changed by the court.

INDIVIDUAL EFFORT goes into a good performance by a forensics team member. This student gets in some last-minute practice before performing in front of a judge and his fellow students. In his event, interpretation, he is allowed to use a script because he must present three different selections for each competitive round.

No cheers, little applause for forensics competitors

by JUDY JOHNSON

Two chairs and a table set the stage. Brushing off the nervous fitters, two freshmen take their stance in front of the table and explain the setting. And a humorous duet skit begins before an audience of 10 forensics competitors and a judge.

This scene is typical of many in forensics. Last weekend more than 400 students competed in 11 forensics events in a meet sponsored by Buffalo Grove and Wheeling high schools.

STUDENTS WHO enter forensics don't get the applause, tribute or recognition awarded fellow artists in dramatics.

Forensics participants perform as individuals and respond to critiques from judges rather than applause from audiences. They participate in forensics meets Saturday mornings and perform only before their competitors and a handful of interested friends.

Training for forensics comes from participating in meets, coaching from experienced forensics members and adults and from observing other forensics competitors.

PARENTS AND other adults play a large role in preparing a team for competition. Their support is also needed to host a forensics meet where they can oversee extemporaneous speech preparation, act as guides and do much of the clerical work.

Students show the wear and tear of the preparation and anticipation towards a meet when they complete each performance. Signs of relief, giggles and smiles come from competitors after their event when they sit down to watch others perform.

Forensics often is misconstrued as debate or drama, but it is a field of its own. Also known as Individual Events, it covers a variety of speech forms including drama, original comedy, interpretation, radio broadcast and extemporaneous speech.

Whereas debate teams receive one topic per year to research and debate in various meets, forensics performers select their own work, can change it through the year and wind up with material as different as the number of competitors.

PARTICIPANTS IN extemporaneous events are most closely aligned with debate because they produce speeches within an hour on a current topic. Extemporaneous students keep files with clips from periodicals to use at forensics meets. They draw three questions, select one question to write a speech on and present the speech an hour later.

Students participating in radio must present a five-minute broadcast with news items no more than 24 hours old. The presentation must be within 10 seconds of the five-minute limit or the participant is disqualified.

Dramatics and interpretation competitors can prepare their presentation in advance and present the same work at later meets.

Students go through three rounds at a meet. Each round pairs them against different students in front of a different judge. They must stay to hear all their competitors and once an event begins, no one can enter or leave.

The judge ranks the participants in order of excellence. The ranks are tallied and the school with the most over-all points wins the meet.

Students at Buffalo Grove High School said many on the forensics team are drawn into the activity through the oral communications class required for freshmen.

Mary Beth Lee, Buffalo Grove forensics president, said she entered forensics because she wanted to get over her shyness. Through forensics she learned self-confidence and how to present herself to others, she said.

TO HELP NEW forensics members, separate meets are offered for varsity and novice. A novice is anyone who has participated in less than three contests.

Forensics members also change the events they participate in as they learn their abilities and limitations in presenting speeches.

Larry Doyle started in radio broadcast but has changed to original comedy where he writes and presents a comic sketch.

"At the beginning of the year I was really shaky," he said, looking back on his first tries with forensics last year. "By the end of the year I was OK."

JEAN CASEY, Buffalo Grove head forensics coach, said students must learn to strive for personal achievement rather than judge's rankings.

"If you aim to please the judges, you please everybody but yourself," she said. "There's the point where you forget about the audience and judge and concentrate on what you're doing," Larry said.

And as they concentrate on what they're doing, they learn self-composure and a mature presentation of themselves to others.

Drug, alcohol call-in service in the offing

A call-in service offering recorded messages about drug and alcohol problems may soon be offered as part of a parent-education program to begin in January.

The telephone-information program offering new tapes on drugs and alcoholism every three weeks is one approach to adult education a village committee is considering.

Representatives from The Bridge Youth Services, Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, High School Dist. 211, Harper Community College and the Northwest Mental Health Assn. will meet Monday in Palatine to discuss the program.

day in Palatine to discuss the program.

RALPH MORRIS, the Palatine Village Board's drug education adviser and originator of the committee, said the telephone-education program has received "overwhelming response in Chicago." It has been offered for the past six months by the University of Illinois College of Pharmacology, where Morris is a professor.

Morris also suggests that the committee could select and distribute pamphlets that will inform adults on the characteristics of common drugs and alcohol. The printed materials could be distributed to residents at their homes or in public places, he said.

A YMCA family night, that would offer recreational activities and discussions on drugs and alcoholism, is another approach to adult education that Morris believes could be successful in Palatine.

The parents could participate in a drug-alcoholism seminar in one large meeting room, while their children participate in swimming or organized recreation in other rooms of the YMCA.

"This might be a way to get parents to meet and talk about the problems they or their children have with drugs or alcohol. Up to now, it seems that parents have hesitated to tell about their own problems, much less their family problems, in a public group of neighbors," Morris said.

1975 vehicle-sticker applications in mail

Rolling Meadows residents will receive applications for 1975 vehicle stickers within the next few days.

City Mgr. James Watson reported Tuesday that the applications should be in the mail by Friday. City employees are printing and preparing the applications for mailing this week, Watson said.

City stickers cost $3 per year, if purchased before Feb. 15 of the year for which they are effective. After Feb. 15, the cost will jump to $8. The state requires display of the stickers as of that date.

Bids due next week on sewer projects

Bids are due next week on two Rolling Meadows sewer projects.

Bids will be opened Monday for installation of a sanitary sewer and water main between the St. Paul Federal Savings and Loan site and the newly opened Danny Boy Service Station on Kirchoff Road. The project will serve Rywick Village subdivision on E. Frontage Road and Kirchoff Road.

A Tuesday bid opening is planned for a sewer project between Plum Grove and Algonquin roads and the Meadow Edge complex near Kirchoff and Plum Grove roads.

Panel urges variance for GenTime sign

A special committee of the Rolling Meadows City Council this week recommended approval of a sign variation for General Time Corp., 1200 Hicks Rd.

The sign is to advertise "help wanted" listings in both English and Spanish. Company officials said their firm has a large number of Spanish-speaking workers. The sign has been installed already, under a temporary permit pending the variance decision, and job applications have increased significantly, said the spokesmen.

Panel to recommend container purchase

Rolling Meadows public works officials will recommend approval of a $7,000 contract with Bruce Municipal Equipment Inc. for purchase of two containers for refuse storage.

City officials also will recommend rejection of another bid for removal of tree stumps. Davey Tree Experts bid $1,260 for the contract. Public works representatives reported Fowler Tree Service had negotiated a lower bid.

The city council will act on the recommendation.

City resident, 37, faces theft charges

A Rolling Meadows man was charged with theft after police said they caught him stealing mirrors off a truck.

Clyde L. Coffey, 37, of 4738 Arbor Dr., posted $100 bond on the theft charge and is to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court at 9:30 a.m. Dec. 3.

Drug, alcohol call-in service in the offing?

A call-in service offering recorded messages about drug and alcohol problems may soon be offered as part of a parent-education program to begin in January.

The telephone-information program offering new tapes on drugs and alcoholism every three weeks is one approach to adult education a village committee is considering.

Representatives from The Bridge Youth Services, Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, High School Dist. 211, Harper Community College and the Northwest Mental Health Assn. will meet Monday in Palatine to discuss the program.

RALPH MORRIS, the Palatine Village Board's drug education adviser and originator of the committee, said the telephone-education program has received "overwhelming response in Chicago." Morris also suggests that the committee could select and distribute pamphlets that will inform adults on the characteristics of common drugs and alcohol. The printed materials could be distributed to residents at their homes or in public places, he said.

"This might be a way to get parents to meet and talk about the problems they or their children have with drugs or alcohol. Up to now, it seems that parents have hesitated to talk about their own problems, much less their family problems, in a public group of neighbors," Morris said.

Plum Grove Hills upgrading OK'd

Street improvement and traffic signals to handle increased traffic from the proposed Plum Grove Hills development have been approved by the Palatine Plan Commission.

The traffic provisions will be included in the plan commission's recommendation to the village board on the 363-acre development in southwest Palatine near Harper College.

The traffic provisions include installation of four-way stop signs at Quentin Road and Illinois Avenue by the developer, L. F. Draper and Associates. If it becomes necessary to install traffic signals at the intersection, the developer would pay his share.

The plan commission also is asking the developer to widen Quentin Road through the development and widen the south side of Illinois Avenue from Quentin Road to the western boundary of Birchwood Park. The amount of widening is to be determined by the village engineer.

IMPROVEMENTS AT other points where traffic may increase already are in the planning stages by the county or state.

Plans for the Plum Grove Hills development call for the construction of 1,874 housing units including single-family homes, apartments and townhouses. Four commercial developments are planned on 35 acres. Draper also has agreed to donate a school site to Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 and land to the Palatine Park District.

Land also may be set aside for a fire station and reservoir. The plan commission has asked for more input from village officials before acting on this part of the plan.

The next plan commission meeting to consider other aspects of the Plum Grove Hills development will be at 8 p.m. Dec. 3 at the Slide Street Fire Station, 117 W. Slide St. Items to be discussed at that meeting are donations to the park district and the time schedule for the start of and completion of construction.

Memorial plaque honors firemen

A plaque in memory of Warren Ahlgren, Richard Freeman and John Wilson was presented Wednesday to the families of the three firemen killed in the Ben Franklin Store fire Feb. 24, 1973.

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones presented the plaque at the Village of Palatine annual recognition dinner at Birchwood Park. The Ahlgren, Freeman, Wilson commendation master plaque will be placed in the village hall. In the future the plaque will be given to persons who show outstanding personal sacrifice and bravery in assisting others or protecting life or property.

Palatine Fire Chief Orville Helms helped present the plaque and was himself recognized for 37 years of service with the village. Jones presented Helms with a plaque depicting a horse drawn fire engine.

Deputy Village Clerk June Boston also was recognized for 20 years of service. Awards were presented to more than 40 persons for service to the village.

The Mayor's Valor Award was presented to Palatine Patrolman Jack McGregor for his "outstanding bravery" in attempting to rescue a family from a fire Oct. 17 in the Lake Louise subdivision. McGregor rescued three children from the roof of a burning house and then went into the house after a window exploded in his face to save other family members. He administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation on family members until the Palatine Fire Dept. and paramedics arrived.

Village employees may get raises after 7-month freeze

A seven-month freeze on job classifications of Palatine village employees may soon be lifted, resulting in pay increases for some and retroactive raises for others.

The freeze will be lifted with the adoption of a pay classification study commissioned by the Palatine Village Board. The study, completed by the Carl Becker Co. of Colorado, is under review by the board. The new classifications will cost the village between $25,000 and $40,000 annually, said James Jensen, a consultant with the Becker firm.

Trustee Richard W. Fonte has indicated "significantly misclassified employees" will have their salaries readjusted back to May 1, the start of the current fiscal year. Other employees will have their salaries adjusted with the start of the new fiscal year in the spring.

THE PURPOSE of the two-volume pay classification study, which cost the village nearly $6,000, is to outline job descriptions, areas of responsibility and appropriate pay levels for different jobs so the village can recruit and retain good people, according to the Becker report.

The proposed pay schedule recommended in the study would "be comparable to government and industry in the Palatine labor market."

The study recommends a 5 per cent increment between the various steps on the pay schedule. Increments between steps now vary from 3 to 5 per cent.

OTHER PAY recommendations are:

• A longevity pay schedule of $200 annually for employees with 6 to 11 years with the village, $400 for employees with 12 to 17 years with the village and $600 for employees with 18 or more years of service with the village.

• An increase in off-duty court pay for policemen to $30.

• Overtime pay of time and a half for hours in excess of 40 per week.

No change in village employee benefits is recommended in the study which indicates the benefits are already above the median.

'74 turkey supplies up, prices down

Butchers, stores may sell at a loss to keep customers interested

GOBBLER GROWER Elving Sennaband of Butterfield, Minn., stands among several thousand turkeys reared for Thanksgiving season sale.

The cost of turkeys will gobble up a smaller chunk of the family's Thanksgiving food budget this year compared to 1973 prices. A glut of frozen gobblers and an ample supply of fresh birds are reported by area butcher shops and food store chains.

"Prices of turkeys are somewhat lower than they were last year," said Joe Burkhardt of the Dominick's Finer Foods chain. "I've seen them featured from 29 cents (a pound) and up." Turkey prices are a competitive tool for the food stores during the holiday season, Burkhardt said. He said stores may sell the birds at cost or below to attract customers.

The Herald reported Nov. 15, 1973 that the average retail price for turkeys was 81 cents a pound.

"Last year's turkey prices were abnormally high," a Jewel Food Stores spokesman said. Prices this year dropped to a range of 39 cents to 69 cents a pound. Heavy sales of frozen turkeys will begin today and continue through next week, she said, adding that the stores may break even or take a loss on turkey sales.

"RIGHT NOW, turkey supplies are pretty heavy," said a spokesman for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's poultry division office in Chicago. He said government figures indicate 556 million pounds of turkey in storage compared to 450 million pounds a year ago.

WHY THE BIG increase in frozen turkeys? The USDA spokesman said increased production, less promotion of turkey sales and competition from heavy supplies of beef and chicken account for the buildup of frozen turkey inventories.

The glut of gobblers in the market will mean lower prices paid to producers and the possibility of an upward swing in prices by 1975, said John Big, a poultry buyer for A&P Food Stores in Chicago. "A great deal of money was made last year by growers," he said. "Consequently they thought every year would be the same." Increased production in 1974 led to great financial loss for the producers as feed, labor and transportation costs soared, Big said. Some producers are dropping out of the market, pointing to fewer turkeys and higher prices next year.

Fresh turkey prices are higher than the cost of frozen birds. Jim Howland, owner of Howland's Meat Market in Arlington Heights, explains, "It all depends on what you want to put in your stomach." There is a definite taste difference between the fresh and frozen turkeys, Howland said. He charges 99 cents a pound for fresh hens or toms.

"There is no such thing as deals," echoes Tom Aszewski, owner of the John's Coach & Carriage Butcher Shop in Elk Grove Village. "You get more with the fresh turkeys, because they're not dehydrated." He sells the fresh-killed turkeys from the Howard Kaufman farm in Waterman, Ill. at 98 cents a pound for hens and 89 cents a pound for toms. The price last year was $1.09 a pound.

CONSUMER RESISTANCE to rising

prices has cut back on meat sales at some food stores this year, said John Sobut, assistant director of the Illinois Food Retailers Assn. "But somebody's going to buy those turkeys, by God, at 49 cents a pound — that's a bargain," he said.

When the heavy turkey sales promotions get under way, some retailers will sell frozen turkeys at a loss of $1 to $2 a bird, Sobut said. The stores hope to make up for the loss through sales of other holiday foods, he said. Sweet potatoes, cranberry sauce and nuts are among foods that will be featured at sale prices for the Thanksgiving season.

Sobut reported wholesale prices for turkeys ranging from a low of 51½ cents a pound for 18-to 20-pound birds to 55½ cents a pound for 6-to 10-pound birds on store brands. Butterball turkeys ranged from 57½ cents to 63½ cents a pound at the wholesale level this week. Ducks were priced wholesale at 78½ cents a pound and 22-ounce Cornish hens at 90½ cents a pound.

Gift horse turns into winner

'Sunshine' reigns as world champion

by TONI GINETTI

When Diane Klotz decided to buy her husband, Karmo, a horse for his birthday in August 1973, she never thought just a year later the couple would own the world's champion Appaloosa.

That's exactly what happened. The Hoffman Estates couple's brown-and-spotted steed, named Sunday Sunshine, took top honors in one of three classes of competition this month at the World Championship Appaloosa Show in Oklahoma City.

Sunshine's triumph after winning 14 first-place honors in approved horse show competitions throughout the nation has made the 2-year-old gelding worth about $7,000, Mrs. Klotz says.

Not a bad return on a $1,500 investment made only 11 months ago. But, says Mrs. Klotz, fame and fortune was not the reason the couple bought the horse.

"I thought he was beautiful," she said. "It was a completely illogical thing to do. He wasn't expected to do well in competitions, although his breeding is good."

THE KLOTZ VENTURE into the equine world began a year ago when Mrs. Klotz decided to get her husband a birthday present and satisfy a childhood love at the same time.

"I've always loved horses, but I'm from New York and you don't see too many out there," she said, smiling. "When it finally became financially able for us, we bought a horse. We started with a grade horse, an unregistered horse."

The purchase however, was a little one-sided.

"I'm the kind of person who does something and then comes home and says 'look what I bought,'" she said, laughing. "A girlfriend of mine had a horse, and we had been riding hers. It was the kind of thing where I said 'let's spend a day looking at horses for sale,' and I bought one!"

The couple sold their first horse when they purchased Sunshine in January from the Stoneridge Farm stable in Dundee, where they had boarded their first horse.

THE STABLE RAISES and breeds Appaloosas, horses known for their beauty, versatility and endurance. Sunshine was purchased at an auction in Utah by the farm to be sold, she said.

"We didn't buy him to show, but it kind of snowballed. Then we couldn't afford to keep him out of competition."

The couple joined two Appaloosa horse clubs, the Blackhawk and the South Wisconsin clubs, hired Jim Marshall from Stoneridge to train the animal and entered the horse show competition circuit in May.

The horse's victories are catalogued in a room of the couple's Winston Knolls subdivision home. Dozens of prize ribbons for general competitions adorn one wall, while trophies from regulation Appaloosa club competitions line the fireplace mantel and shelves.

The trophies include 14 firsts, the Illinois and Missouri state championships, and seven grand championships, awards which are given in each competition to the best of all first place winners.

MRS. KLOTZ SAID her horse competes in the halter category, in which the animal is judged by its appearance, breed qualities and movement. Victories in grand-champion competition qualify a horse to go on to the world show.

Winning the international competition, however, was an unexpected victory, she said, so much so that, although the Klotz' had traveled to most of the other shows, they didn't attend the major show.

"I was crying on the phone when they called to tell us we won," Mrs. Klotz said. "We thought it was out of the question."

For veteran horsemen, winning an international competition often never comes, but if their fellow club members are jealous of the Klotz' good luck, they haven't shown it.

"The people in the club are fantastic," she said. "We're novices and they've helped us a lot. It's very much a family type thing."

ODDLY ENOUGH, their "hobby" is not a moneymaking one for her husband, who works for Centex Homes Corp. The world champion medallion award, for example, carried with it only about $180 in prize money, she said, about enough to pay for one month's boarding fee.

Sunshine's board at the stable is $115 per month. Marshall's fee for a training period of one to three months is another $200. The couple also has two other horses, one is a riding horse and the other a yearling, also boarded at the stable.

"It's an expensive hobby, but when you have a horse like him, you can't not do it.

It definitely takes money from your income."

There is a great deal of time involved in caring for the animal as well, and Mrs. Klotz said she and her two small sons spend at least four nights a week at the stable in addition to weekends.

But the time requirement would never be too much to make her give up the horses, Mrs. Klotz says firmly.

"I'd make time for it. I go to school part-time, I'm kind of a free lance photographer, and I have two children, too. But I would still make time for the horse."

Robber gets $25

A robber who said he had a gun in his coat pocket took $25 from a clerk at the Carol Cleaners, 58 W. Wilson St., Palatine, early Wednesday.

Palatine police said the man, in his early 20s, fled on foot.

"When I bought home insurance, I picked Safeco. Here's why:"

"I sell insurance for a living, and when I insured my own home, I picked Safeco. It's the best homeowners policy available today. That's why I'm proud to represent Safeco locally. If you'd like to know more, simply give me a call or drop by my office."

Don't push child into reading, teachers urge

by MARILYN McDONALD

If you've been tempted to urge books on your toddler in the name of reading readiness, think twice about it. Letting children be children is the best way to prepare them to be good readers.

That was the advice given by Mary Ann Larson, a first-grade teacher at Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15's Lake Louise School and Mimi Reeb, part-time reading consultant for Arlington Heights Dist. 25 and a teacher at Windsor School. The two teachers met with nearly 20 parents this week as part of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library series on children's books, "Go Ask Alice."

Although some current writings encourage parents to start gearing their children for reading as young as 11 months old, the two teachers disagree.

WHILE URGING caution on early reading, the two teachers had faint praise for television programs like "Sesame Street" and "The Electric Company" which may have 2-year-olds chanting the alphabet with little understanding or readiness for reading. The teachers also noted that these programs encourage short attention spans with their brief, flashy segments. "You really have to ham it up in the classroom to keep their attention," Mrs. Reeb said.

"The most important thing to have is an experience to relate to," said Mrs. Larson, who encouraged parents of preschoolers to help their children discover the world around them. "Children need to have an idea of what it's like to do this or that, to feel this way or that way," she said. Children can then relate their experience to the stories they'll begin to read and say "Oh, yeah!"

"Children have a tremendous sense for anxiety feelings," said Mrs. Reeb, who encouraged parents to avoid pushing their children into reading or comparing their skills to other children's abilities. "I don't want a neurotic first-grader!" Mrs. Larson said.

Both teachers enthusiastically urged parents to read aloud to their children. Youngsters get a sense of sentence patterns, rhymes and vocabulary in very enjoyable way that the family can share, they said.

ONCE THE CHILD begins reading, both teachers suggested that parents keep reading aloud, moving on to more difficult stories that may stimulate their youngster's desire to read better.

"If you can read to your child, they get to hear words and develop a listening vocabulary. They get a feeling about words that is good," Mrs. Reeb said. "Don't feel that you have to read simple stories at their level, though. They can always ask for an explanation."

"Don't restrict them to books that they can easily read by themselves. They'll get something out of anything they really want to look at," Mrs. Reeb said.

Mrs. Reeb said Americans as a whole do not have "the reading habit." When a child sees his parent reading and enjoying books, the seed is sown.

"Give them a feeling that books are not just for information. Stress enjoyment, too. Share your enthusiasm."

TWO GRADE teachers, Mimi Reeb, left, and Mary Ann Larson discuss how parents could best prepare their children to read as part of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library's series on children's books, "Go Ask Alice." The program was the third of six weekly presentations.

Storm sewer may spawn park bike trail

The Rolling Meadows Park District may get a bike trail if it allows the city to use some of its land for a storm sewer.

Rolling Meadows would like to install the storm sewer across Kimball Hill Park and along Salt Creek to Central Road. Steven Lesak, an engineer for Fletcher Engineering Co., the firm handling the project, told the park board the restored sewer trenches would be covered with crushed stone immediately after construction is completed and could be used as a bike trail. After the ground settles, the city would blacktop the trail.

Parks Supt. Stephen Person said board members are concerned about when the blacktopping will be done. They also are concerned about getting the work done before spring and the city's anniversary celebration, he added.

The park board will meet to consider the city's offer in a special meeting Saturday, Nov. 30 at 10 a.m. at the sports complex, 3900 Owl Dr.

CHRYSLER CORP. officials are laying off 70,500 employees, or 64 per cent of the company's 110,000 hourly wage earners. A drop in sales and projected car orders prompted executives to wield a heavy ax. The No. 3 automaker has been criticized for its actions and one union official called top management "incompetent." Meanwhile, new cars remain in company parking lots.

64% out of work by December

Chrysler first to panic

by EDWARD S. LECITZIN

THE VIEW from the tollway. Chrysler Corp. plant in Belvidere is visible from the Northwest Tollway but work on new cars will not be as 5,500 workers are being laid off Wednesday. Only about 1,000 persons may be rehired in 1975.

DETROIT (UPI) — Whether it's sloppy management, as the United Auto Workers union charges, or just bad luck, Chrysler Corp. executives have pushed the panic button harder than any of their competitors in the beleaguered auto industry.

Chrysler Chairman Lynn A. Townsend says it will be business as usual in December with no companywide shutdown. But nearly 64 per cent of the men and women who build Chrysler's cars won't be on the job the month before Christmas.

Faced with an early November sales report that showed a 34 per cent drop from last year's already depressed levels and a stock of unsold cars that could last four months, Chrysler executives began wielding a heavy ax Tuesday.

COMPARED TO General Motors' layoffs just before Christmas last year when 137,000 workers were idled in one short shutdown, Chrysler's numbers aren't that large — another 43,000 workers added to 25,600 already idled.

For a company with 110,000 hourly workers, idling 64 per cent of the work force the month before Christmas is dramatic.

Chrysler won't say how many of its 39,800 salaried workers have been trimmed or will be let go in the belt-tightening.

Chrysler is the No. 3 automaker and, with just under 14 per cent of the new car market so far this year, it has no room for bad guesses.

Top management apparently didn't read the signals right and built too many small cars at a time when the swing was back to the larger models.

Chrysler has 365,000 cars, part of an industry backlog of 1.65 million cars, or an 80-day supply. But the Chrysler stockpile is overweighted in small cars, with enough Valiants on hand to last more than 130 days.

AT THIS TIME last year, the automakers were pushing their small car plants to capacity and making plans to convert large car plants to building small models.

Then the market turned around in the summer, and small cars are a drag on the market.

During the depths of the energy crisis-induced sales slump last winter, when 113,000 auto workers were on indefinite layoffs and a like number on shorter periods of idleness, Chrysler management was criticized

Increase unemployment benefits to idled workers, UAW urges

The Illinois General Assembly should immediately increase state unemployment benefits by 30 per cent because of the shutdown of Chrysler's Belvidere assembly plant, United Auto Workers regional director Robert Johnston says.

Johnston said the Belvidere, shutdown, to begin Wednesday and continue to Jan. 6, also will affect thousands of workers who supply automotive parts to Chrysler.

"The way to start equalizing the hardship of a recession is to help its victims," Johnston said in a statement.

A bill increasing unemployment benefits already has been passed by the Illinois House, but legislative leaders have said they don't plan to take final action on the measure until January.

THE LEGISLATURE reconvenes today and Johnston urged Senate Pres. William Harris and Senate Minority Leader Cecil Pardee to call the House bill up as soon as possible during the session and amend it so benefits would be increased by 30 per cent.

"Since the legislature last increased unemployment compensation payments in 1972, the cost of living has increased over 20 per cent while the average compensation payments for a married worker with a family of four remains at $90 a week," Johnston said.

He said that was slightly more than one-third the average weekly wage of persons who work for "Big Three" auto companies.

Although most auto workers with one year's seniority are guaranteed 90 per cent of their pay through a combination of unemployment benefits and company payments, those who work for smaller firms don't have such guarantees, Johnston said. He said mass layoffs in the auto industry probably will lead to an ultimate reduction in benefits.

Johnston said all 5,500 workers at the Belvidere Chrysler plant will be off for the duration of the shutdown, and 600 will be on indefinite layoff.

question went unanswered, he said.

WITH THE NEW MODEL year off to the poorest start in a decade, top Chrysler and UAW executives have banded together to demand action from Washington.

The union has taken up the automaker's pleas for relief from future safety and emission standards, to Washington Tuesday, calling for Chrysler Pres. John Riccardo went government to help restore consumer confidence so people will buy cars, and easing of credit so they can afford the higher prices.

UAW Pres. Leonard Woodcock warns that the plight of the auto industry may spread quicker than some economists believe.

"Unless something is quickly done to turn around the basic industry, the accumulating effect of what is happening in autos will drag this country not simply to a recession but down to the reaches of a depression," Woodcock said.

Hanover Park's ex-president pleads guilty

Former Village President Richard H. Baker of Hanover Park pleaded guilty Wednesday to a total of 12 federal charges of extortion and income tax fraud.

Baker, 40, village president and liquor commissioner from 1969 to 1973, faces a maximum penalty of up to 48 years in federal prison and $30,000 in seven counts of extortion and five counts of income tax fraud.

He will appear for sentencing Jan. 29 before U.S. District Court Judge Bernard M. Decker.

BAKER WAS INDICTED Aug. 15 by a federal grand jury on charges of extorting $10,000 from four liquor license applicants and $12,500 from Hanover Builders, Inc. and J-H Homes, two major builders in Hanover Park.

Baker has been a controversial figure since he was elected to the Hanover Park village board in 1967 and resigned one year later for "business reasons."

Within five months of his resignation, Baker formed the People's Own Party and headed its slate in the April 1969 election defeating incumbent Village Pres. Eugene Domingue.

Baker's 1969 ticket backed an increased village water rate, supported a village master building plan and opposed a proposed 2,400 acre Metropolitan Sanitary District sludge farm in Hanover and Schaumburg townships.

HIS PROBLEMS began with a Better Government Assn. investigation of Hanover Park in 1972. The BGA charged Baker "played a questionable role" in development of the MSD plant and acted without village board approval.

The BGA report said citizens charged Baker was consistently acting against the best interests of residents and to the advantage of land developers and other special interests.

Citizen complaints included sinking homes, mud-filled driveways, poor roads, inadequate drainage and other construction problems.

State probing pollution at area construction firm

by JOE FRANZ

Investigators from Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's office are following up on a complaint by Wheeling residents that the Rock Road Construction Co. is causing pollution from its materials yard.

Last summer, after several complaints from residents, the village board said it would seek an injunction against Rock Road and the Meyer Material Co. unless the firm cleaned up its operations. Since then village officials said both companies have taken steps to comply with village ordinances.

David Rosenbaum, chief investigator for the attorney general's Environmental Control section, said Wednesday, however, that residents complained about a week ago that the Rock Road plant still is causing pollution.

"We sent some investigators out there, but the matter still is under investigation," he said. "We have received a complaint, but are not sure if any violations exist."

Rosenbaum said if Rock Road should close its operation for the winter, his office may not be able to complete the investigation until spring.

LAST SUMMER, residents from the Dunhurst area complained that materials from the open stockpiles were blown into their yards, coating their homes and swimming pools with a gritty oil film. Residents said the problem has existed for several years.

The gritty oil film apparently reacted chemically with the paint on houses and damaged the wood. Village officials said the problem was most apparent in the Dunhurst area when there was a strong east wind.

They said Rock Road was exceeding the allowed height of stockpiles and was in violation of an ordinance that prohibits materials from being deposited on a lot in such a manner "that they may be transferred off the lot by natural causes or forces."

Village Mgr. George Passolt said Wednesday, however, that Rock Road, 231 McHenry Rd., has reduced the size of its stockpiles and taken steps to prevent the blowing of materials. The firm, he said, also has housed its conveyor belt and is attempting to reduce its noise output.

"There's more to be done, but I think by and large they have done everything they said they were going to do," Passolt said. "I feel they have acted in good faith and am satisfied."

The manager said that planting of trees and shrubbery on the Rock Road property is all that remains unfinished. He said the firm has said it will do the planting in the spring.

PASSOLT SAID the village has received no complaints from residents since Rock Road has cleaned up its operation.

A spokesman for Rock Road said Wednesday he was unaware of the investigation by the Atty. General's office and said the firm has received no complaints since taking the corrective action.

Parks want to annex Tall Oaks subdivision

Rolling Meadows Park District wants to annex the Tall Oaks subdivision, an area of 22 houses between Richness Lane and Tall Oaks Lane just south of Dawn-gate subdivision.

Tall Oaks is in the Palatine Rural Park District but is a part of the City of Rolling Meadows. Supt. Stephen Person of the Rolling Meadows Park District said the district wants to annex Tall Oaks before the Palatine Rural district merges with the Palatine Park District this spring.

Person said petitions soon will be passed around Tall Oaks for homeowners' signatures. If more than 50 per cent of the homeowners favor the annexation the district will approach the Palatine Rural Park District for dis-annexation. "I'm anticipating they'll go along with it," Person said.

Person added that he had talked with several residents of Tall Oaks who said they were "very much in favor" of the move to the Rolling Meadows Park District.

As part of Palatine Rural Park District, Tall Oaks residents are paying a tax rate of 18 cents per $100 assessed valuation. When the rural district merges with Palatine Park District, the tax rate will go up, but park officials are not sure what that new rate will be.

Rolling Meadows Park District's rate is 43 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Centex homes permits issued—with a warning

by JERRY THOMAS

Building Comr. Thomas Rettenbacher of Elk Grove Village has issued 53 disputed building permits for new Centex Homes Corp. houses, but put the company "on notice" that future permit fees will be pegged for "more realistic" construction cost estimates.

Rettenbacher withheld permits two weeks ago because he contended that estimated construction costs were too low. Centex officials raised their estimates and Rettenbacher released the permits, saying that he still believed the estimates were not in line with true construction costs.

He denied Centex complaints that he was badgering the company. Rettenbacher also rejected suggestions that the delays were being used to pressure the company into remedying the furnace problem in more than 1,700 homes in the village.

Building-permit fees are pegged to the value of the construction project.

"I DENIED THE building permits earlier because I felt the builder in his first application for the permits was under-estimating by almost 100 per cent, the construction value of the home it plans to build," he said.

"I think the builder's construction cost estimates, which are the determining factor in setting a permit fee, are still a little low, but I have agreed to allow the start of construction of the new section that will eventually have about 200 homes," he added.

Centex at first estimated the construction cost of the homes, which will sell for $45,990, at $14,000, the same figure used two years ago. When the dispute arose, Centex raised its cost estimate estimates to $21,708.

Building permits cost $4 for every $1,000 estimated construction costs.

RETTENBACHER SAID Tuesday that the cost estimates should be closer to $26,000.

"Weeks ago, I denied the builder permits for a new area of construction, because I felt the construction value they stated had to be a gross mistake or an attempt to obtain lesser building fees," Rettenbacher said.

During two weeks of discussions, Centex increased the construction costs.

"When they apply for the next group of permits, they better have more realistic construction costs and the paperwork to back up their claims," Rettenbacher said.

He had estimated the village stood to lose about $8,000 in building-permit fees because of the lower cost estimates.

"Marketing experts and Building Officials Code Administration facts and figures show the construction costs for that type of house to be close to $27,000," Rettenbacher said.

RETTENBACHER SAID he is accepting the builders lower construction cost estimates "for now."

"I've also put them on notice that future applications for permits must take next year's construction costs into consideration and be more realistic, and expect the builder substantiate his estimates not just use the same figures year after year," Rettenbacher said.

Centex officials were unavailable for comment Wednesday but earlier said, "When we come up with a construction cost the village approves of we will get the building permits."

Use library for elderly, urges official

Mount Prospect Trustee O. T. Gustus has called for a study on the possibility of using the public library building, 14 E. Busse Ave., for senior citizen facilities once a new public library is built.

Noting that the village plans to use the old building, Gustus Tuesday night asked that part of it be set aside for senior citizen use. The village's senior citizen office is currently located at the Mount Prospect Park District's community center, 600 S. See-Gwon Ave.

"I do not believe, as a senior citizen meeting place, it would be necessary for them to utilize the whole building," Gustus said. He added, however, that a judgment as to how much space should be given the seniors would have to come after the study is completed.

Trustee Marie Caylor seconded a motion for the study, saying it should be completed at the earliest possible date because of the park district's plans to renovate the community center. "Maybe they wouldn't have to make the expansion that they are planning," she said.

BOARD MEMBERS asked the park district be made aware of the possibility that the senior citizens office could be moved to the library building.

Village officials also are considering using the library building to house the police department, now housed in the village hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said the old library could be converted easily to police use, and would fit in well with the upcoming move of village administrative offices to the Mount Prospect State Bank building.

Consultants studying the redevelopment of the downtown area, however, have recommended against using the library building for police purposes. A basic redevelopment concept proposed by the consultants includes the closing of several streets to create a pedestrian mall in the downtown area. They said this might limit access to the library building, thus making it undesirable for the police department.

The village does not expect to have to pay for the building. Since the library's taxing power comes from the village, the building is in effect owned by the village although the title is held by the library.

Village OKs $4 million bond sale for new library

The Mount Prospect Village Board has moved closer to a new public library by approving a $4 million bond sale.

Money from the bond issue will be used to finance construction of a $3.2 million library, now planned for the old Central School site at Central Road and Main Street. The village also will use $813,000 of the bond issue to purchase the Mount Prospect State Bank building for administrative office space.

Surprisingly low bids were received for the bond sale. Ron Norene, finance consultant from Paul D. Speer and Associates Inc., said Wednesday.

The lowest of three bids on the bonds was submitted by Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co. at 5.93 per cent. The bank was awarded the contract Tuesday night in a 5-to-1 vote by the village board, with Trustee Richard Hendrick voting against the issue.

INTEREST FOR the $4 million bond sale will total $2,751,440 over the 20-year life of the bonds. Norene said this is $260,000 less interest than had been anticipated.

"All the documentation that we had prepared for the village was using 6.5 per cent as an interest rate estimate," Norene said. This will somewhat reduce the tax rate, originally estimated at $16 a year for 20 years on homes assessed at $10,000, he added.

Norene said Mount Prospect did well compared with other "AA" rated communities that have recently sold bonds. The "AA" rating from Moody's Investor's Service was obtained last year and is the second highest rating available.

Two local banks were included in the Continental Illinois National Bank bid. Both the First National Bank of Mount Prospect and Countryside Bank will carry some liability for selling the bonds.

BY INCLUDING the purchase of the Mount Prospect State Bank building in the bond issue, the village hopes to provide flexibility in the future acquisition of property once a plan for revitalizing the downtown area is approved.

Use of bond issue funds to purchase the bank building will allow the village to free about $100,000 a year from gener-

THE STATUE OF St. Raymond de Penafort seems to guard the church at 311 S. I-Oka, Mount Prospect. Parishioners are celebrating the silver anniversary of the church this weekend with a gala dinner-dance and a jubilee Mass. The small community church has grown into a block-long complex.

ST. RAYMOND'S Church of yesterday was constructed of steel beams and glass brick, materials often thought to be too modern for a church in the 1950s.

Silver celebration

St. Raymond's — growing with village for 25 years

by BETTY LEE

There were raffles and potluck suppers, bingo games and bazaars. And the sponsors had only one thing in mind — a church to be called St. Raymond de Penafort.

It was 1949, a time when Mount Prospect was just a small community fringed with farm land. The corner of I-Oka Avenue and Lincoln was empty, but parishioners envisioned their new church on that lot. Mount Prospect did not have a Roman Catholic church, so they were anxious to get one built quickly.

"It was the one big cause in mind — to get the church built," said Jean Jaros, a church member.

St. Raymond's marks its 25th anniversary this year, having grown from a small community to a block-long complex complete with church, rectory, convent and school.

A small country church was all they had hoped for, but the parishioners didn't mind when more and more people joined the church as the population continued to boom in the Northwest suburb.

"It just took everyone by surprise," said Mary Kay Reedy, another church member.

St. Raymond's was established in 1949. (Continued on page 5)

'74 turkey supplies up, prices down

Butchers, stores may sell at a loss to keep customers interested

GOBBLER GROWER Elving Sennaband of Butterfield, Minn., stands among several thousand turkeys readied for Thanksgiving season sale.

The cost of turkeys will gobble up a smaller chunk of the family's Thanksgiving food budget this year compared to 1973 prices. A glut of frozen gobblers and an ample supply of fresh birds are reported by area butcher shops and food store chains.

"Prices of turkeys are somewhat lower than they were last year," said Joe Burkhardt of the Dominick's Finer Foods chain. "I've seen them featured from 29 cents (a pound) and up." Turkey prices are a competitive tool for the food stores during the holiday season, Burkhardt said. He said stores may sell the birds at cost or below to attract customers.

The Herald reported Nov. 15, 1973 that the average retail price for turkeys was 41 cents a pound.

"Last year's turkey prices were abnormally high," a Jewel Food stores spokesman said. Prices this year dropped to a range of 39 cents to 69 cents a pound. Heavy sales of frozen turkeys will begin today and continue through next week, she said, adding that the stores may break even or take a loss on turkey sales.

"RIGHT NOW, turkey supplies are pretty heavy," said a spokesman for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's poultry division office in Chicago. He said government figures indicate 558 million pounds of turkey in storage compared to 450 million pounds a year ago.

WHY THE BIG increase in frozen turkeys? The USDA spokesman said increased production, less promotion of turkey sales and competition from heavy supplies of beef and chicken account for the buildup of frozen turkey inventories.

The glut of gobblers in the market will mean lower prices paid to producers and the possibility of an upward swing in prices by 1976, said John Big, a poultry buyer for A&P Food Stores in Chicago.

"A great deal of money was made last year by growers," he said. "Consequently they thought every year would be the same." Increased production in 1974 led to great financial loss for the producers as feed, labor and transportation costs soared, Big said. Some producers are dropping out of the market, pointing to fewer turkeys and higher prices next year.

Fresh turkey prices are higher than the cost of frozen birds. Jim Howland, owner of Howland's Meat market in Arlington Heights, explains, "It all depends on what you want to put in your stomach." There is a definite taste difference between the fresh and frozen turkeys, Howland said. He charges 99 cents a pound for fresh hens or toms.

"There is no such thing as deals," echoes Tom Aszewski, owner of the John's Coach & Carriage Butcher Shop in Elk Grove Village. "You get more with the fresh turkeys, because they're not dehydrated." He sells the fresh-killed turkeys from the Howard Kaufman farm in Waterman, Ill. at 98 cents a pound for hens and 89 cents a pound for toms. The price last year was $1.09 a pound.

CONSUMER RESISTANCE to rising

prices has cut back on meat sales at some food stores this year, said John Sobut, assistant director of the Illinois Food Retailers Assn. "But somebody's going to buy those turkeys, by God, at 49 cents a pound — that's a bargain," he said.

When the heavy turkey sales promotions get under way, some retailers will sell frozen turkeys at a loss of $1 to $2 a bird, Sobut said. The stores hope to make up for the loss through sales of other holiday foods, he said. Sweet potatoes, cranberry sauce and nuts are among foods that will be featured at sale prices for the Thanksgiving season.

Sobut reported wholesale prices for turkeys ranging from a low of 51½ cents a pound for 18-to 20-pound birds to 55½ cents a pound for 6- to 10-pound birds on store brands. Butterball turkeys ranged from 57½ cents to 63½ cents a pound at the wholesale level this week. Ducks were priced wholesale at 78½ cents a pound and 22-ounce Cornish hens at 90½ cents a pound.

Village board wrapup Huntington preannex pact extended

A preannexation agreement for the Huntington Commons development was extended by the Mount Prospect Village Board until Dec. 2, 1977, in exchange for a 75-unit reduction in the project's density.

Kenroy Inc., the developer, requested the extension because the five-year preannexation agreement was due to expire. The 1,442-unit development originally was approved in 1968.

Michael Gittitz, attorney for Kenroy, said construction of the apartment and townhouse units has taken longer than expected because of "the present unstable economy."

To have building permits issued for the remaining units, a preannexation agreement must be in effect. Of the originally proposed project, 22 townhouse and 688 apartment units have yet to be constructed.

In exchange for the extension, Kenroy agreed to eliminate 50 three-bedroom units and 25 one- or two-bedroom units at two 3½-acre sites near the project's retention lake.

The change in the development must be approved by the planning commission.

NIPC tabbed waste planner

The village board approved a resolution designating the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) as an areawide waste management planning agency.

The resolution is needed so NIPC can coordinate water quality planning for the region and provide local governments with a better chance to qualify for federal construction grants.

The board unanimously approved the resolution after a member of the League of Women Voters spoke in favor of the designation.

Widows' stickers cost less?

The finance committee of the village board has been directed to study the possibility of offering reduced vehicle-sticker rates to widows and widowers.

The village recently reduced sticker fees to $1 for senior citizens, and previously seniors paid half price. Trustee Kenneth Scholten said that if a similar advantage is to be offered to widows and widowers, the village would also have to establish an income cutoff to make sure that people were truly needy.

The matter, which was raised by a resident at Tuesday night's board meeting, has been discussed previously by the board.

al revenues for land acquisition in the downtown redevelopment program. The funds otherwise would have been used to buy the bank over a 10-year period.

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said that once funds from the sale become available next week the village will proceed with the purchase of the 2.6-acre Central School site for $675,000. The village wants to purchase the site soon so it can raise the old school building, which is considered both a fire hazard and an eyesore.

Palwaukee to go public?

The possibility of public acquisition of Palwaukee Airport to ensure its continued use as a public airfield is being explored by the Chicago Area Transportation Study (CATS), a regional planning agency.

CATS representatives presented details to members of the Northwest Municipal Conference Wednesday night in an attempt to stimulate interest in an acquisition study for nearby municipalities.

CATS representative David NewMyer said retention of Palwaukee is one of the key goals of the 1995 Transportation Plan as it relates to airports.

CHICAGOLAND AIRPORT near Lincolnshire is another of 10 airports CATS has designated for public acquisition.

NewMyer said salaries and economic benefits of the airport have to be weighed against loss of Palwaukee Airport from the tax rolls or loss of development of the property.

The Village of Wheeling has expressed an interest in acquiring the airport but owner George Priester has said he won't sell to the village.

Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt said Wednesday night that Priester had indicated an interest in an airport authority made up of several municipalities.

Control over flight paths might be minimal even under a municipal ownership, but airport owners can require minimum noise emission standards, NewMyer said.

CATS REPRESENTATIVE Andrew Plummer said there was no reason to wait for analysis of public ownership of the airport. He suggested that communities that are interested should get together in the next four to six weeks. CATS officials said they are eager to meet with the interested municipalities.

CATS estimated in 1973 that Palwaukee's price tag could exceed $10 million plus an additional $4 million in new construction costs. Current cost would be higher, officials said.

The Villages of Wheeling and Mount Prospect would be most likely to be interested in the acquisition feasibility study, although other communities could become involved.

The Village of Schaumburg has already begun steps for a feasibility study regarding acquisition of Schaumburg Airport.

St. Raymond's — growing the summer of 1949 by the late Samuel Cardinal Stritch, then Archbishop of the Chicago Catholic Diocese.

Church plans were started after members of the Catholic Mothers Club pleaded with the Archdiocese for a parish in Mount Prospect.

The late Thomas A. O'Brien was appointed the founding pastor of the 153-family congregation. The first Mass was celebrated in the basement music room of the abandoned Central School, located at Main Street and Central Road in downtown Mount Prospect.

THE FAMILIES became a close-knit group, working hard at all the fund-raising projects for money to build the church. The feeling of closeness remained throughout the growing years of the parish.

"There was a great deal of love for each other," Mrs. Jarosz said. "People would drop their work at home when help was needed to get started."

The church building at 311 S. 1-0th, was completed in 1951. The building itself was considered a phenomenon with its futuristic architecture. Church buildings were thought of more in traditional materials than steel beams and glass bricks.

The Catholic Mothers Club became The Catholic Women's Club and a men's Holy Name society was formed. A group of altar boys was chosen and a choir assembled for Mass.

Shortly after the completion of the church, the school opened, staffed by the Sisters of Mercy.

BECAUSE OF FAST growth, in 1955, the church was expanded to almost double its original size. But more growth was foreseen, so the raffles, potluck dinners and other benefits were sponsored again and again. Church members also had three major fund drives between 1949 and 1961.

"The potluck suppers in city hall were some of the largest social events of the year," said Mary Nell Steinmiller.

By 1961, final expansion filled the length of the block. From the time of completion to the present, the church members marked several events. One was when Father O'Brien who died in 1963. The Rev. Leo P. Coggins replaced him.

The church adopted a new liturgy by inaugurating a guitar mass, popular with the youthful congregation. More than 30 social and educational organizations were formed, such as the Christian Family Movement and the Tarragona, a club for young single adults.

The congregation is led by the Rev. William J. Buterfield, who replaced Fr. Coggins when he retired.

TO CELEBRATE the silver anniversary, some parish members dug into the past and compiled the church's history into an anniversary book. A dinner-dance and a Jubilee Mass will be this weekend.

A lot of new faces appear and church members may not know each other as well as they would in a smaller parish. But faces become familiar as time goes by, even if names don't, Mrs. Reedy said.

"We did like it as a smaller church," she said. "But there was no need to feel terrible about people moving in. We shared."

INDIVIDUAL EFFORT goes into a good performance by a forensics team member. This student gets in some last-minute practice before performing in front of a judge and his fellow students. In his event, interpretation, he is allowed to use a script because he must present three different selections for each competitive round.

No applause for these competitors

by JUDY JOBBITT

Two chairs and a table set the stage. Brushing off the nervous jitters, two freshmen take their stance in front of the table and explain the setting. And a humorous dust skit begins before an audience of 10 forensics competitors and a judge.

This scene is typical of many in forensics. Last weekend more than 400 students competed in 11 forensics events in a meet sponsored by Buffalo Grove and Wheeling high schools.

STUDENTS WHO enter forensics don't get the applause, tribute or recognition awarded fellow artists in dramatics.

Forensics participants perform as individuals and respond to critiques from judges rather than applause from audiences. They participate in forensics meets Saturday mornings and perform only before their competitors and a handful of interested friends.

Training for forensics comes from participating in meets, coaching from experienced forensics members and adults and from observing other forensics competitors.

PARENTS AND other adults play a large role in preparing a team for competition. Their support is also needed to host a forensics meet where they can oversee extemporaneous speech preparation, act as guides and do much of the clerical work.

Students show the wear and tear of the preparation and anticipation towards a meet when they complete each performance. Sighs of relief, giggles and smiles come from competitors after their event when they sit down to watch others perform.

Forensics often is misconstrued as debate or drama, but it is a field of its own. Also known as Individual Events, it covers a variety of speech forms including drama, original comedy, interpretation, radio broadcast and extemporaneous speech.

Whereas debate teams receive one topic per year to research and debate in various meets, forensics performers select their own work, can change it through the year and wind up with material as different as the number of competitors.

PARTICIPANTS IN extemporaneous events are most closely aligned with debate because they produce speeches within an hour on a current topic. Extemporaneous students keep files with clips from periodicals to use at forensics meets. They draw three questions, select one question to write a speech on and present the speech an hour later.

Students participating in radio must present a five-minute broadcast with news items no more than 24 hours old. The presentation must be within 10 seconds of the five-minute limit or the participant is disqualified.

Dramatics and interpretation competitors can prepare their presentation in advance and present the same work at later meets.

Students go through three rounds at a meet. Each round pairs them against different students in front of a different judge. They must stay to hear all their competitors and once an event begins, no one can enter or leave.

The judge ranks the participants in order of excellence. The ranks are tallied and the school with the most over-all points wins the meet.

Students at Buffalo Grove High School said many on the forensics team are drawn into the activity through the oral communications class required for freshmen.

Mary Beth Lee, Buffalo Grove forensics president, said she entered forensics because she wanted to get over her shyness. Through forensics she learned self-confidence and how to present herself to others, she said.

TO HELP NEW forensics members, separate meets are offered for varsity and novice. A novice is anyone who has participated in less than three contests.

Forensics members also change the events they participate in as they learn their abilities and limitations in presenting speeches.

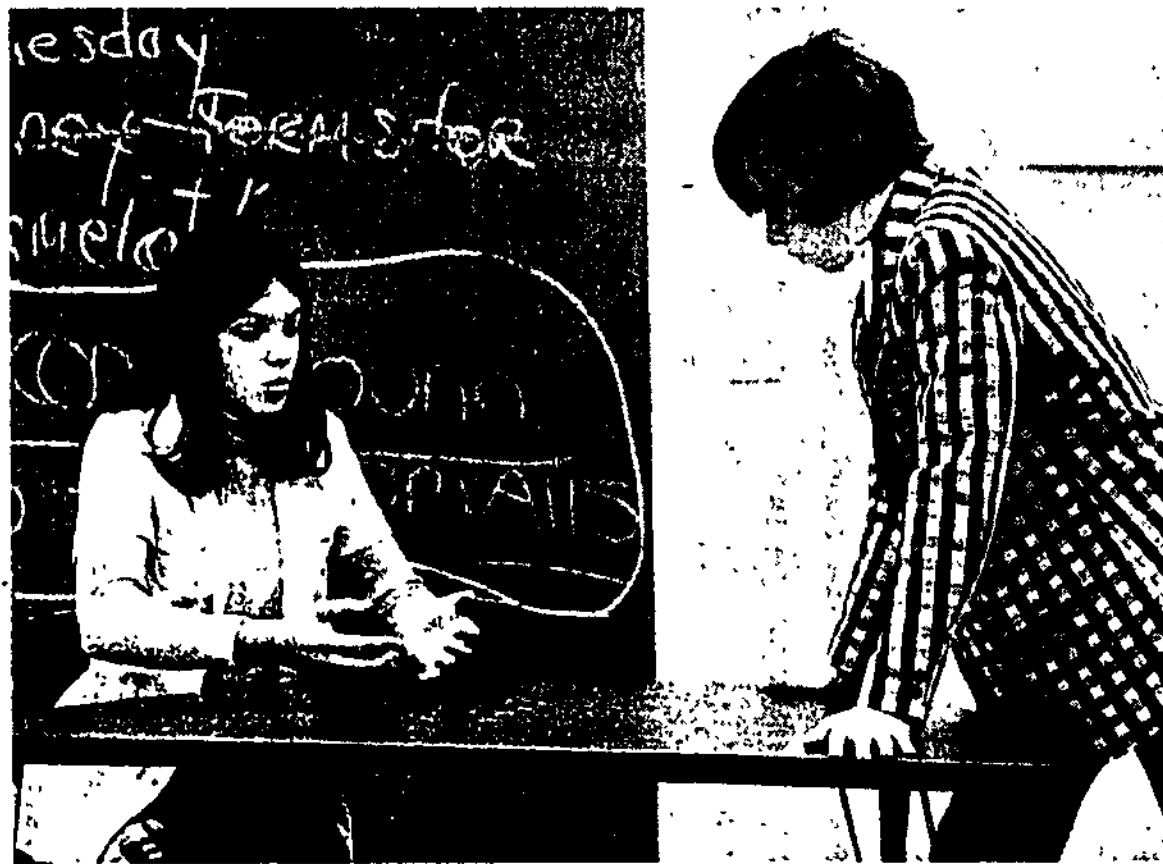

Larry Doyle started in radio broadcast but has changed to original comedy where he writes and presents a comic sketch.

"At the beginning of the year I was really shaky," he said, looking back on his first tries with forensics last year. "By the end of the year I was OK."

JEAN CASEY, Buffalo Grove head forensics coach, said students must learn to strive for personal achievement rather than judge's rankings.

"If you aim to please the judges, you please everybody but yourself," she said. "There's the point where you forget about the audience and judge, and concentrate on what you're doing," Larry said.

And as they concentrate on what they're doing, they learn self-composure and a mature presentation of themselves to others.

A HUMOROUS DUET of "Dennis the Menace" is performed by Joyce Allendorf and John Bauman in a forensics meet Saturday at Buffalo Grove and Wheeling high schools. Duet dramatic skits and other events let students present short scenes and speeches. Rewards come from judges' critiques and rankings toward a team victory.

Guest struck on head; Prospect man charged

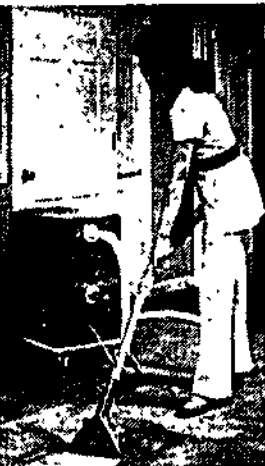

Mount Prospect police Wednesday arrested a man who struck a house guest on the head with a gun, sending him to the hospital.

Frederick E. Kurschner, 29, of 1301 Mallard Ln., Mount Prospect, was charged with battery in the Oct. 18 incident. He was released on $3,000 bond and is to appear Dec. 18 in the Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court.

Police said the victim, Richard M. Mooney, 549 Dorothy Dr., Des Plaines, refused to file a police report at the time of the alleged attack and was transported to Northwest Community Hospital. He later sought police seeking to file a complaint, and this led to Wednesday's arrest of Kurschner.

The attack occurred at Kurschner's home, where Mooney was staying at the time, police said.

Asphalt plants may close

Ridge grade crossing faces a new delay

Construction of the much-delayed Ridge-Walnut grade crossing should be under way soon, following partial settlement of a dispute between the Village of Arlington Heights and the Chicago and North Western Ry.

But the link between Ridge and Walnut avenues that has been planned for more than seven years, still may not be open to traffic before next spring.

Village Engineer Allen Sander said a final 20 to 30 feet of paving, both north and south of the railroad tracks, may not be completed this year if area asphalt plants shut down before the track work is done.

"If the weather is good, we'll try to get it in. But once the asphalt plants close for the winter — that's it," he said.

A railroad spokesman said that planks between the railroad tracks and the warning signals should be installed in a matter of weeks, depending on weather and availability of materials.

THE RAILROAD agreed to proceed with the crossing Tuesday at a meeting with Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel and the Illinois Commerce Commission. The work had been held up because C&NW officials said the village had not paid nearly $17,000 for the right-of-way across the tracks.

Arlington Heights now has agreed to put the money in escrow pending a settlement of the disagreement over the right-of-way's cost.

The ICC's 1970 order approving the crossing makes no mention of right-of-way compensation, village officials say in justification of their refusal to pay.

On the other hand, railroad officials say they are entitled to compensation for the right-of-way that will be taken up by the crossing.

Siegel said the dispute may have to be resolved in court. But since the money has been put in escrow, the railroad will go ahead with the crossing installation.

THE COST OF the crossing will be shared between the village and the Illinois Grade Crossing Protection Fund, a part of the state's motor fuel tax fund.

In 1970, the total cost of the crossing was estimated at $79,160. However this week, the commerce commission agreed to raise the figure to reflect a higher cost of materials.

By extending Ridge Avenue across the railroad tracks and Northwest Highway, village officials hope to open up the much-needed north-south thoroughfare.

No added value in sidewalks: realtors

by MARILYN McDONALD
Hundreds of Arlington Heights residents who are being told to install sidewalks in front of their houses will be making a poor financial investment, a Herald survey of local real estate brokers shows.

The Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements is selecting areas where sidewalks should be installed at a cost of several hundred dollars to each homeowner. In making special assessments, board members have stated that sidewalk projects enhance the value of residents' property.

That contention, however, is disputed by most real estate brokers contacted by The Herald. They say houses in areas such as Scarsdale, Stonegate and Sherwood might be less salable with sidewalks. They say that in most cases a homeowner could not hope to recover the price of sidewalk installation when he sells his house.

When a special-assessment project goes to court, the Board of local improvements must provide evidence that the property involved will be improved by the project. The court decides what the benefit to the property will be in dollars. The homeowner then cannot be assessed any more than this amount.

RESIDENTS OF the village's northeast section have been fighting the board's intentions to install sidewalks in their area since September. They now are being joined by residents of Scarsdale subdivision, who face similar BOLI action. Scarsdale hopes to get the support of other village subdivisions who have also resisted sidewalk installation. Both groups say they cannot afford to put in sidewalks.

"Sidewalks could very possibly be a detriment to Scarsdale. The size of the

BOLI decision seen on sidewalks

The Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements is expected to decide tonight which areas of the village will be included in future sidewalk projects.

The board will make its decisions based on observations made Saturday during a tour of the village. Board members disagreed at that time about the interpretation of the village's 1968 sidewalk policy and its application to certain areas.

In late September residents of northeast Arlington Heights were told they would have to install sidewalks. Now, some homeowners in Scarsdale and other areas of the village will be asked to pay for sidewalks in the forthcoming southeast sidewalk project. Some areas may be added to the southeast section project tonight.

ALSO ON TONIGHT'S agenda is a formal hearing on a sanitary sewer, water and sidewalk project for relocated N. Arlington Heights Road.

The estimated $293,637 project involves 30 to 40 homeowners on Arlington Heights Road between Dundee Road and University Drive.

The project has been under discussion for more than a year. David Patterson, president of the Board of Local Improvements, said many of the area's homes are on wells and septic systems, which don't meet village standards. Further development in that area would be impossible until water and sewer systems are installed, he said.

Sidewalks are a definite need now that Buffalo Grove High School at the corner of Dundee Road and Arlington Heights Road has been completed, Patterson said. The village sidewalk policy calls for sidewalks in areas within one-half mile of schools.

front yard is important," said a broker from Mullins Real Estate, 15 N. Arlington Heights Road. Many Scarsdale houses were developed on narrow 50-foot lots.

Albert Gundelach, professional appraiser for Gundelach and Associates, 605 E. Algonquin Rd., said that a homeowner receives only a small return on his sidewalk investment if he sells his house. "Sidewalks are a pretty small thing to relate to value," he said.

"I can't see that the cost of sidewalks will enhance the value of a house, but homes don't depreciate because there

TWO GRADE teachers, Mimi Reeb, left, and Mary Ann Larson discuss how parents could best prepare their children to read as part of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library's series on children's books, "Go Ask Alice." The program was the third of six weekly presentations.

Don't push child too early into reading, teachers urge

by MARILYN McDONALD
If you've been tempted to urge books on your toddler in the name of reading readiness, think twice about it. Letting children be children is the best way to prepare them to be good readers.

That was the advice given by Mary Ann Larson, a first-grade teacher at Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15's Lake Louise School and Mimi Reeb, part-time reading consultant for Arlington Heights Dist. 25 and a teacher at Windsor School. The two teachers met with nearly 20 parents this week as part of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library series on children's books, "Go Ask Alice."

Although some current writings encourage parents to start gearing their children for reading as young as 11 months old, the two teachers disagree.

WHILE URGING caution on early reading, the two teachers had faint praise for television programs like "Sesame Street" and "The Electric Company" which may have 2-year-olds chanting the alphabet with little understanding or readiness for reading. The teachers also noted that these programs encourage short attention spans with their brief, flashy segments. "You really have to ham it up in the classroom to keep their attention," Mrs. Reeb said.

"The most important thing to have is an experience to relate to," said Mrs. Larson, who encouraged parents of preschoolers to help their children discover the world around them. "Children need to have an idea of what it's like to do this or that, to feel this way or that way," she said. Children can then relate their experience to the stories they'll begin to read and say "Oh, yeah!"

"Children have a tremendous sense of anxiety feelings," said Mrs. Reeb, who encouraged parents to avoid pushing their children into reading or comparing their skills to other children's abilities. "I don't want a neurotic first-grader!" Mrs. Larson said.

Both teachers enthusiastically urged parents to read aloud to their children. Youngsters get a sense of sentence patterns, rhymes and vocabulary in very enjoyable way that the family can share, they said.

ONCE THE CHILD begins reading, both teachers suggested that parents keep reading aloud, moving on to more difficult stories that may stimulate their youngster's desire to read better.

"If you can read to your child, they get to hear words and develop a listening vocabulary. They get a feeling about words that is good," Mrs. Reeb said. "Don't feel that you have to read simple stories at their level, though. They can always ask for an explanation."

"Don't restrict them to books that they can easily read by themselves. They'll get something out of anything they really want to look at," Mrs. Reeb said.

Mrs. Reeb said Americans as a whole do not have "the reading habit." When a child sees his parent reading and enjoying books, the seed is sown.

"Give them a feeling that books are not just for information. Stress enjoyment, too. Share your enthusiasm."

'74 turkey supplies up, prices down

Butchers, stores may sell at a loss to keep customers interested

GOBBLER GROWER Elving Sennabend of Butterfield, Minn., stands among several thousand turkeys reared for Thanksgiving season sale.

The cost of turkeys will gobble up a smaller chunk of the family's Thanksgiving food budget this year compared to 1973 prices. A glut of frozen gobblers and an ample supply of fresh birds are reported by area butcher shops and food store chains.

"Prices of turkeys are somewhat lower than they were last year," said Joe Burkhardt of the Dominick's Finer Foods chain. "I've seen them featured from 29 cents (a pound) and up." Turkey prices are a competitive tool for the food stores during the holiday season, Burkhardt said. He said stores may sell the birds at cost or below to attract customers.

The Herald reported Nov. 16, 1973 that the average retail price for turkeys was 41 cents a pound.

"Last year's turkey prices were abnormally high," a Jewel Food stores spokesman said. Prices this year dropped to a range of 39 cents to 69 cents a pound. Heavy sales of frozen turkeys will begin today and continue through next week, she said, adding that the stores may break even or take a loss on turkey sales.

"RIGHT NOW, turkey supplies are pretty heavy," said a spokesman for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's poultry division office in Chicago. He said government figures indicate 556 million pounds of turkey in storage compared to 450 million pounds a year ago.

WHY THE BIG increase in frozen turkeys? The USDA spokesman said increased production, less promotion of turkey sales and competition from heavy supplies of beef and chicken account for the buildup of frozen turkey inventories.

The glut of gobblers in the market will mean lower prices paid to producers and the possibility of an upward swing in prices by 1975, said John Big, a poultry buyer for A&P Food Stores in Chicago. "A great deal of money was made last year by growers," he said. "Consequently they thought every year would be the same." Increased production in 1974 led to great financial loss for the producers as feed, labor and transportation costs soared, Big said. Some producers are dropping out of the market, pointing to fewer turkeys and higher prices next year.

Fresh turkey prices are higher than the cost of frozen birds. Jim Howland, owner of Howland's Meat market in Arlington Heights, explains, "It all depends on what you want to put in your stomach." There is a definite taste difference between the fresh and frozen turkeys, Howland said. He charges 99 cents a pound for fresh hens or toms.

"There is no such thing as deals," echoes Tom Aszewski, owner of the John's Coach & Carriage Butcher Shop in Elk Grove Village. "You get more with the fresh turkeys, because they're not dehydrated." He sells the fresh-killed turkeys from the Howard Kaufman farm in Watertown, Ill. at 98 cents a pound for hens and 89 cents a pound for toms. The price last year was $1.09 a pound.

CONSUMER RESISTANCE to rising

prices has cut back on meat sales at some food stores this year, said John Sobut, assistant director of the Illinois Food Retailers Assn. "But somebody's going to buy these turkeys, by God, at 49 cents a pound — that's a bargain," he said.

When the heavy turkey sales promotions get under way, some retailers will sell frozen turkeys at a loss of $1 to $2 a bird, Sobut said. The stores hope to make up for the loss through sales of other holiday foods, he said. Sweet potatoes, cranberry sauce and nuts are among foods that will be featured at sale prices for the Thanksgiving season.

Sobut reported wholesale prices for turkeys ranging from a low of 51½ cents a pound for 18-to 20-pound birds to 55½ cents a pound for 6- to 10-pound birds on store brands. Butterball turkeys ranged from 57½ cents to 63½ cents a pound at the wholesale level this week. Ducks were priced wholesale at 78½ cents a pound and 22-ounce Cornish hens at 90½ cents a pound.

Question of who will construct the building

Senior citizens' center becoming political plum?

by JOE SWICKARD
After years of being "old man out" in the predominantly young and upwardly mobile Northwest suburbs, senior citizens are now finding themselves wooed by several governmental sirens.

In the Arlington Heights-Wheeling Township area, at least four governmental bodies and agencies are calling for a multi-purpose center for senior citizens. If the need for such a center is not being questioned, the location and responsibility is rapidly taking the appearance of a political plum.

According to a village survey, seniors represent a sizable minority — about 7 per cent — in Arlington Heights. Arlington Heights, the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, Wheeling Township and the Arlington Heights Park District have all made noises about operating a center, but as yet have been unable to coordinate their efforts.

Three of the four bodies have sent up trial balloons for a center. The fourth, the village of Arlington Heights, wants a center but wants others to build and operate it. However, within the village, there are factions who do not want to see the village government withdraw entirely.

A CENTER, ACCORDING to an article distributed by the National Institute of Senior Citizens, should be the focal point for services, activities and advocacies for the elderly within a community. Although many of these functions are now being met in this area, there is no one point from which they emanate.

For example, the village helps with a meals-on-wheels program, while the township has a senior citizen hot line and the park district offers meeting space. The library, too, provides meeting rooms on a regular basis.

The agencies' plans for growth and financial stability have combined to make the proposed center attractive for them.

Wheeling Township has outgrown its present home on Northwest Highway and is now petitioning the village for permission to build a townhall on N. Arlington Heights Road. A major reason for the growth, the township officials say, is the expanded social services now being offered with the aid of federal revenue-sharing.

A NEW TOWNHALL would have the room to house the administration of services to the elderly plus meeting space for the seniors activities, the officials have said.

At least one library trustee has voiced the opinion that the proposed expanded library would make an excellent site for the senior center. Florence Hendrickson said a library-based center would keep the older citizens in contact with the general population and not segregate them.

The aged, Mrs. Hendrickson said, are a vital part of the community and efforts should be made to avoid partitioning them — an unhealthy trend in America, she said.

The park district's financial review committee is now considering a referendum to increase its tax base and to provide new facilities. One of those facilities being considered is a center.

KAY MULLER, park district vice president, said the seniors need some place to call their own rather than just the use of a meeting room at Pioneer Park Fieldhouse as they do now. While a mix of ages is good, she said, the older citizens can feel "intimidated" when they are outnumbered by loud and boisterous teenagers in other parts of the fieldhouse.

Mrs. Muller said that although neither the park board nor the citizens review committee has taken a firm position on including a center in a referendum, the proposal seems to have generated the least opposition.

The village, however, appears to be withdrawing from an active role in providing social services and a draft report on services, prepared by Health Director

Frank Charlton, recommends that a center be built by the township with the park district responsible for the operation.

This proposal, coupled with one to combine the senior citizens' commission and the youth council under a coordinating council of human resources, was questioned by the commission and its chairman John Gianopoulos.

GIANOPULOS SAID the village should remain active in the field of social services because it can provide a village-wide base in involvement. He also questioned whether the needs of senior citizens would be met through the suggested joint representation, adding that the needs of the seniors and the youths are not the same.

He said the senior center must serve the community, and that the definition of "community" is expanding all the time.

"The name of the game in Washington today is consortium," he said, and the "community" with the widest base of involvement stands a better chance of receiving federal monies and grants.

If the center is to become a reality, the various agencies must find a director and assign the second fiddle for the concerted effort toward the center.

Bonds set at $50,000 in home invasion

Bonds totaling $50,000 have been set for two men arrested Tuesday night in connection with a home invasion in Arlington Heights last week.

Thomas E. Vogt, 30, Phoenix, Ariz., and Sam R. Faulstich, 43, Chicago, allegedly posed as police officers to gain entry to the Bernard Kelly residence, 616 W. Fairview, last Friday morning. The pair produced Kelly's wallet, which had been taken from a restaurant several weeks ago, and told Mrs. Kelly and a 17-year-old daughter they would have to sign a release before the wallet could be returned.

Once inside the house, the men allegedly drew pistols and bound the women. While one of the men stood watch over the women the other ransacked the house and took jewelry, cash and credit cards, police said.

The suspects were picked up by Chicago investigators Tuesday for another crime. Arlington Heights police were notified after a Chicago policeman noticed the resemblance between the pair and composite pictures that had been circulated after the crime.

Vogt and Faulstich were transferred to the Cook County Jail Wednesday after they failed to post bonds totaling $50,000. They were each charged with two counts of armed robbery, two counts of unlawful restraint, one count of burglary and one count of armed violence.

The suspects are scheduled to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court Dec. 6.

Village may be forced to rebuild parking lot

The Village of Arlington Heights may have to rebuild the parking lot it constructed this summer at the southeast corner of Sigwalt Street and Arlington Heights Road because it does not comply with village ordinances.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said the parking lot, which has 22 spaces, was built to help alleviate a shortage of parking spaces for persons coming to the Arlington Heights branch of the Circuit Court.

But when the layout was presented to the village plan commission, it was pointed out that the parking lot violated the village ordinance on landscape screening, the number of continuous parking spaces, the size of the parking spaces and the center aisle.

Despite the variances, the plan commission voted 5 to 3 to approve the parking lot as built. But the village board, at the urging of Trustee Alice Harms, has sent the plan to its public health and safety committee for further review.

Mrs. Harms said she did not want to "rubber stamp" a parking lot that violated the village's ordinance. She also said a one-day spot check revealed there were 63 vacant commuter parking spaces in the village. Mrs. Harms suggested a number of commuter spaces could be reassigned for Circuit Court parking.

Extortion, tax fraud

Hanover's ex-president pleads guilty

Former Village Pres. Richard H. Baker of Hanover Park pleaded guilty Wednesday to a total of 12 federal charges of extortion and income tax fraud.

Public ownership weighed for Palwaukee Airport

The possibility of public acquisition of Palwaukee Airport to ensure its continued use as a public airfield is being explored by the Chicago Area Transportation Study (CATS), a regional planning agency.

CATS representatives presented details to members of the Northwest Municipal Conference Wednesday night in an attempt to stimulate interest in an acquisition study for nearby municipalities.

CATS representative David NewMyer said retention of Palwaukee is one of the key goals of the 1995 Transportation Plan as it relates to airports.

No added value in sidewalks: realtors

(Continued from page 1) are no sidewalks," Gundelach said. "THE VALUE OF sidewalks is a tough question to give a definite answer," said Kenneth Ruid, of Kenneth A. Ruid, Inc., 1725 E. Central Rd., concerning home values and sidewalk installation. Interior improvements like central air condition, wall-to-wall carpeting and fireplaces may add a definite amount to the selling price of a home he said. "If you add a sidewalk, it would depend on your area and also it would be a very difficult number to place in terms of appreciation of value."

"I have not seen homes sell for less for lack of sidewalks," said one broker at Robert L. Nelson Real Estate, 300 E. Northwest Hwy., "To be honest, in Scarsdale, I don't think sidewalk installation would be adding to the value of the homes," she added.

"Sidewalk installation might add to the value of a home in an area with sidewalks, but in an area developed without sidewalks, I can't quite see it enhancing the values at all," said a broker from McKay-Nealis Realtors, 1810 E. Northwest Hwy.

Baker, 40, village president and liquor commissioner from 1969 to 1973, faces a maximum penalty of up to 46 years in federal prison and $30,000 in fines on seven counts of extortion and five counts of income tax fraud.

He will appear for sentencing Jan. 29 before U.S. District Court Judge Bernard M. Decker.

BAKER WAS INDICTED Aug. 15 by a federal grand jury on charges of extorting $10,000 from four liquor license applicants and $12,500 from Hanover Builders, Inc. and 3-H Homes, two major builders in Hanover Park.

Baker has been a controversial figure since he was elected to the Hanover Park village board in 1967 and resigned one year later for "business reasons."

Within five months of his resignation, Baker formed the People's Own Party and headed its slate in the April 1969 election defeating incumbent Village Pres. Eugene Domingue.

Baker's 1969 ticket backed an increased village water rate, supported a village master building plan and opposed a proposed 2,400 acre Metropolitan Sanitary District sludge farm in Hanover and Schaumburg townships.

HIS PROBLEMS began with a Better Government Assn. investigation of Hanover Park in 1972. The BGA charged Baker "played a questionable role" in development of the MSD plant and acted without village board approval.

The BGA report said citizens charged Baker was consistently acting against the best interests of residents and to the advantage of land developers and other special interests.

Citizen complaints included sinking homes, mud-filled driveways, poor roads, inadequate drainage and other construction problems.
